CALCUTTA,
The 19th May 1884.

JOHN ELIOT,
Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of Bengal.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL DURING THE WEEK ENDING 16TH MAY 1884.

THE chief feature in the meteorology of the past week has been the commencement of the south-west monsoon in Ceylon, and over the south of the Bay. This has affected the meteorology of Bengal by diminishing slightly the strength of the southerly winds crossing the Bengal coast from the head of the Bay. This was probably due to slight indraught from the north to the front of the advancing south-west monsoon current, where heavy rain usually falls. The effect of this decrease in the southerly winds has been marked. There has been much less atmospheric disturbance, and consequently diminished rainfall. The rainfall has also been local in character, and confined almost entirely to Bengal, and more especially North and East Bengal.

Atmospheric Pressure.—The movement of the barometric column during the week has been somewhat irregular. Pressure increased slightly on the 10th and 11th, and then fell slowly until the 14th and 15th, and was again rising on the 16th. Pressure was generally below the normal; the deficiency averaging ·02″ in Orissa, South-West Bengal, and East Bengal, ·03″ in Behar, and 05″ in Chutia Nagpur. Pressure continues relatively low in Chutia Nagpur as represented by Hazaribagh.

Temperature.—The mean temperature of the week was below the average at all the reporting stations. The amount of the deficiency was as usual largest in those districts where the rainfall was heaviest, viz. East and North Bengal and the central and eastern districts of South-West Bengal. The deficiency in this area varied from 6° at Berhampore and 5° at Jessore to 3° at Chittagong and 2° at Dacca. The deficiency was least in Behar, where it averaged 1°. Moderately high maximum temperatures were recorded at the central and southern stations in Behar during the week. Amongst the highest were the following:—

Gya	111·2°	Chyebassa	106·1°
Dehree	110·5°	Buxar	105·9°
Arrah	108·4°	Chuprah	105·0°

Winds.—The same lower air currents generally prevailed over the Province as during the preceding week. South-westerly to southerly winds blew across the Bengal coast, and were continued as south-easterly and easterly winds up the Gangetic plain beyond Behar.

Humidity —The air was, as during the previous week, generally more humid than usual, but to a less extent. The decrease was most marked in Behar.

Rainfall.—Less rain was received than during the previous week. General rain fell during the 24 hours preceding 6 P.M. of the 10th in the western districts of South-West Bengal, the central and northern districts of East Bengal, and in North Bengal. The heaviest falls were—

	Inches.
Sherpur in the Bogra district	3·60
Nattore in the Rajshahye ditto	3·50
Serajgunj in the Pubna ditto	3·13

Local showers occurred during the next 24 hours, chiefly in East Bengal. The Mymensingh district received several very heavy showers, amongst which were—

	Inches.
Mymensingh	4·08
Netrokona	3 70

On the following two days fairly general rain occurred in Orissa and in South-East Bengal. Some very heavy showers were received in the south-eastern districts of East Bengal. The largest amounts exceeding three inches registered on these two days were:—

	Inches.
Fenny, on the 12th	3·40
Comillah, on the 12th	3·63
Dacca, on the 12th	3·21
Patuakhally, on the 13th	3·40
Burrisal, on the 13th	3·17

During the remaining three days of the week light local showers occurred, chiefly in North and East Bengal, excepting in Rungpore, Cooch Behar, and Julpigoree where heavy rain fell.

The largest amounts recorded during this period were—

	Inches.
Cooch Behar, on the 15th	5·08
Matabhanga, on the 15th	3·30

The rainfall of the week was hence below the average over the greater part of the Province, including Behar (except the Sonthal Pergunnahs), Chutia Nagpur (except the Hazaribagh district, and South-West Bengal, excluding the Moorshedabad and Jessore districts. It was generally above the average in East and North Bengal, more especially in the Burial and Mymensingh districts of the former, and in the Rajshahye, Rungpore, Julpigoree, and Cooch Behar districts of the latter.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday, the 16th May 1884 :—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86 formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

THE returns of the first class Municipalities in Bengal, for the week ending 3rd May 1884, disclose the following results:—

(1) That births and deaths were recorded in them, in the proportions per 1,000 of population of 19·8 and 44 6, respectively, as opposed to 20 3 and 45 2 per 1.000, respectively, in the preceding week ending 26th April, indicating a reduction in the registration of both events.

(2) That the highest proportions of births and deaths were returned from the undermentioned Municipalities:—

Births	Ratio per mille	Deaths	Ratio per mille
Mozufferpore	35 3	Beauleah	204 9
Chittagong	35 2	Bhagulpore	85·1
Serampore	33·4	Suburbs of Calcutta ...	65·6
Bhagulpore	31·7	Midnapore	62·0
Dhurbhanga ...	31 5	Gya	56·0
		Patna	53 2
		Burdwan	47·3
		Durbhanga	37·8
		Mozufferpore	32 8
		Kishnaghur	32·2
		Howrah	32·0
		Serampore	31·4

(3) That the mean mortality from the principal death-causes stands as follows:—

	Ratio per mille during the weeks ending—
	3rd May 1884.	26th April 1884
Cholera	13·2	12 6
Small-pox	6·4	8·1
Fever	12·2	13·2
Bowel-complaints	4·0	4·0
Injury	·7	·4
Other causes	8 0	6·9

The above figures denote that, in comparison with the preceding week, there occurred during the week under review a noticeable increase of mortality from cholera and the diseases classed under the head of "Other causes," with a sensible decline in that from small-pox and fever.

(4) That referring to the death causes above indicated, while injury was not noticeably severe anywhere, the rest proved most fatal to life in the following Municipalities:—

Cholera	Ratio per mille	Small-pox.	Ratio per mille	Fever.	Ratio per mille	Bowel-complaints.	Ratio per mille	Other causes.	Ratio per mille

Cholera appears to have prevailed very severely in Beauleah, Midnapore, the Suburbs of Calcutta and Howrah; small-pox in Bhagulpore, Gya and Patna; and fever in Burdwan and Ranaghat.

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken, as the census of this section of the community taken in February 1881 was not reliable, owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as before, as it was not necessary to re-census them. The ratios have consequently been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted, inasmuch as the census of the Europeans above alluded to cannot be employed as a basis of calculation owing to the results of the census under this head not having been recorded under the authorised form of age classification.

The Report dated the 27th April 1883 of the Committee appointed to enquire and consider what measures should be adopted for placing the entire system of the village watch in Bengal on a more satisfactory footing.

A separate Note, without date, by E. V. Westmacott, Esq., one of the Members of the Committee.

In acknowledging the receipt of the Annual Report on the Administration of the Police Department for 1881, and the Resolution of this Government recorded thereon, the Government of India, in their letter No. 402, dated the 18th September 1882, expressed a hope "that His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor will take an early opportunity of considering the whole subject of the village watch in Bengal, and, if necessary, adopt measures for placing it on a more satisfactory footing. The unsatisfactory working of the present arrangements, and the necessity of bringing the force more under control, without depriving it of its local character, appears to be brought out more clearly in each departmental report. It seems possible that the regular payment of the men belonging to the village police, through the District Superintendent of Police, might effect the reform needed, and this could probably be effected without unduly interfering with the other functions of the punchayets."

2. In reply to their letter, the Government of India was informed, in the letter from this office, No. 1047J—D, dated the 15th October 1882, that the Lieutenant-Governor proposed to appoint in the coming cold season a Committee to consider and report upon the whole question affecting the village watch in Bengal, and that the results which might be arrived at would in due course be communicated for the information of the Government of India.

3. In the subsequent letter from this office, No. 8LT, dated the 10th November 1882, the Government of India was informed that a Committee, consisting of Mr. J. Monro, the Commissioner of the Presidency Division, as President, Mr. Worsley, the Magistrate of Mozufferpore, and Mr. Westmacott, the Magistrate of Dacca, as Members, had been appointed for the purpose of the proposed enquiry. It was also stated that, during his recent tour in Eastern Bengal, the Lieutenant-Governor had had many opportunities of obtaining information on the working of the present Chowkidaree Act (VI B.C of 1870), and that he was of opinion that there was much in its provisions that needed amendment, especially in the view of its being made to supplement the general scheme of Local Self-Government, then under consideration. In the letter of this Government, No. 3242J., dated the 22nd November last, to the address of Mr J. Monro, the President of the Committee, the principal points to which enquiry should be directed were indicated.

4. Previous to this, viz., in May 1882, the Government of India had suggested to this Government certain alterations in, and amendments of, Acts XVI of 1873 the North-Western Provinces Village and Road Police Act) and XVIII of 1876 (the Oudh Laws Act). The proposed alterations were to invest chowkidars with powers to arrest, in certain cases, persons suspected of having committed offences, or against whom a hue and cry has been raised, to interfere for the prevention of certain offences, and to exercise the powers of police officers under sections 97, 98 and 103 of the old Code of Criminal Procedure It was also proposed that village and road chowkidars might be employed temporarily beyond the limits of their village and beat. Upon these several points the opinion of the Lieutenant-Governor was asked, and the Commissioners of Divisions and the Inspector-General of Police were consulted. The opinions of these officers were in due course sent to the Committee for consideration, and are referred to in their present report.

5. The report which was received by this Government on the 27th April 1883 reviews from its inception the whole working of the law since its introduction, and brings out in a clear and concise way the many defects which interfere with its successful application. Practical action upon the recommendations of the Committee has been delayed, because the view which the Lieutenant-Governor took upon the matter when the report first came before him was that the solution of many of the difficulties connected with the village police might be found in the introduction of an extended system of Local Self-Government, with which the control of the rural constabulary might possibly be amalgamated. At the time, however, this Government was not in a position to say what form the Local Self-Government Bill would take, and it was not till the end of last cold season that the outcome of the deliberations upon that particular measure could be declared. The Bill for the introduction of Local Self-Government has now been submitted with the report of the Select Committee which had been considering the subject, and it has been circulated for an expression of opinion by district and divisional officers. It seems to Mr. Rivers Thompson desirable that while that important measure is under the notice of Commissioners of Divisions. the question as to the future constitution and position of the village police should also be considered by them, and especially as regards one of its principal features—the supervision and control of the punchayets created by the Act of 1870

6. At the time when this law was under discussion, the condition of the village chowkidar throughout the country was most deplorable. Though the supposed guardians of the village against criminals, there was only too good reason to conclude, from repeated cases of heinous crime in which they had been convicted, tha the chowkidars themselves were hand in glove with the criminal classes, and often the direct organizers and promoters of the worst forms of gang robbery. It is not necessary now to dilate on facts which were notorious throughout the country at the time, and which a reference to the reports of police administration of the day would conclusively establish. Enquiry into the cause of a very dangerous state of things showed, amongst other incidents, that not only was the village chowkidar very inadequately paid for the services he was supposed to render, but that such wage as was due to him was most irregularly received. The position was also complicated by the fact that the chowkidar was in a manner a subordinate of the zemindar of the village in which he was employed, and between the incompatible duties of a public officer and a private servant, for which he received no regular payment, he was not unnaturally forced into crime to obtain a means of livelihood. The main object of the law of 1870 was to define and improve the status of the rural police, and, as the Committee remark, "the chief evil which the Act was intended to remedy was the habitual denial to village chowkidars of payment of wages." To carry out this object the liability for the payment of the local police was transferred from the zemindars (whose connection with the chowkidars was absolutely dissolved) to the village community; and the system which received legal sanction was that punchayets should be established in every village where a chowkidar was maintained, to whom the Government would look for the assessment of the village residents, for the collection of the rate, and for the direct and regular payment of the chowkidar by monthly salary. As a recognition of the not very great responsibilities imposed upon them, the punchayets were vested with the right of selecting and nominating the chowkidar of their villages, and of generally supervising his duties. Considering the fact that the amount which the punchayet had monthly to realize under this system ranged between Rs. 3 and Rs. 6 only, and that ample powers were given under the law to recover by distraint from defaulters the rate of monthly assessment, it was hoped that a self-acting procedure would in time be established, under which, without any necessity of recourse to magisterial and police interference, a regular system of pay and a better selection of men and a general improvement in the condition of the village police would be secured.

7. The report of the Committee shows the results of 13 years' working of the Act. It establishes—and this quite justifies the enactment of the law—that now the "wages of the chowkidars are paid on the whole with tolerable regularity once a quarter; and that, in the case of only rather more than 8 per cent. in Bengal and rather more than 6 per cent. in Behar, are arrears of pay allowed to accumulate for periods of more than three months." To those who remember or had to deal with the condition of things before 1870, when Magistrates had to maintain a continuous pressure upon zemindars for the realization of dues often more than eighteen months unpaid, the present facts undoubtedly indicate a very remarkable change for the better. And when the report goes on to prove that "under the existing law the chowkidar receives more pay than he did under the old regulation, that he has therefore less temptation to be dishonest, and that there seems to be a growing tendency on the part of the present chowkidars to value their appointments and to consider them of some worth," it is evident that it is rather to a reform of the defects of the Act, and not to the abrogation of its principle, that the attention of the Government should be directed. What the defects are is clearly brought out in the Committee's Report. Success has not been attained in the selection and appointment of the punchayets. They have signally failed voluntarily to accomplish the chief object with which they were constituted. It is shown that regularity of payment has been secured rather by extra legal powers exercised by the magistracy than by the good will and interest of punchayets in the discharge of their duties; that the office of punchayet is extremely unpopular for reasons given in clause (e), paragraph 8 of the Report; that the assessment of the chowkidaree rate has been conducted with unfairness in the interest of the higher and without consideration of the lower classes; that the accounts of the punchayets are generally very imperfect and often fictitious; that the full amount of wages due to chowkidars is occasionally withheld by the fraudulent action of punchayets; and that their influence in any improvement of the rural police in reporting crime is at least very doubtful.

8. It is not very surprising to Mr. Rivers Thompson to find these results, for it is clear from the Committee's report that very little was done by executive authority, after the passing of the Act, to give it a fair chance of success. The Commissioners record in the 10th paragraph that "upto the year 1878 the village communities were allowed to work the Act very much in their own way, and special attention does not seem to have been directed to the question of the regularity of payment of chowkidars' salaries." It was not till 1879 that special measures were taken to ivestigate the position of things, so that for nine years this special law, involvi g an entirely novel procedure, and establishing an entirely new system as regards the constitution of the village police throughout the country, was apparently left to drift into irregular channels without any active attempt at guidance from superior authority. It may be quite true that the principle of the measure being to leave the widest freedom of action to village communities, the intervention of magisterial or police authority might not have been approved; but the fact remains that in one of the most important points connected with the inauguration of the Act, viz., as regards the selection of proper persons for the office of punchayet, the requirements of the law had been most perfunctorily discharged. A reference to paragraphs 30 to 32 of the report under review will show the character of the proceedings, and establishes beyond question that while the Act recognized the necessity of special care in the selection of the members of a punchayet, and imposed the duty upon the magistracy with special injunctions to carry it out, after personal communication with the residents of a village and after a full explanation of the duties of the office, the practice generally prevalent has been to leave this work altogether in the hands of the regular police. Not only were the provisions of the law neglected, but it seems to the Lieutenant-Governor the worst possible agency was employed to give effect to the law. In this connection the Committee say very appropriately "that the selection should to such a large extent have rested with the police we think was a mistake, and we are inclined to believe that a decided improvement in the constitution of the punchayets would result from the question of the appointment of members being taken up and dealt with as originally contemplated in the Act." The excellent success which the Act has had in places where an interest has been shown in its working by sub-divisional or police officers, as noticed by the Committee, indicates that some form of control and supervision should receive the legal sanction of the law.

9. The question mainly to be settled is, in whose hands should such direction and control be placed? The majority of the Committee would apparently bring the rural police and its management in direct subordination to the regular thana police. Mr Westmacott dissents from this view; and while recognizing the chowkidar rather as the servant of the villagers than of the Government, would leave things very much as they are as concerns the punchayets, but would give the ultimate appeal for assistance in difficulties to the Magistrate of the district. In any case some separate agency appears desirable for the collection of the rate assessed by the villagers, and probably on the lines which Major Ramsay, the District Superintendent of Police, very successfully introduced in the Patna district. The object is to obtain much more of a self-working arrangement, and to avoid the maintenance of extra establishments in the Magistrate's office for the returns and registers and issue of warrants which the present procedure involves. Mr. Westmacott seems to be of opinion from many passages in his note that the remedy of the present evils can only be effected by "a stronger staff of magisterial officers in every district." It is out of the question to entertain such a proposal. If village communities under a limited external supervision cannot carry out the objects of the Act, we must abandon the principle of working through them. But it seems to the Lieutenant-Governor indisputable that the measure of success attained at Perozepore, in the district of Backergunge, through the intelligence and exertions of Baboo Shoshi Shikar Dutt, the Sub-divisional Officer, justifies the conclusion that no such extra aid is necessary. There is clear proof that the punchayets cannot stand and act alone, and that some external control is required. The Lieutenant-Governor will be glad to receive the suggestions of the Commissioners of Divisions upon this main point, and the papers will now be forwarded to them for this purpose. The Lieutenant-Governor's own view inclines to the conclusion that where, under the Local Self-Government scheme, union committees are established, the necessary control might be vested in them. Where there are no union committees, the Local Boards under the presidency of the Sub-divisional Officer would provide the necessary agency. The general opinion prevails that the quarterly payment of the chowkidar is all that the circumstances of his position call for. If a collecting officer is added to the scheme, to be paid out of the rates, and a power of supervision and interference is vested by law in some local body, there is reason to hope that a self-acting plan will have been provided, which will relieve district and police officers of the demands upon their time which now prevail, and which will place the regulation and payment of the police on a sound footing. As fresh legislation would be necessary to give effect to any such scheme, the consideration of many questions of detail can stand over till such legislation is taken in hand.

ORDER—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution, and of the report of the Committee, and of Mr. Westmacott's Note, be forwarded to the Commissioners of Divisions, with the request that they will favour the Lieutenant-Governor with their suggestions on the questions referred to in paragraphs 5, 8, and 9 of the Resolution, as well as with their opinion on any other points upon which they may desire to express their views.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

RESOLUTION ON THE ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE ALIPORE REFORMATORY SCHOOL FOR THE YEAR 1883.

JAILS.

Darjeeling, the 22nd May 1884.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

Letter No. 2859, dated the 4th April 1884, from the Inspector-General of Jails, forwarding the Reports of the Committee and the Superintendent of the Reformatory School at Alipore for the year 1883.

Read also—

The Reports for 1882, and the orders of Government recorded thereon.

The number of boys at the Reformatory School at the commencement of the year 1883 was 79. During the year 30 boys were admitted, viz. 11 from the Calcutta and Alipore Police Courts, one from the High Court, and 18 from different districts, making a total of 109. Of this total, 21 were released on expiry of sentence, one on appeal, one by order of Government, four on reaching the age of 18 years, two died, and one effected his escape. The number of boys remaining in the School on the 31st December 1883 was thus 79, the same number as at the commencement of the year. Of these, 43 were Hindus and 36 Mussulmans. There is accommodation in the School for 100 inmates.

2. The discipline and general behaviour of the boys has continued to be satisfactory. The average number of punishments fell from 4·7 in 1882 to 3·4, the lowest average that has yet been reached. The offences committed were not, it is stated, of a serious nature, and were chiefly of a kind that might be expected from boys. The average number of boys entitled to marks, and the average earnings per week, show a slight decrease as compared with the preceding year. This is explained to be due to the number of recent admissions of boys, who do not earn much during the first year of their stay. Notwithstanding this, the earnings of the boys amounted to Rs. 83-11-6. or exactly one rupee more than in 1882, Rs. 59-12 being also earned by 23 boys for extra work. Under the rules the boys are allowed to spend one-half of the gratuities earned under the mark system on fruits, sweetmeats, and other luxuries not falling within the list of forbidden articles, the other half being retained until discharge. Rupees 133-14-3 were paid to the boys released in 1883.

3. The year was a remarkably healthy one, the admissions into hospital having fallen from an average of 2·90 in 1882 to 1·26. There were two deaths from fever with enlargement of the spleen—a disease which has all along been the one from which the boys have most suffered.

4. The efficiency of the training and discipline in the School is best tested by the conduct of the boys after release. It is therefore very satisfactory to find that of 58 Magistrates' reports regarding released boys, no less than 52 were to the effect that the boys were doing well and bearing a good character.

5. The cost of maintenance rose from Rs. 132-3-6 in 1882 to Rs 163-12-1 per head. The cause of this increase was the small average number of boys in 1883 compared with the preceding year, the cost of establishment remaining the same. On the opening of the Reformatory School at Hazareebagh in September 1882, 25 boys were, as mentioned in the Resolution on the Reports for 1882, transferred from the Alipore School, and the number at the latter did not increase during the year following. The expenditure, however, on the whole fell from Rs. 12,563-3-3 to Rs. 12,282-14-3. There was a decrease of Rs. 596 in cost of diet, owing chiefly to the diminution in numbers of the boys, and a decrease of Rs. 53-8-3 in hospital expenses. There was an increase, for various causes, in the cost of constructions and repairs of Rs. 244-8-3, and in that of clothing an increase of Rs. 153-15.

6. The cost of the educational establishment was Rs. 1,140. Under the rules the subjects to be taught are reading, writing, and arithmetic in Urdu and Bengali, with an advanced class in which the above subjects are to be taught in English, and instruction may be given in the rudiments of geometrical drawing. The educational staff is stated to have worked well. The report does not show, however, what progress was made by the boys and how many of them were in the advanced class. This subject should be noticed in future reports.

7. The salaries of trade instructors amounted to Rs. 570-15-6. The trades taught were, as in the preceding year, those of a blacksmith, book-binder, gardener, carpenter, cane-worker and tinsmith. The net profit of manufactures, notwithstanding the release of a large number of the older trained boys, has continued to rise, amounting in 1883 to Rs. 10,896-8-5. In 1882, with a considerably larger number of boys working, the net profits were Rs. 10,224-6-1. Considering the character of the boys dealt with, and the necessity of releasing those who have been trained just at the time when their labour becomes most productive, the result is creditable to the Superintendent, Mr. Kirschner.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the President of the Board of Management for information, and for communication to the Members of the Board.

Ordered also that a copy of the Reports, and a copy of the Resolution, be forwarded to the Inspector-General of Jails for information.

Ordered also that a copy of the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

F. B. PEACOCK,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

THE REVISED BENGAL TENANCY BILL.

Circular No. 3T—R, dated Darjeeling, the 24th May 1884.

From—A. P. MacDonnell, Esq., Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, Reve. Dept.,
To—All Commissioners of Divisions.

YOUR attention has already been invited to the Tenancy Bill as revised by the Select Committee of the Legislative Council of the Governor-General; to the report of the Select Committee upon the Bill, with the dissents from that Report which were published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 2nd of April and subsequent dates; and to the important letter of the Government of India, No. 784, dated 5th May, which appeared in the Gazette of India of the 10th instant. The Lieutenant-Governor again requests your most careful attention to these documents, especially to the letter of the 5th May, in which His Excellency the Governor-General in Council subjects several provisions of the Bill to examination, pointing out, in regard to some, the necessity that exists for a further discussion of their tendency and usefulness, and in regard to others the desirability of collecting more complete information. All those points, as well as other matters to be brought to your notice in the course of this letter, should now, without any loss of time, receive careful consideration from yourself, from the District Officers subordinate to you, and from such public bodies and individuals interested in the measure as may be willing and able to give assistance and advice. It will be found that on a few points local enquiries will be necessary in order to clear away the remnants of those difficulties which, at the outset, beset this question of the amendment of the Rent Law in Bengal. Those points have been generally indicated by the Government of India in their letter, and in the sequel I am to touch upon them also. Before doing so, however, I am to say, with reference to procedure, that when the matters on which further enquiry is needed shall have been duly investigated, and when your District Officers, having taken such advice as may be necessary, or may be tendered by persons interested in the measure, shall have formed their conclusions on the matters referred for their opinion, then it is the Lieutenant-Governor's wish that you should hold a conference of all your Collectors and such other officers as you may desire to consult, that you should thoroughly discuss the matters referred to you in personal communication with them, and draw up a report embodying the general opinion of the conference. From this intercommunication of ideas, the Lieutenant-Governor anticipates not only much benefit as far as the consideration of the question itself is concerned, but also a great lightening of the work of Government in reviewing the reports to be submitted. Many views, to which officers reporting separately on the Bill might be inclined to attach undue importance, assume their proper position when examined in the light of the larger experience which many men can bring to bear upon the opinions of one. If, indeed, there be marked differences of opinion, the dissentient officers should note briefly their views, but there should be no unnecessary delay in this respect, for it is expected that your report should reach this office certainly not later than the 14th August. The time allowed by the Government of India for this further discussion of the Tenancy Bill is not long, and therefore should be turned to the best account.

2. The procedure which the Lieutenant-Governor has now indicated seems to him to hold out most promise of successful results; and therefore he desires that it may be followed. In any case where a Collector of a district is unable for any reason to attend the conference, he should submit a report, which should be embodied in the General Report of the Conference, as far as the views expressed in it will permit. Mr. Rivers Thompson does not lose sight of the fact that this call comes upon District Officers at a very inconvenient time of the year, when they are busy preparing their Annual Reports. The call, which the Lieutenant-Governor trusts may be the last he will have to make in connection with the Tenancy Bill, must, however, be met; and in order to enable you to meet it, he, as a special exception, postpones the date of the submission of the Annual Reports for one month, if such an extension be necessary in consequence of the orders now issued. It is presumed that in the case of your Collectors, whose reports are due by 1st

June, no extension will be needed; but, where needed, you may grant it. Having thus sketched out the plan of enquiry and consultation which seems to the Lieutenant-Governor to offer the greatest promise of satisfactory results within the time at the disposal of the Government, I am now to direct your attention to the principal points which are to form the subject of enquiry and report. In doing this, it will be convenient to follow the order of the revised Bill, reserving for subsequent comment those large administrative questions which the Government of India raise in the initial paragraphs of their letter under notice.

3. Chapter I.— On this chapter the Government of India, following the Report of the Select Committee, make no remarks. No points occur to the Lieutenant-Governor to which your attention need be drawn. Should, however, any considerations of importance, which have not been provided for, occur to you in connection with this chapter, you are at liberty to bring them to notice.

4 Chapter II.—The provisions of this chapter exercise a very important influence on the character of the Bill, and therefore demand your special attention. It is highly desirable that a forecast should, as far as possible, be made of their probable effect by ascertaining how far similar arrangements already exist in the agrarian economy of the various districts, what the general effect of such arrangements has been, and, where no such arrangements exist, what the effect of introducing them would probably be. The chief points to which your attention should be directed are (a) whether the definition of ryot in section 5 (3) covers all classes of ryots, those holding under unregistered lakhirajdars as well as under the holders of revenue-paying lands; (b) whether the presumption in section 5 (5) is, with reference to existing practice, a fair presumption, and, if not fair, what presumption of the sort would be fair; (c) whether the conversion of the subletting occupancy ryot into a tenure-holder (section 37) is a workable provision, and also likely to secure the objects for which it was devised. In regard to the first and second points, the Lieutenant-Governor deems it unnecessary to do more here than to bring them prominently to your notice; but in regard to the third point (c), which may, with advantage, be once for all discussed in this connection, a few further remarks are desirable, because the excision of this provision would naturally exercise an important influence on some other provisions contained in the Bill. In proposing in my letter No. 972 of 27th September (paragraph 7) that an occupancy ryot who sublets half his holding should be converted into a tenure-holder, the Lieutenant-Governor had in view the twofold object of discouraging the purchase of occupancy holdings by money-lenders or speculators; and, where transfers were made, of affording a protection from undue enhancement of rents to, and of facilitating the acquisition of the occupancy right by, actual cultivators of the soil. It is recognized that the formal recognition by the Bill of the transferability of occupancy rights may tend to the purchase of such rights by money lenders (whom it is not the wish or object of the Government to benefit at the ryot's expense), and consequently to the rack-renting of the cultivators holding under such purchasers. From the earliest discussions of the question it has been accepted that if by any definition or legal provision the limitation of the occupancy right to actual cultivators could be secured, most, if not all, of the objections to the proposal would be removed. But the difficulties in the way of providing any efficient or practical limitation of the sort have hitherto proved insuperable, and it is therefore acknowledged that if the right of free sale as regards the occupancy tenure is to be maintained, some safeguard must be found against the dangers referred to. Accordingly the plan embodied in section 37 of the revised Bill was devised. The object of that plan was to deter money-lenders from purchasing occupancy rights by exposing them to being summarily dealt with for arrears of their own rents, while curtailing their power to deal summarily with their under-ryots. These objects it was proposed to secure by, on the one hand, enabling the superior landlord, in certain cases, to subject the purchaser of the occupancy right (who had sublet half the holding, and thereby rid himself of the responsibility of cultivation) to the summary procedure of the putni sale law, or to some modification of it; and, on the other hand, by raising the actual cultivator or sub-lessee from the position of a khorfa to that of a non-occupancy ryot, capable in course of time of acquiring the occupancy right. It was not overlooked that this plan, even if completely successful in practice, would not to be a perfect preventive against the evils at which it was aimed: but it was believed that it would have a wholesome effect by bringing from above and from below influences to bear upon the speculative purchaser which would depreciate the value of the occupancy holding in his eyes, and thus deter him from seeking such investment for his money. Furthermore (and this is a very important consideration), the Lieutenant-Governor had looked to the acceptance (by the Select Committe) of the principle of equality between occupancy and non-occupancy rates of rent, and to the adequate enforcement of that principle as a means of preventing the purchaser of an occupancy right, when converted into a tenure-holder, from recovering a higher rate of rent from his undertenants than he himself paid The principle, however, of equality between the maximum occupancy and non-occupancy rates finds no place in the revised Bill, and this omission is an important factor as affecting the sufficiency of section 37 for the object it was intended to meet as described above. If on reviewing this subject of the transferability of occupancy rights (and it is essential that you should reconsider it with reference to the question of the "convertible tenure" holder) you are of opinion that the danger of such rights falling largely into the hands of money-lenders is a serious danger, then you are expected to say whether the remedy embodied in section 37 of the Bill is adequate to meet it, or whether the difficulties suggested by the Select Committee in the 5th chapter of their report, and by the Government of India at the end of their 6th paragraph, added to such other objections as may occur to you, raise doubts as to the efficiency of the remedy in question Should no such doubts suggest themselves to you, you will be good enough to consider and report whether the practical difficulties connected with the ascertainment and registration of sub-leases, covering in the aggregate half the holding, would be of a character likely to affect the success of the scheme.

5. Chapter III—With this chapter should be read the remarks contained in paragraph 6 of the letter from the Government of India; and especially those which refer to the difficulty of deciding what holdings are and what are not tenures Further, it will be observed that section 8 provides for the enhancement of a tenure-holder's rent in certain cases up to double the rent previously payable; while section 10 fixes ten years as the period within which enhancements once obtained cannot be repeated. These provisions differ from the analogous provisions concerning occupancy ryots contained in sections 45 to 50 of the Bill, while this chapter omits precautions of the nature provided by section 41 for cases of private agreement. You are required to take these facts into your consideration, and, with reference to the circumstances of the various districts of your division, to report whether in these respects the Bill may be fairly allowed to stand as it is, or whether modifications (and if so, of what character and extent) should be introduced with a view to assimilating, in regard to all classes of agricultural holdings, the periods of immunity from enhancement of rent, and to regulating on an uniform basis the maximum extent of such enhancements.

I am also to add that it is the Lieutenant Governor's special wish that you should test the practicability or workable character of the provisions in this chapter by applying them to cases of enhancement of tenure-holders' rents, which have already occurred in practice, or might, with reference to the circumstances of the districts in your charge, be reasonably expected to occur. The points (if any) in which the procedure of the chapter appear inapplicable to, or divergent from, what the existing practice is should be carefully noted, weighed and submitted for the information of Government.

6. Chapter IV.—Under this chapter the Government of India, in paragraph 7 of their letter, raise the question of the retention, in its present form, of the 20 years' presumption rule embodied in section 64 (2) of the Bill. As the question has been raised by the Government of India, it is necessary that you should again give it your careful consideration. This presumption is perhaps one of the most valuable provisions which the Bill contains in the interests of the ryots: it is a reasonable presumption, inasmuch as, if it be contrary to the facts, it throws on the landlord no greater burden of proof than in ordinary cases he should be easily able to discharge; it has been, as the Government of India point out, in force for a quarter of a century, and in certain districts, Shahabad for instance, it has very materially altered for the better the condition of the ryots who were able to avail themselves of it. The chief objection urged against it is that on transfers of property, particularly at auction sales, it operates with harshness against the purchaser, who is placed at a disadvantage compared with the former owner, in rebutting the presumption. To this, and to other objections (to be found in the published correspondence) which have been urged against the fairness of the presumption, you are now requested again to give your attention. You will be good enough to consider, with reference to the circumstances of your districts, and the frequency or fewness of recent enhancements, whether landlords really experience any practical or reasonable difficulty in rebutting the presumption if unjustly pleaded, and whether, having regard to the wider interests of the agricultural community, it is desirable that the presumption should be retained in its present shape or modified. The arguments which have been urged against the section as it stands will be found in the dissents recorded by the Hon'ble Mr. Gibbon, the Maharajah of Durbhunga and Rai Kristodas Pal.

7. Chapter V—In calling your attention to the points raised by the Select Committee in paragraphs 11 and 12 of their Report, I am at the same time to remind you that the definition of the settled ryot is not now open to general discussion. The only questions therefore which arise on this head are—(a) should the capacity of the settled ryot to hold, on an occupancy title, land into possession of which he has been let extend over an entire "estate," or should it cover only a portion of the "estate" when the latter extends over a large tract of country, or into more than one district; and (b) should the "estate" within which such a right may accrue to the settled ryot be of the extent it was 30 years ago, or at any more recent date. On point (a) you will consider whether, with reference to the circumstances of the districts in your charge, any material or practical loss would unavoidably result to zemindars by retaining the definition as it stands; and if you are of opinion that such loss would result, then you are requested to state whether that loss would be obviated without injury to the just rights of the ryots by limiting the portion of the "estates" within which settled ryots taking lands would at once acquire occupancy rights, to the district or even to the subdivision of a district. On point (b) you will take into account the frequency of butwaras in recent years, especially in Behar and Eastern Bengal, and the disintegrating influence which such divisions of property would in many cases have on old-established rights if the "estate" of to-day were to be taken as the envelope of the settled ryots' rights. Another minor point which claims attention is the effect of section 29 (1), and the propriety of retaining such a provision in the Bill, which seems somewhat to conflict with section 28. At the same time cases may occur in which the occupancy ryot buys a share in the estate in which his holding is situated, and you are therefore requested to consider whether to such cases a provision similar to section 29 (2) might be made applicable, so as to prevent the merger of the occupancy right in the holding as it existed previous to the purchase. The effect of such a provision would, in fact, assimilate the occupancy holding to khamar land.

8. Coming now to the incidents of the occupancy right, I am to say that the Lieutenant-Governor will be glad again to be favoured with any remarks you may have to make on clauses (b), (f), and (g) of section 31. The other clauses of the section seem open to few, if any, objections, and therefore the Lieutenant-Governor will not press you to discuss them if you have nothing special to urge on the subject. Under clause (f) the main question is transferability, on which some remarks have already been made; and, looking to its vast importance, it is expected that you will again discuss it carefully with reference to the facts existing in each district of your division, if comments of a general nature do not suffice to place accurately before Government the information you may have to impart. What the Government particularly desires you to do is to test, in the light of local experience and existing facts, the conclusions which have been provisionally come to on the subject; and to consider what effect on those conclusions may be reasonably expected to result from any modifications in other portions of the Bill (such as the withdrawal, if deemed inefficient or impracticable, of the safeguards against the intrusion of money-lenders) which you may, on full deliberation, deem it advisable to make. The possibility of devising a plan whereby transfers of occupancy rights by sale (otherwise than in execution of a decree for arrears of rent) could be restricted to the cultivating classes only should be again considered. Hitherto all attempts in this direction have ended in failure more or less pronounced, much of the difficulty lying in the fact that the mahajun is frequently himself a cultivator. It has indeed been urged by the British Indian Association that it is not desirable to exclude mahajuns of this class from purchasing occupancy rights, and thereby bringing their capital to the promotion of agriculture; and if only some efficient checks could be imposed on the power of such purchasers to rack-rent their under-tenants, the Lieutenant-Governor's apprehensions on the point would be mitigated. There is, however, a large mass of evidence to show that the mahajun, who buys up occupancy rights, is one of the most exacting of landlords. If occupancy rights were to fall largely into the hands of that class, while no protection was afforded to their under-ryots, the results would be highly undesirable. It may be added that whatever conclusion you adopt on the general question of transferability need not be regarded as in any way affecting the wisdom and desirability of declaring that occupancy holdings shall be saleable for their own arrears of rent under decrees of Court in substitution for the system of ejectment recognized by the existing law.

9. With reference to the enhancement of rent provisions (sections 39 et seq.), it is desirable that your remarks should fall under two heads—(a) the grounds of enhancement; (b) the extent to which enhancements may be had. While calling your attention on the first point (a) to the remarks made on the subject by the Select Committee, and by the Government of India in paragraph 13 of their letter, and while asking you to fully weigh these remarks, I am also to bring the following matter to your special notice. It has been objected to the first ground of enhancement in section 43, namely, the prevailing rate, that while careful enquiry has failed to discover a "prevailing rate" anywhere except in portions of Jessore, the provision in question either has been, or easily admits of being, abused by the production in evidence of collusive or fictitious rates, and thus creating a leverage for forcing up rents. On the other hand, it has been urged that this ground of enhancement is of long standing, and that, although there may not be one uniform rate for any class of land in a village, still the rents generally payable for any particular class do approximate more or less to a certain standard round which they may be regarded as oscillating under the influence of special disturbing causes. You should give a close examination to these considerations, and should state whether such abuses as those to which I have referred have reached any magnitude in your districts, and whether the abolition of the prevailing rate as a ground of enhancement would tell unfairly on zemindars. Your conclusions on the point should, if possible, be supported by practical instances of the hardships which now may be found to flow from the existence of the rule, or which would probably ensue from its abolition.

10. Then, as to the extent to which enhancement of rent may be had under the Bill as it stands, the changes proposed are of the most material importance. You will observe that the Bill provides for enhancement by suit in court, and by agreement under a registered contract out of court. In court, enhancements to the extent of 50 per cent. on the former rent may be had on the ground of the prevailing rate; to the extent of 25 per cent. on the ground of rise in prices or increase in productiveness due to fluvial action; and to an extent which shall not be "unfair or inequitable" on the ground of improvement effected by the landlord. The ground of natural increase in productiveness owing to indefinite causes has been omitted from the Bill, as general experience has shown it to be wholly unworkable in practice. The rent, if enhanced on any of the above grounds by a decree of court, is, by the Bill, made unalterable for 15 years. On the other hand, in case of agreements for enhancement made out of court, if the term be for seven years, not more than two annas in the rupee increase can be taken, while if the term be fixed for 15 years, the rent may be enhanced to the extent of four annas in the rupee, that is to say, to the full amount which can be obtained in court on the ground of rise in prices, which is practically the most important ground of enhancement.

On the broad question of enhancement out of court, it will not, of course, escape your observation that enhancements by private contract have frequently been obtained out of court of such a character as to preclude the belief that the ryots either were free agents or knew what they were doing in agreeing to them. On the other hand, it has been stated that the equalization of the limits of enhancement in and out of court tends to discourage litigation; and, as an abstract principle, any arrangement which would bring the parties together to settle such questions between themselves, without the intervention of the courts, would be a great gain. Having due regard to both aspects of the case, an expression of opinion is required whether enhancements should be allowed out of court, in cases of increased prices or fluvial action, to the same extent as in court, where the landlord's claim in all its bearings would be subjected to the closest examination under a judicial enquiry.

Generally, then, the Lieutenant-Governor hopes that your attention will be specially directed to the limitations on enhancement, and that you will carefully consider whether they are appropriate, or whether a more uniform proportion of increase is not desirable. The absence of a definite limit to enhancement on the ground of landlords' improvements is noteworthy, as is also the absence of any provision for deducting the increased cost of cultivation before an enhancement is decreed on the ground of a rise in prices. These are important questions (the latter especially so), and should be examined with careful scrutiny.

11. It only remains to bring prominently to notice one other point on this subject of enhancement of rent, namely, enhancement on re-letting [section 42 (1)]. You will observe that the provisions of Chapter VI place no limit on the rent which may be demanded from a non-occupancy ryot on his first admission to the holding, while the check imposed by section 60 (9) on enhancements demandable after admission seem to be of doubtful efficacy, as it might be held that, when the initial rent is fixed above the prevailing rate, the only limit to a future enhancement of it is the 50 per cent. prescribed by the section. I am later on to call your attention to the question of non-occupancy rents as a most important portion of the Bill; but in this connection I am to point out to you that, as the Bill now stands, and putting out of sight for the moment the interaction of one class of rents upon the other, the non occupancy ryot's rent may be raised to a much higher figure than the rent of the occupancy ryot can. This is, as far as the Lieutenant-Governor knows, a novel principle which it is now for the first time proposed to introduce into the land law of Bengal, and it is requested that you will very carefully consider it in all its bearings. It will also not escape your notice that by section 42 (1) this higher figure, with a still further addition of four annas in the rupee, can be made the initial rent which a settled ryot may be called on to pay for land which he desires to cultivate. It must be remembered that, through the operation of the pre-emption clauses of the Bill (if they are retained), and through the falling in of tenancies owing to ryots' deaths or desertions of their holdings, a very considerable quantity of ryoti land does yearly fall into the hands of landlords, who, under the provisions of this Bill, may deal with it in the first instance under Chapter VI, and let it to non-occupancy ryots at rates above the prevailing occupancy rate. These lands might subsequently be let to settled ryots of the estate or village at further enhanced rates, and so become occupancy lands, the enhanced rate payable for which would be available as evidence to raise the hitherto prevailing occupancy rate of the village. Having regard to all these points, the vast importance of the effect on the prevailing occupancy rate of section 42 (1), becomes at once apparent. The question then has to be decided whether it is requisite, in the interests of the landlords, just to the great body of occupancy ryots, or desirable in the general interests of the country, that the scale of occupancy rents should, over and above the grounds of enhancements specified in section 43, be also exposed to the disintegrating and enhancing effect which the provisions of section 42 (1) are calculated to produce. It will be observed that, under the Bill as it stands, there will be classes of occupancy lands at the old prevailing rates; classes of new occupancy lands at rates [framed under sections 42 (1) and 60 (9)] higher than the old prevailing rates; and classes of non-occupancy lands held at rates varying from, but mostly higher than, either of the above rates. The tendency in all these cases will be to level up rents to the highest point—a tendency which will be complicated by the restrictions on enhancement of rents of various classes of ryots holding these lands. Upon these facts you are requested to say, with reference to the circumstances of your division, whether there is any danger of intricate and costly litigation resulting from such a state of things as the Bill seems calculated to introduce. You will observe from paragraph 12 of their letter that the Government of India have doubts as to the dangerous effect of section 42 on occupancy rates; and that His Excellency the Governor-General in Council has expressed a desire for the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion as to whether the anticipated danger is real, and if so, in what way it might best be met. The Lieutenant-Governor has no doubt the danger is real, and that it cannot be met by concentrating attention on the occupancy ryot alone. This matter will be dealt with more fully under Chapter VI, relating to non-occupancy ryots.

12. In this connection also I am to call your special attention to the question of bastu (homestead) lands, or village sites, the terms on which such land are now held, and the extent (if any) to which such terms, if now different, should be assimilated to the conditions which regulate the tenure of ordinary arable land. Section 216 pre-supposes two cases as covering the whole ground occupied by the bastu question, (a) where bastu is an integral portion of the holding held by the ryot on no stronger or separate title, and subject to no separate conditions from those which attach to the holding as a whole; (b) where the bastu or site of the ryot's house is held on a tenure and subject to conditions different from that on which the arable land may be held. It is understood that the bastu question is affected by many and various local peculiarities, and the views provisionally accepted in regard to it by the Select Committee may be found incomplete and inaccurate. For instance, having regard to the fact that homestead lands are usually raised above flood-level, and otherwise improved at the ryot's sole expense, it may be a question whether they should not, in accordance with the spirit of section 43, be exempted from enhancement altogether It has been brought to the Lieutenant-Governor's notice that excessive enhancements of rates payable for homestead lands is the screw applied for raising rents in those districts where there is still waste land and a demand for tenants. The affection inherent in the ryot for his bari prevents his leaving an exacting landlord for one more lenient. And this power of the landlord over the ryot would be more marked if the arable portion of the holding consisted wholly or chiefly of land held on an utkundi or hal hasili tenure. These considerations will no doubt receive full attention from you; and as the importance of the question, and its relation to the well-being of the ryot, cannot be overrated, it is hoped you will spare no pains to give, in regard to it, the fullest information and the best advice you can. You are specially requested to state whether, in any of your districts, a custom prevails whereby a ryot, who is ejected from, or who otherwise parts with, his holding is entitled to retain possession of his homestead lands; and if so, on what conditions. In districts where butwaras are common, detailed information must be available regarding bastu, and from that source, and from information derivable from the Civil Courts, valuable facts may be ascertained. No portion of a Butwara Deputy Collector's work is more difficult, or contested by parties, than the apportionment of bastu (unless, indeed, it be the apportionment of khamar or sir), thus showing the importance attached by both landlord and ryot to the command of the village site. It may be added that the bastu question, in the case of non-occupancy ryots, is only second in importance to the question as it affects the ryots with right of occupancy, because the latter are more numerous than the former. This remark seems called for, as, from paragraph 2 (4) of the Government of India's letter, it might be inferred (the Lieutenant-Governor does not think it was intended that it should be inferred) that in regard to non-occupancy ryots, the bastu question was immaterial.

13. Passing on to the provisions for reduction of rent by suit in court, the Lieutenant-Governor desires to ask your attention to the concluding portion of section 51 (a). As Mr. Rivers Thompson reads that portion of the section, the deterioration in the land which would justify a reduction in rent must be the result of some incident admitting of precise definition as to time of occurrence and as to manner of operation. You are requested to examine, with reference to the actual facts existing in your division, whether that statement would cover all cases, or whether it may not happen that deterioration of the soil, disabling it from paying a certain sum as rent may not, as in the case of the efflorescence of reh, be brought about imperceptibly by causes of which the origin and the action cannot, with any accuracy, be predicated. A reference, too, is requested to the remarks contained in the 14th paragraph of the letter of the Government of India, and paragraph 44 of the Select Committee's Report, in regard to the commutation of grain rents to money rents (section 53). The Lieutenant-Governor desires only here to invite your attention to the provisions of section 64 (3), and would ask you to consider whether, with regard to the 20 years' presumption of clause (2), a fixed proportion of the crop can be fairly considered, having regard to the rise and fall of price, as the natural and equivalent antecedent of a money rent invariable over a term of years.

14. As regards price-lists (section 52), the chief matters for your consideration are whether the prices-current for local markets (of which the sub-divisional prices-current are understood to be the averages, just as the district price-current lists are the averages of the sub-divisional lists) have been preserved in the district or sub-divisional record offices for, say, a period of 15 years. If so, I am to enquire whether the correctness of these lists can be verified, and, when necessary, corrected by comparison with the books of grain-dealers in the markets to which the lists refer. If this cannot be done for local markets, can it be done for the markets situated at the head-quarters of sub-divisions? Lists showing the prices prevailing at the district head quarters alone, or the averages of local prices, do not furnish the information as to prices prevailing at harvest time which the Bill contemplates. If the local price-lists have not been preserved, then it should be stated, after local enquiry (which should be made in the most thorough manner and by the most trustworthy agency at your disposal), whether it is possible to ascertain and construct from the records of grain-merchants, bazar chowdrys, &c., a correct list of the prices of the staple food-crops of your district for the last 15 years. In order to guide your enquiries on this point, I am to attach a statement showing, according to recent information, what food-crops may be considered staples in each district. Should this statement, on examination, seem to you in any way defective, either as to the sort of grain produced, or its relative proportion to other grain crops grown in the district, you are requested to introduce the necessary corrections into the statement and return it to this office with your report.

15. Turning from the preparation of price-lists to the method of using them for the purpose of enhancement suits, I am to call your attention to section 45 of the Bill, and to the remarks of the Select Committee in paragraphs 33 and 34 of their Report. The Government of India also deals with the subject in the 13th paragraph of its letter. The primary points for consideration are whether enhancements can be fairly allowed in direct proportion to the rise in price, or whether it is not essential that some allowance should be made for the increased cost of production which usually attends a general rise in prices, and whether, if you think this should be done, any distinction as to extent of deduction should be drawn between remote districts unconnected by railways, &c., with large markets, and districts enjoying good communications. It would greatly help the Government if the effect of the proposals could be illustrated by examples from actual practice.

It has been suggested that possibly the regulation of rents, with reference to the prices of staple food-grains alone, would tell unfairly against landlords, who might thus be debarred from sharing in the increased profit arising from the cultivation of such crops as jute. The figures, however, representing the course of the jute market at Serajgunge for the last 15 years, which are appended to this letter, would seem to show that landlords have nothing to expect in the way of enhancement by including jute in the list of crops to which appeal might be made. It is, however, alleged to be the fact in the eastern districts that jute and rice are often interchangeable crops, being sown in the same sort of soil. When rice stocks are large, it is said that more land is sown with jute; when rice stocks are short, the cultivation of jute is contracted in favour of rice. Thus it would happen that when rice is cheap, jute is dear, and vice versâ. If such a connection as this were proved to exist between jute and rice cultivation, then, indeed, a stronger case than now exists might possibly be made out for appealing to jute prices as a standard of rent as well as to the prices of rice or of dhan. To this point your attention. is requested if jute be a staple in your division. The Lieutenant-Governor is not aware that such a question arises in case of any other crop. No other non-food crop, not even sugarcane, seems to vary as to area of cultivation with the prices of the staple food-grain; but should such a state of things prevail in your division, you are requested to report on it.

16. Chapter VI—Applies exclusively to non-occupancy ryots. You will at once observe that its contents differ radically from the provisions of the Bill as introduced into Council, and if the provisions of the first draft told too severely against the landlords, it is open to question now whether the chapter as it stands does not err on the other side. When the Bill was first under consideration last year, Mr. Rivers Thompson objected to different maxima being imposed on the rents of occupancy and non-occupancy ryots, and he refers now to the remarks he then made because, although the maxima limits on rents have been withdrawn, the fundamental difference to which he then objected is still retained. In paragraph 20 of the letter of the 27th September, the Lieutenant-Governor wrote as follows:—

> If the one-fifth, or 20 per cent. limit, be justifiable as regards occupancy ryots, the question remains—Is five-sixteenths or 31¼ per cent. of the produce fair as regards the non-occupancy ryot? On this point I am to suggest, for the consideration of the Council, whether the provisions of section 119 of the Bill, as far as they refer to what is there called the "ordinary" ryot, do not introduce an unconstitutional and dangerous principle into the law of Bengal. In the statement made by the Hon'ble Mr. Reynolds in his speech in Council, to the effect that it is not, and never has been, the law of Bengal that an occupancy ryot should hold at privileged rates, the Lieutenant-Governor concurs; and it therefore becomes a matter for consideration whether, if the one-fifth limit be fair for ryots with occupancy rights, five-sixteenths is not unfair for ryots without them. The origin of the provision as it stands is probably due to Sir Richard Temple's effort to fix occupancy rates with reference to competition rates, by giving the occupancy ryot a beneficial deduction on such rates. But the enquiries which were made in connection with that proposal showed that competition rates hardly existed, and that custom, not competition, ruled the rents of occupancy and non-occupancy ryot alike, unless where considerations of caste intervene. Recent enquiries point to the same conclusion, and it is therefore, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, a matter of doubtful expediency that a novel principle should now be introduced into the law of these Provinces, which, besides, would be calculated to lead to general enhancements of rent, which it is the avowed object of the Government to avoid. It must not be forgotten that if we call into existence two classes of occupancy ryots—one holding at higher rates than the other (and this would be the effect of sections 79, 95, and 119 of the Bill combined)—the tendency will be towards an equalization of rates at the higher level. As at present advised, Mr. Rivers Thompson thinks that this is a danger which we should not run the risk of incurring, and that, if a rack-rent limit is to be preserved in the Bill at all, it should be the same for both occupancy and non-occupancy ryots. He has no objection to five-sixteenths of the produce in the case of under-tenants (khurfas) who can never acquire occupancy rights; but he thinks that there is great danger to the cultivating classes in the provision of a separate limit for occupancy and non-occupancy ryots. Separate limits are tantamount to a premium on the discouragement of fixity of tenure.

From this passage you will perceive that the equality of occupancy and non-occupancy rates was defended as well on the ground of constitutional principle as of practical expediency. It was proposed as a substitute for different maxima limits on rent; but in the Bill as now drafted, neither the principle of limiting rents to one-fifth portion of the produce, nor the principle of equality of rates, finds a place. The Government of India (paragraph 15 of their letter) have now expressed a wish to learn the views of the Government of Bengal before coming to a final conclusion in the matter, which cannot be dissociated from the question of occupancy rates referred to in paragraph 11 of this letter.

It is admitted on all hands that the status of the non-occupancy ryot needs improvement, and in point of fact the question for you to advise upon is whether this chapter effects any improvement in it, or whether, having regard to the substitution of the novel English lease limiting the term of the tenancy, for the customary Indian pottah, which only prescribes its conditions, the chapter does not place the non-occupancy ryot in a worse position than he is under the present law. It is true that the initial lease will apply to new tenancies only; but having regard to actual experience, it is to be feared that most, if not all, non-occupancy ryots may have to relinquish and re-enter under a lease. Moreover under the existing law a landlord need not, and it is understood that usually he does not, take any steps to bar the acquisition of the occupancy right till the tenth or eleventh year of the holding. Under the provisions of the present Bill, short leases will probably become the rule, and ejectment will be sued for at the close of the fifth or sixth year of the ryot's tenancy if the landlord would neutralize the effect which the concession of the statutory lease under section 60 (7) might have on the ryot's tenure of the land. It is unnecessary to dwell at any length on the evil effects which such a condition of things would inevitably produce. It is an established fact that, especially in Behar and in Eastern Bengal, landlords do systematically oppose by all means in their power the growth of occupancy rights. It will be for you now to say, with reference to the facts of your division, whether the provisions of the Bill to which I have now drawn your attention are calculated to intensify or to remove the difficulties which are interposed to prevent the acquisition of the occupancy right, whose growth it is the policy of Government to facilitate, having due regard to the just interests of the landlords.

17. Chapter VII.—The subject of this chapter has already been to some extent discussed, and here the only point in connection with it, to which the Lieutenant-Governor desires to call attention, is the question whether the limitation of under-ryots' rents would be fair, say to ryots holding at low fixed rates, or whether such a limitation would be effective in practice. With reference to this question you will, of course, have regard to the provisions of section 37, which, if accepted by you as workable, would no doubt have an important effect in checking rack-renting. If, in your opinion, the limitations in the Bill are likely to prove unfair in certain cases, or impracticable, then you are requested to state whether you consider any limitations at all on under-ryots' rents desirable, and if so, the lines which such limitations should follow. Your attention is also drawn to section 38 of the Bill, and your opinion on the propriety of the limit thereby imposed on the terms of leases to under-ryots requested. The point to be considered is—would such a limitation have any effect in checking the practice of subletting ?

18. Chapter VIII.—As your attention has already been called to the questions of the 20 years' presumption, and the proposal to accept grain rents as the equivalent antecedent of the commuted money-rent with reference to that presumption, the Lieutenant-Governor will not again refer to those questions here. Nor does he think that any other provisions of the chapter, except those mentioned in paragraph 17 of the letter of the Government of India, need be brought to your notice with special prominence. The remarks of the Government of India regarding the sufficiency and propriety of the provisions of the chapter on the subject of baouli rents in South Behar should receive special attention from the Collectors of Gya, Shahabad, and Patna, as should the adequacy of the forms of receipt and account in Schedule III of the Bill from all Collectors.

19. Chapter IX.—The provisions regarding improvements may not appear at the present moment to be of much practical utility, but there is reason to hope that in the future they will be found valuable. The Lieutenant-Governor, therefore, wishes you to consider whether they are such as are likely to be found generally workable, and he specially requests your opinion whether, without any infringement on the landlords' rights, and with advantage to the ryot and the general interests of the country, the right of constructing a well is one to which the non-occupancy ryot should be declared entitled (see section 90). The point is perhaps of more importance in Behar than in Bengal Proper, where well irrigation is not so general or necessary; but in Behar, and should the Act be subsequently extended to Chota Nagpore, in the latter division, the question is one of great and growing importance. In this connection you might conveniently enquire into the question raised in clause (1), paragraph 2 of the letter of the Government of India. In regard to it the opinion of Collectors of Canal Districts and of Irrigation Officers, and of non-officials who use canal water on a large scale, such as the Sarun indigo planters and Messrs. Mylne and Thomson of Behea, would be valuable.

20. The Government of India call attention, in paragraph 18 of their letter, to section 96, dealing with abandonment of holdings, and the Lieutenant-Governor also requests you to consider, with reference to local facts, whether the section as it stands exposes the occupancy or non-occupancy ryot to a material danger of having actual rights, no longer capable of invalidation by the landlord, destroyed, or the further growth of inchoate rights suppressed. The question should be considered in connection with the subject of enhancements to which your attention has been called in paragraphs 11 and 16 of this letter; for the danger is that these provisions as to abandonment may be abused in order that land may be cleared of old ryots and enhanced rates imposed on new-comers. If the difficulties pointed out in paragraphs 11 and 16 above can be satisfactorily solved, the solution would have an effect on the abandonment question also by removing the apprehended danger. That a real danger is, however, apprehended, there can be no doubt. Authentic information is before the Government of cases in which landlords have expelled ryots from their holdings without any legal formalities whatever, and introduced new ryots at higher rents. By such an exercise of power the landlord may no doubt become amenable to criminal penalties; but the ryot, once ejected from his holding, is not always able or willing to seek redress. Should then no satisfactory solution regarding the equalization of occupancy and non-occupancy rates present itself to you with reference to paragraphs 11 and 16 above, the question the Lieutenant-Governor would ask you to consider is whether the provisions of section 96 are calculated to promote the exercise of arbitrary power on the part of landlords or not. Should your judgment be in the affirmative, it is hoped you may be able to suggest some means of reconciling the interests of the landlord and the ryot on the question. It has been suggested that in case of an occupancy holding, which is a valuable right, the interest of the presumed deserter should be sold; but to that suggestion objection has been taken in the landlords' interests. The point, however, is still open to discussion, and Mr. Rivers Thompson will be glad to have an opinion upon it.

21. With regard to the provisions for measurement of lands, you will observe that the landlord's right to measure all lands within his estate is affirmed. The present law does not allow him to measure lakhiraj lands, and a report is required whether, assuming that you generally approve of the provisions on this point contained in the present Bill, it is advisable that the measurement of lakhiraj holdings should extend to a survey of internal details, or only of external boundaries. You are also requested to state whether you think any inconvenience is likely to result from the provisions of section 101, declaring that the actual measurement shall be made not by the local, but by the English system of mensuration. To this provision it has been objected that parties interested in the measurements would be unable to watch or follow the amin, who would accordingly be freed from the check on his proceedings, which publicity even now does not always make effective. Therefore suspicion and dissatisfaction would, it is suggested, attend his proceedings even when not open to reproach. The question then is, should the measurement be made according to the officially determined local pole, conversion into English measure being subsequently had, if necessary; or should the process be reversed.

22. With regard to the appointment of managers, as the landlords apprehend much difficulty and friction from the provisions contained in section 102 of the Bill, the matter should again receive your careful attention. There fear is that the manager would too often act detrimentally to the interests of the proprietors, while he would seek to enrich himself at the expense of proprietors and ryots alike. This aspect of the case is not a new one, but it claims reconsideration with regard to the difficulties which now very frequently arise from shareholders' disputes.

23. Chapter X.—To the provisions regarding the record of rights and the settlement of rents, the Lieutenant-Governor attaches the highest importance, because it is the first earnest attempt to carry out what has ofte plated, but never attempted, viz. to record by authoritative en in their holdings of the entire agricultural community in Ben posal is one of very great magnitude, and its execution must long period of years, but to its successful accomplishment alone c the great administrative advantages which must ensue in the cultivating classes in their possessions, and the establishment of p generally between landlords and tenants. The Lieutenant-Gove requests that, with the observations upon them, contained in par 77 of the Select Committee's Report, and in paragraphs 19 to 21 the Government of India, the sections of this chapter may be carefu by you and by your Collectors, both with reference to the facts t the adequacy of the powers taken for the purpose of ascertaining them, and the appropriateness of the procedure for the object in v invites your attention to section 116 (2), and begs that you careful opinion as to whether it is desirable that only a presu light of publicity, and with ample opportunity to the parties contest them; or whether it is to the general interest that the fa tained (and if not all, then what facts) should be regarded as established for a certain specified period.

24. Chapters XI and XII.—To the points under these chapters Government of India draw attention in paragraphs 22 and 23 of Lieutenant-Governor desires only to add a hope that you will, wit the circumstances of your division, carefully consider whether ther ence any land, other than the land defined in section 138 (1), which recognized as not of a character in which the cultivator can ordin the right of occupancy.

25. Chapter XIII.—Coming now to the important subject you will observe that, in the opinion of the Government of India from which the Lieutenant-Governor is not now disposed to dissent tion lies between the retention of distraint as it exists under the (with perhaps sharper penalties in case of abuse) and distrai through the courts in the way prescribed by the Bill. It is landlords that the right of distraint, though not always exercised, to the recovery of their rents, especially in the case of non-occu in border districts or on chur lands; while, on the other land, i doubt that the right of distraint (as it now exists) has been greatly the object of enhancing rents, or of recovering legally irrecoverabl may well be, as experience has in some instances proved, that t the right of distraint is within the power of the executive and the Lieutenant-Governor himself thinks that there is a in the statement that "in the case of an improvident peasantry against the crop is a more humane process than a remedy against All these and other considerations which your experience must doubtless be weighed by you, and Mr. Rivers Thompson trus subject to which your attention has in all probability been speciall by recent discussions, you will be able to give practical advice.

26. Chapters XIV and XV.—The procedure in suits and in ex down in the Bill are subjects on which the Hon'ble Judges of the have been invited to advise the Government of India, and o
Lieutenant-Governor may find it necessary to consult mofuss officers. Still the views of executive officers are very desirable, on sections 163, 164, 168, 171, 175, 177, 185 and 186, and I am acc request that you will take the chapters, and especially the sections into your consideration, and communicate to the Lieutenant-Gov opinions regarding them. As the Chota Nagpore Landlord and [1 (B.C.) of 1879, section 39] provides for suits against ryots collect as it is the desire of the zemindars that a similar provision should be into this Bill, the authorities in that division will again be cal report what has been in practice the effect of such a provision in Chot

27. Chapter XVI.—This chapter reproduces the regulation law of patni tenures, with only such modernization of language and su provements in procedure as experience had shown to be necessary. The Lieutenant-Governor is not aware that these provisions are open to any objection, but if you are of a contrary opinion, you are requested to state the grounds of it.

28. With reference to section 209, I am to refer you to paragraph 14, page 17 of my letter No 972T—R of 27th September, to the Government of India, and to request that, if you have any views as to the direction which legislation on the subject of the registration of tenures should take, whether on the lines of Act VII (B.C.) of 1876 or otherwise, you will be good enough to favour the Lieutenant-Governor with an expression of them.

29. Chapter XVII.—The questions raised in this chapter regarding homestead lands have been referred for your consideration in an earlier part of this letter, and need not be again alluded to. The utbandi and hal hasili system will be referred to later on, and therefore in this connection all that you need discuss are the provisions regarding chur and deara lands. I am also to ask that, having carefully examined the provisions of section 210, you will state whether you agree that freedom of contract should be barred in all the cases specified, or whether you think that there are other cases also, not mentioned in the section, to which the prohibition should be extended, or whether you think that, in some of the cases specified (stating which), freedom of contract might be allowed.

30. The remaining chapters of the Bill call for no particular remarks, except as regards section 227, chapter XIX. It is requested that, having assured yourself as to the custom prevalent in each district of your division regarding pasturage, you should state whether, in your opinion, the requirements of the case are sufficiently met by section 227, and if not, what you would propose in order to meet them.

31. The observations which have now been made are intended to draw your attention to the main points of the measure, which are still open to discussion, in the order in which they occur in the Bill. They are not intended as an exhaustive enumeration of the sections on which you are at liberty to comment, but rather as an aid in a work which the Lieutenant-Governor fears you may, amid your many other duties, find onerous, and as supplementary to the remarks of the Government of India and the Select Committee. The questions raised in the initial paragraphs of the Government of India's letter remain to be noticed. Regarding the questions raised in paragraph 4, I am to say that the Lieutenant-Governor will not trouble you, for they are questions which can be adequately discussed by him in communication with the Board of Revenue alone; while to some of the points specified in paragraph 2, namely the acquisition of land for landlords' irrigation channels, the accuracy of price-lists, the possibility of framing a system of enhancement on them, and the legislation necessary in regard to homestead lands, your attention has already been drawn. The points in paragraph 2 of the Government of India's letter which demand consideration are those numbered 2, 3, 5 and 6. In regard to point (2), the first thing to do is to ascertain whether the district records give any information regarding the existence in your division of dependent taluks of the kind in question. If from your records any such are found to exist, or if, from sources independent of your official records, authentic information as to their existence is furnished, it will then be necessary to consider whether any inconvenience has been experienced by zemindars from the present practice; and even then whether, having regard to the small proportion which the revenue fixed at the time of the settlement on such taluks presumably bears to their present value, it is desirable to subject them to the summary sale procedure provided by the Bill, or to some less drastic measure. It might also be considered whether the objects which the landlords have in view might not, in the case of the larger taluks at all events, be got over by regarding them henceforward as independent taluks liable to pay revenue to Government direct.

32. With regard to point (3), observations to some extent of a similar character apply. The tenures in question are so valuable, and the arrears due are usually so small and so well secured, that it will be well to ascertain whether the inducement to abstain from even demanding arrears from such tenure-holders, in order that through default their tenures might come into the market, might not create an evil of greater magnitude than any temporary inconvenience which may now result from the existing state of things. These remarks are offered with the object of suggesting, for your consideration, certain aspects of the case which strike the Lieutenant-Governor as worthy of being examined. Any suggestions you make for mitigating the difficulties complained of by the landlords will meet with Mr. Rivers Thompson's careful attention.

33. In regard to point (5), I am to say that the information before Government as to the precise nature of the utbundi and hal hasili system is not as full or precise as could be wished, and accordingly you are requested to give a clear description of the tenures in question, if any such exist in your division, with their incidents, and a statement of the reasons why the ordinary incidents of ryoti land should not apply to them. Accounts of these tenures are, no doubt, contained in the Statistical Account of Nuddea, and in Administration Reports or official memoranda. References to them are also to be found in various law reports; but, for the purpose in hand, it is desirable that these accounts and reports should now be examined, their defects (if any) supplied, and the result communicated to Government in concise but adequate form. At the same time you are requested to state whether, if tenures known as utbundi or hal hasili do not exist, any other tenures, bearing the generally known attributes of such, are to be found, and if so, how you would treat them with reference to the matter in hand. The reference to Chittagong is one which will be considered in communication with the Board of Revenue, as well as in communication with the Commissioner, as the character of land tenures in that division have recently formed the subject of exhaustive discussions between the Board and Government.

34. With reference to point (6), it will have been observed that the pre-emption sections of the Bill apply only to occupancy rights; but there are in existence, in various portions of Bengal, certain holdings which lie on the border land between clearly defined tenures and cultivating occupancy rights. Such are the gusasta holdings in Shahabad, the gorabundi holdings in Bhagulpore, the jotes of Rungpore, and the howalas of the deltaic districts. These holdings have admittedly been transferable by custom for generations, without any right of pre-emption being reserved to the landlord, and it is felt that to subject them now to the landlord's right of pre-emption would depreciate the value of the property to the owner, and possibly lead to inconveniences which it is desirable to avoid. The question then is, can all such semi-tenures, which it is not desirable to subject to the right of pre-emption, be enumerated in the Bill, and thus excluded specifically from the pre-emption clauses, or are such holdings so numerous as to class and so ill-defined that the just interests of their owners can only be protected by such a clause as section 217, which saves custom.

35. In conclusion, I am to express the Lieutenant-Governor's earnest hope that you will make sure of your report reaching this office not later than the 14th August next.

CALCUTTA,
The 26th May 1884.

Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of Bengal

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL DURING THE WEEK ENDING 23RD MAY 1884.

THE most important feature in the meteorology of the past week was the occurrence of a cyclone in the east of the Bay. It was noted in last week's report that the south-west monsoon had burst in Ceylon. Apparently the strong current advanced up the east of the Bay and gave heavy rain in Burmah. A whirl was established in the front of the advancing current to the west or north-west of the Andamans on the 15th. It advanced northwards on the 16th and 17th, and developed rapidly into a severe cyclone. Like all cyclones in the Bay of rapid formation, the extent or area covered by the cyclonic disturbance was not large. It crossed the Arracan coast near Akyab late on the evening of the 17th, and caused great destruction of property. As usually happens during the prevalence of cyclones in the Bay, the winds fell off in strength in Bengal, and little or no rain occurred in any part of the Province. After the cyclone disappeared, occasional rain-showers were received chiefly in East and North Bengal. During the latter half of the week the atmospheric conditions were those which usually obtain before the commencement of the south-west monsoon.

Pressure.—The cyclonic disturbance off the Arracan and Burmese coasts caused a very considerable fall of the barometer on the 16th and 17th, greatest in amount in East Bengal and least in Behar. This was followed by an equally rapid rise on the 18th and 19th, after which the changes of pressure were small, and due to the ordinary oscillatory actions always in operation in India. The average pressure of the week is below the normal of the period over the whole Province. The deficiency averages ·04″ in East and South-West Bengal and Orissa, where it was greatest, ·03″ in South Behar and Chutia Nagpur, and ·02″ in North Behar, where it was smallest.

Temperature—Has been excessive over the greater part of the Province. The mean temperature was from 1° to 3° above the normal in Behar and Chutia Nagpur and Orissa. The variations in Bengal depend upon the amount of the rainfall. In those parts of South-West and East Bengal, represented by Berhampore and Chittagong, the mean temperature was from 1½° to nearly 3° below the normal. The hottest part of India, during the week, was the eastern districts of the North-West Provinces and the adjacent portions of Central India. Hence high maximum temperatures were recorded at the western stations in South Behar, where westerly winds generally prevailed during the week. The following were the highest:—

Dehree	...	...	...	111·0°	on the 23rd.
Bankipore	...	...	...	110·1°	„ 23rd.
Arrah	...	...	...	109·4°	„ 23rd.
Gya	...	...	...	109 2°	„ 20th.
Chyebassa	...	...	...	109·0°	„ 23rd.

Winds—Were normal in direction in Bengal and Orissa. They were unsteady and variable in South and Central Behar and Chutia Nagpur, alternating between west and east according to the relative strengths of the dry land winds of the Upper Gangetic plain and the moist sea winds in Bengal.

Humidity.—The humidity of the air in Bengal has differed little from the average. It has varied within wide limits in Behar and Chutia Nagpur in consequence of easterly and westerly winds alternating during the week. The 21st was a very dry day in South Behar. The following humidities were observed at 10 A.M. of that day:—

Gya ...	...	...	...	...	6	per cent.
Dehree ...	...	...	...	...	8	„
Arrah ...	...	...	...	...	10	„
Hazaribagh	...	...	..	...	10	„

Rainfall.—The rainfall of the past week has been below the average in every part of the Province. Moderate rain was registered on the 17th in North Bengal. The next two days formed a dry period over nearly the whole Province, a few showers occurring only in East Bengal, and in the western districts of South-West Bengal. Shortly after the breaking up of the cyclonic vortex in Arracan, rain again fell in East and North Bengal, where moderate amounts were registered on the 20th and 21st. Little or no rain occurred on the remaining two days of the week, except in the Cooch Behar and Julpigoree districts. The only districts in which rainfall above the average was received were the Chittagong, Noakholly, Rajshahye, Julpigoree and Cooch Behar districts. The deficiency was small in North and East Bengal, where the average amount received was 90 per cent. of the normal. In South-West Bengal and Behar the amount received during the week was only 30 per cent. of the average, whilst in Chutia Nagpur and Orissa no rain was registered. During the present month up to date, East and North Bengal have received abundant rainfall. In South-West Bengal and North Behar rainfall has been slightly above the average, and in South Behar, Chutia Nagpur, and Orissa below it by small amounts. The deficiency is most marked in Orissa, and the Darjeeling hill districts.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending the 23rd May 1884 :—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86 formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

Meteorological Office, India, John Eliot,

The 26th May 1884. For Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of India.

MEMORANDA.

THE birth and death returns of the first class Municipalities in Bengal, for the week ending 10th May 1884, present the following results :—

(1) That the mean birth and death-rates stood respectively at 18·2 and 40 1 per 1,000 of population as opposed to 19·3 and 44·6 per 1,000, respectively, in the preceding week ending 3rd May, indicating a falling off in the registration of both events, especially of deaths.

(2) The following Municipalities furnished the highest proportions of births and deaths :—

Births.	Ratio per mille.	Deaths.	Ratio per mille.
Serampore	49·1	Bhagulpore	107·7

showing that, in comparison with the preceding week, there occurred a sensible decline of mortality from cholera, and those diseases recorded under the head of "Other causes," particularly from the first-named disease, with an increase in that from fever, the other diseases exhibiting fractional variations only.

(4) That while the casualties from violence were not noticeably severe anywhere, the rest of the diseases exhibited their greatest activity in the following Municipalities :—

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken, as the census of this section of the community taken in February 1881 was not reliable, owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as before, as it was not necessary to re-census them. The ratios have consequently been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted, inasmuch as the census of the Europeans above alluded to cannot be employed as a basis of calculation owing to the results of the census under this head not having been recorded under the authorized form of age classification.

GENERAL REMARKS AND EXPLANATIONS

Out of the 12 heads under which the total traffic of the line is classed and shown, there is an increase under 6, and a decrease under 6 heads respectively in comparison with last April's working results. The decreases are contributed by Gunny-bags, Jute, Miscellaneous, Railway material, Sugar, and Tobacco. In this latter staple the falling off is considerable (767·54 tons) and is entirely due to the absence of demand and the low prices offering. The increases are in Ale, Food-grain, Ginger, Piece-goods, Salt, and Tea. The total quantity lifted during the month is 13,434·97 tons. The quantity lifted in April 1883 was 16,309·91 tons, so that a decrease of 2,874·94 tons has to be recorded.

Increases.

Ale ... ... Tons 4·96

This increase is hardly worthy of notice.

Food-grain ... ... Tons 511·45

Paddy and seeds have principally contributed to this increase. The despatches in rice are 361·17 tons better than last month's traffic. If prices will only keep firm a fair traffic under all these heads may be done.

Ginger ... ... Tons 351·01

A sudden demand and fair prices have resulted in every available maund of this article being bought up and sent forward.

Piece-goods ... ... Tons 164·36

Before the rains set in an increase under this head is always expected.

Salt ... ... Tons 261·24

The price for salt still continues moderate in the Calcutta markets. This added to a reduced rate for carriage is naturally having the required effect.

Tea ... ... Tons 59·84

Consignments of the new crop are commencing to come forward.

Decreases.

Gunny-bags ... ... Tons 419·31

At some of our principal stations the manufacture of hand-made gunnies has ceased for the present, to revive, it is hoped, with the approaching jute season. The market continues dull and prices nominal.

Jute ... . Tons 1,566 51

This decrease is very much smaller than those recorded for January, February and March. During the month prices rose from 1 to 2 annas higher, and holders of stock availed themselves of the opportunity to clear. The market has, however, since declined.

Miscellaneous ... ... Tons 144·46

This decrease can only be accounted for by fluctuations of traffic.

Railway material ... ... Tons 1,312·12

The completion of the line to Dinagepore will explain this falling off.

Sugar ... . Tons 17·86

I can find no record of any transactions in this staple in the Calcutta market.

Tobacco ... ... Tons 767 54

An absence of demand and low prices have affected despatches seriously.

Increase in the number of Junior and Middle Scholarships to be awarded at the Examinations of 1885.

THE University has altered the time of holding the Entrance Examination from December to April, and the sessions of colleges will henceforward begin in June instead of in January. The time of holding the middle scholarship examinations has also been altered from October to March, and high schools, in which those scholarships are tenable, will henceforward re-open in June. These changes make it probable that a much larger number of candidates than usual will present themselves at the Entrance and middle examinations of 1885, including many who would otherwise have waited for the examinations next following. The Government of Bengal has consequently sanctioned a proposal to increase the number of junior scholarships to be awarded at the Entrance examination of 1885 by one-third and the number of middle scholarships by one-half. These scholarships, and all awarded in subsequent years, will, as hitherto, be tenable for 24 months; but the stipend will henceforward be payable from the beginning of the session, generally in June.

2. The present holders of junior scholarships will be allowed to read free of tuition fees for the time that will elapse between the expiration of their scholarships and the close of the extended session. The free-scholarships awarded to middle scholars after the expiry of their stipends will be similarly extended.

Insert the following as a foot-note to this Section :—

In paragraph 4 of the Home Department Resolution No 24—885-96, dated the 6th July 1883, the Government of India intimated to Local Governments and Administrations that the Secretary of State had approved of the principle to which attention was drawn in paragraph 7 of the Resolution* of the 7th September 1882, of imposing a check on the abuse of the Civil Furlough Rules by recurring grants of furlough on medical certificate, and that the best mode of effecting that object was still under consideration.

* No. $\frac{33}{1343\text{-}1354}$.

2. The Secretary of State has now decided that the Civil Furlough Rules, as they stand, appear to make sufficient provision against their frequent or general abuse, and that any present formal modification of those rules is therefore unnecessary. Officers at home on medical leave will not be permitted to return to duty without a medical certificate of fitness for duty in India. At the same time His Lordship expresses his readiness to reconsider the subject should further experience show that more stringent precautions against abuse of the rules are necessary, and is of opinion that the matter might be brought by circular to the notice of Local Governments and Heads of Departments. It is pointed out that to grant leave on urgent private affairs in consideration of the state of an officer's health is not in accordance with the spirit of the Rules. When an officer applies for repeated grants of medical leave within short intervals, the attention of the Medical Board should be drawn to his case with a view to their carefully considering the term of absence necessary for his complete recovery.

3. I am to request that in future these directions may be borne in mind. Section 4 of the Civil Leave Code gives the Local Government ample powers for regulating the grant of leave of every description.—[Circular in the Home Department, No. 22 (Public), dated 16*th May* 1884.]

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE GOVERNMENT CINCHONA PLANTATION IN BENGAL AND THE ANNUAL REPORT OF THE QUINOLOGIST FOR THE YEAR 1883-84.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT—AGRICULTURE.

Darjeeling, the 30th May 1884.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

The Annual Report of the Government Cinchona Plantation in Bengal for the year 1883-84, and the Annual Report of the Quinologist for the same year.

A considerable change was effected during the year in the proportions of the different species of cinchona under cultivation. In the plantations at Mungpoo and Sittong, some 232,200 red bark trees were uprooted, and these were replaced chiefly by the yellow bark variety. The new plantation at Rungjung was also planted out with 42,200 trees of this variety. This reform has been introduced at the instance of the Home Government, the Secretary of State being desirous of extending the cultivation of the Calisaya Ledgeriana species, which is far richer in quinine than the red bark variety. The total number of yellow barks planted was 214,720, and these were either Ledgerianas from plantation seed, or Verdes and Moradas from South America. The latter plants were raised from seed which had been supplied in the preceding year by the Secretary of State. The seed germinated freely enough, but a considerable number of the seedlings died when they were hardly half an inch in height; while the weaker surviving plants succumbed to the effects of the winter, which was unusually severe. The remaining plants look healthy and promise to be good quinine-yielders.

2. In the Resolution recorded upon the proceedings of last year, analyses were given of barks of eight forms of the hybrid variety. During the year under review, barks of two more of these were analysed. The results obtained from all the ten hybrids are shewn in the following table:—

	No. 1.	No. 2.	No. 3.	No. 4.	No. 5.	No. 6.	No 7.	No. 8.	No. 9.	No 10.
Crystallised sulphate of quinine	2·87	1·48	1·88	0·97	2 12	2·04	6·12	3·09	3·12	3 24
Crystallised sulphate of cinchonidine	2 94	2 85	2·93	1 94	2 84	2·26	2·46	3 33	1·21	2 46
Crystallised sulphate of quinidine .. .	traces.	traces	traces.	traces.	traces	traces	traces	traces.	0 30	..
Cinchonine (alkaloid)	0 72	0 57	0 52	0·80	0·35	0 68	0 55	0 57	0 71	0 52

Most of these are excellent barks, and the trees producing them are, as the Superintendent remarks, well worthy of cultivation.

3. The total number of cinchona trees of all sorts at the close of the year was 4,740,811, namely red (Cinchona Succirubra) 3,532,000, yellow (Calisaya Ledgeriana) 854,218, yellow (Calisaya, Verde and Morada) 8,500, hybrid unnamed variety 320,500, and other kinds 25,593 The total number planted in the preceding year was 4,711,168.

4. The entire produce of the plantations for the year was 305,160lbs. of dry bark. Of this, 283,240lbs. were of red, 14,320lbs. of Calisaya, 5,490lbs. of hybrid, and 2,110lbs. of Officinalis bark. The Sittong Plantation may now be considered to have come into bearing, a sixth part of the total crop having been obtained from it. With the exception of 100lbs. supplied to the Calcutta Medical Depôt and 31½lbs. sold to the public, the entire produce was made over to the Febrifuge Factory for disposal.

5. The total expenditure on the Plantations amounted to Rs. 78,660, against the budget allotment of Rs 93,605. Of this expenditure, Rs. 12,527 was incurred on the young plantation at Rungjung, and this sum is chargeable to capital account. The balance, amounting to Rs 66,133, was spent on the old plantations at Rungbee, Mungpoo and Sittong. The expenditure at Sittong, which was formerly charged to block account, has, now that the plantation has commenced to yield a crop, been charged as working expenses in the same manner as the expenditure on the Rungbee and Mungpoo plantations is treated.

6. Judging from the results of the experiments made for several years past to grow on the plantations the plants yielding the Carthagena bark, it is established, almost beyond doubt, that the plant is unsuited to the climate of Sikkim. The bark, however, is not so valuable as that of the Ledgeriana, or the hybrid variety grown on the plantations. In the last year's Resolution, reference was made to the Remija plant, which produces a quinine-yielding bark under the name of Cuprea, and it was stated that this bark formed a very large proportion of the quantity of quinine bark imported into Europe. Dr. King has hitherto succeeded in getting only two packets of this seed. The plant raised from one of these speedily died, while the seed contained in the second packet was only sown towards the end of the year, and the result is not yet known.

7. The percentage of febrifuge obtained from the bark was almost the same as in the previous year, viz. 2·72 per cent., but the cost at which the febrifuge was turned out rose from Rs. 8-8 a pound to Rs. 10-1-8 a pound. This increase is attributed to the higher cost per pound of the bark collected during the year, which was due to the smaller crop harvested. Dr. King explains:—"The difference is due to the smaller crop harvested, viz., 305,160lbs. as against 358,100lbs. for 1882-83. These fluctuations are inevitable as long as the crop continues to be limited, not by the capacity of the plantation to produce, but by the demand for the product into which the crop is to be manufactured. The lowest price of production per pound can of course only be reached when the plantation is cropped to its full capacity to yield."

The distribution of the febrifuge was in excess of the issues for 1882-83. The figures for the two years are—

	1882-83.		1883-84.

The issues to the public declined during the year, though they are still in advance of those of 1880-81. It is probable that a supply of English-made febrifuge will shortly be sent out to this country for sale at a very low rate in malarious tracts. It is hoped that its cheapness will induce the poorer classes to have recourse to it, and they will thereby have a better opportunity of discovering and appreciating its value.

8. The revenue derived from the sale of the febrifuge, seed, plants and bark amounted to Rs. 1,54,463-14 0, as shown below, against Rs. 1,52,807-1-0 in the preceding year—

	Rs.	A.	P.

Total ...	1,54,463	14	0

The result of the year's working was a net profit of Rs. 59,700-7-7, equal to a dividend of 5½ per cent. on the capital outlay. Dr. King points out that this does not represent the whole of the actual gain for the year. The cost of the febrifuge used in substitution for quinine in Government hospitals and dispensaries during the year was Rs. 80,045, whereas an equal quantity of quinine would have cost three times as much.

9. The Lieutenant-Governor is again glad to acknowledge Dr. King's excellent management of his department during the year. He fully appreciates the services of Mr. Gammie, who held immediate charge of the factory. The other assistants are also well spoken of.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO REVISE THE RULES AND PROCEDURE UNDER THE MAHOMEDAN MARRIAGE REGISTRATION ACT.

JUDICIAL.

Darjeeling, the 31st May 1884.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

The Resolution recorded by the Lieutenant-Governor on the 25th July 1882, on the Report of the Committee appointed to consider and report upon the subject of the registration of Mahomedan Marriages and Divorces in Bengal.

The Report No. 1333, dated the 18th January 1884, of the Committee appointed for the purpose of revising the rules and procedure under the Mahomedan Marriage Registration Act, and of supervising the Kazis appointed in Bengal, and the general working of the Act.

The note submitted by Nawab Mir Mahomed Ali embodying his views on the subject.

In the Resolution of the 25th July 1882, the Lieutenant-Governor reviewed the Report of the Committee appointed by Sir Ashley Eden to consider and report on the subject of the registration of Mahomedan marriages and divorces in Bengal. The proposals adopted by the majority of that Committee were five in number, and were as follow :—

(1)—That registration should continue to be voluntary.

(2)—That a Kazi-ul-Kazaat, or head Kazi, for the province should be appointed in Calcutta.

(3)—That Kazis should be appointed throughout Bengal to perform the functions of Registrars of Mahomedan Marriages.

(4)—That Naib Kazis should be appointed by the Kazis, the appointments being subject to the approval of the District Registrar and the sanction of the Kazi-ul-Kazaat.

(5)—That the responsibility for registration of marriages should not, as at present, rest on the contracting parties, but that the official in whose presence the marriage is celebrated should be looked to directly for the necessary registration.

The Lieutenant-Governor accepted all the proposals but the second, the adoption of which would involve a revival of the old procedure of Regulation XXXIX of 1793 passed by Lord Cornwallis, and as it would, apart from other considerations, be scarcely possible, at the present time, to find any Mahomedan gentlemen possessing the requisite qualifications to fill such an office, who would satisfy the views and secure the respect and co-operation of the dissentient sections of the Mahomedan community. As regards the fifth proposal, the Lieutenant-Governor was of opinion that all that was required could be effected by altering the procedure as laid down in the rules promulgated under sections 18 and 24 of Act I (B. C.) of 1876. But as any measures for the improvement of the existing procedure would be incomplete and inadequate unless they provided for a thorough revision of the existing rules, a Committee, composed of the gentlemen named in the margin, was appointed for the purpose. The Committee have finished their labours, and submitted an expression of their views and proposals in the report cited in the preamble. Mr. Rivers Thompson proposes to consider the points which occupied their attention, and to deal with them in the order in which they are placed in the Report.

Mr. F F. Handley, Inspector General of Registration.

2. The first point discussed relates to a reduction in the initial expenditure incurred by Mahomedan Registrars. Under the provisions of section 5 of Act I (B. C.) of 1876, the Government is to supply the registers, forms, and seal to be used by the Registrars, and under clause 14 of the Rules, dated the 25th March 1876, all these are to be charged at cost price and ordinarily paid for by the Registrar at the time they are supplied, though the District Registrar has a discretionary power to postpone payment for a period not exceeding three months. The Committee have shown that, on his first appointment, a Mahomedan Registrar has to incur on this account an expenditure of Rs. 52-11-6, and they propose to reduce this to Rs. 17-4-6, if it be decided that these registers, forms, &c., should still be a charge on the Registrar instead of being supplied free as they recommend, on the ground that this concession is made to Ministers of established churches. The Committee propose the abolition of Indents for Forms, Register of Appeals, and Form of Application, which at present cost Rs. 5-7-11. They also suggest that forms numbered 3, 7 and 11, which are copies of the entries in the Registers A, B, and C to be given to parties; forms 4, 8 and 12, which are copies of the same for the District Registrar; and forms 5, 9 and 13, which are copies of the same for issue under section 15 of the Act, and which cost Rs. 19-3-4, might be supplied on ordinary country paper by the Registrar in the form prescribed by the Rules or the Act. The Committee further propose that the Book of Refusals (No. 14), index sheets (No. 17) and the catalogue (No. 19), which cost Rs. 2-14-1, should be similarly furnished. This would reduce the books to be purchased to the three Register Books A, B and C, costing Rs. 5-1-6 each, and the Index Book costing Rs. 1-2-8. Lastly, the Committee suggest that the seal instead of costing, as now, Rs. 8, might be of a cheaper description costing Rs. 2. The Lieutenant-Governor does not understand how the Committee arrive at the conclusion that this would bring the cost of registers, &c., &c., down to Rs. 17-4-6. The price would be really Rs. 18-7-2, as shown in the margin. The Lieutenant-Governor is unable to entertain the proposals made by the Committee in their entirety. He thinks that Mahomedan Registrars should be supplied at the prices now charged with the Registers A, B and C, the Index Book, the necessary forms, and with a seal at a cost of Rs. 2. They should also be supplied with a few copies of indents for forms free of charge. Registrars, however, should not supply forms 3, 4, 5, 7, 8, 9, 11, 12 and 13 on cheap country paper, as it is desirable that these should be as durable and lasting as possible. Form 14, Book of Refusals, might be kept up by Registrars themselves on country paper, so might Form 15, Book of Appeals. Index sheets (No, 17), which are important, should be supplied on indent; so also should Form of Application (No. 18) for the sake of uniformity, and the catalogue which under Rule 43 is to be permanently preserved. As regards the question whether these books, &c., &c., should be supplied free, this has been already answered; but the Lieutenant-Governor is of opinion that the same practice which prevails in the case of Registrars of Christian Marriages should be adopted, viz., that the first set of registers and forms should be issued free, and all subsequently supplied being paid for by the Registrars.

3. The second point relates to the distribution of Mahomedan Registrars over the 14 districts in which the Act and Rules are in force. The Committee have pointed out that in only three of those districts, viz, Chittagong, Mymensing and Noakholly, is there a Mahomedan Registrar for each thana, and they recommend that there should be at least one for each thana in all the other districts, though they would prefer to see the unit of a Mahomedan Registrar's jurisdiction being brought down to an outpost. This, the Lieutenant-Governor thinks, is unnecessary at present. He would make the thana the unit, extending, or rather contracting, it to the outpost in places where, from the number of registrations, this might be considered advisable.

4. The next point which engaged the attention of the Committee is the extension of the registering agency by the introduction of Act XII of 1880 for the appointment of Kazis. This question has already been considered by the Lieutenant-Governor, who, in paragraph 10 of the Resolution dated the 25th July last, ordered that steps should be taken to extend the Act to the districts named in the margin in which Act I (B. C.) of 1876 is in force, and that competent persons should be selected to act as Kazis. The notification required by section 1 of Act XII of 1880, extending that Act to these districts, will now be published in the Calcutta Gazette, and District Registrars will be asked to submit nominations of properly qualified persons for the office of Kazi and Mahomedan Marriage Registrar for places where these officers are required to be appointed to the permanent Committee at Calcutta for the supervision of Mahomedan Registrars appointed under Act I (B.C.) of 1876, and of Kazis appointed under Act XII of 1880. This Committee will, it is hoped, have been formed by the time the District Registrars' nominations are ready. The suggestion made by the Committee that no person should be appointed a Kazi within the jurisdiction of a Mahomedan Registrar, except the Registrar himself, was also a point which Mr. Rivers Thompson had under his consideration in the previous stage of this case, as will be apparent from the concluding sentence of the paragraph of the Resolution cited above, to the effect that every Kazi will also be appointed ex-officio Marriage Registrar under Act I B.C.) of 18 6. He considers the reasons advanced by the Committee in support of their recommendation sound, and directs its adoption. The Kazi being a Mahomedan Marriage Registrar would also have, as pointed out by the Committee, the assistance of his Naib Kazis in informing him of marriages about to take place, and in inducing persons to register marriages after they were contracted. More than this Naib Kazis could not be empowered to do without a change in the law, which is not desirable at present, as under section 3 of the Act no more than two persons can be licensed within the same limits, and when two persons are licensed, one must be a member of the Suni and the other of the Shia sect. The same objection applies to a Mahomedan Registrar nominating a friend or relative to be a Mahomedan Registrar at his head-quarters. For the present, therefore, the Lieutenant-Governor is of opinion that Naib Kazis must act simply as agents for the Kazi, informing him of marriages which they have performed in order that he may endeavour subsequently to get the parties to register it.

5. The Lieutenant-Governor is not disposed to accede to the proposal made by the Committee for placing the registration of kabinnamahs in the hands of Mahomedan Registrars, instead of in those of the ordinary Registrar (rural or other) of Deeds, as this too would involve a change in the law.

6. The last points which the Committee notice are the amendments of Rules 18 to 21 of the Rules, dated the 25th March 1876, regarding the attendance of Mahomedan Registrars upon the requisition of parties. The Lieutenant-Governor accepts the views of the Committee on this point as expressed in the concluding portion of paragraph 10 of their Report. He is of opinion that it is useless to have rules the practical enforcement of which is difficult, if not impossible, and that it will be better to allow such matters to be settled by the Registrar and the persons who desire his services. The rules proposed in lieu of those at present in force are therefore approved.

7. The Lieutenant-Governor also approves of the other modifications proposed by the Committee in the Rules of the 25th March 1876, but desires to point out, with reference to the addition made to Rule 11, empowering District Registrars to appoint temporary substitutes for Mahomedan Registrars on leave or absent from duty from among the list of candidates for Mahomedan Registrarships registered in his office; that if temporary substitutes be appointed, they must be licensed (vide section 3 of Act I of 1876).

Rule 14, regarding the supply of books and stationery to Registrars, has not been altered by the Committee pending the orders of Government on their proposals on the subject, which are contained in paragraph 2 of this Resolution. The rule has therefore been modified in accordance with the views expressed by the Lieutenant-Governor in that paragraph.

Rule 39.—The Lieutenant-Governor thinks there is no necessity of keeping up the registers and indexes both in Urdu and Bengali. One language will be quite enough. In Bengali districts Bengali is what nearly all Mahomedans speak and read, if they can read at all, and Mr. Rivers Thompson thinks Bengali therefore should be the language used in the registers, &c. The rule has been altered accordingly.

8. The Lieutenant-Governor approves of the rules framed by the Committee for the supervision of Kazis appointed under Act XII of 1880.

9. Mr. Rivers Thompson also approves of the rules proposed for the guidance of the permanent Committee for the supervision of Mahomedan Registrars, appointed under Act I (B.C.) of 1876, and of Kazis appointed under Act XII of 1880.

The Committee propose that this permanent Committee should consist of five members, the Inspector-General of Registration for the time being to be ex-officio President, three members to form a quorum, and the appointments to be gazetted. The Lieutenant-Governor accordingly directs the establishment in Calcutta of a permanent Committee, which will be composed of the gentlemen named below, if they be willing to serve on the Committee :—

The Inspector-General of Registration, Member and President, ex-officio.
,, Hon'ble Syed Ameer Ali.
Nawab Abdul Lutcef, C.I.E.
,, Mir Mahomed Ali.
Moulvi Abdul Hai, Head Moulvi of the Calcutta Madrassa.

10. The thanks of the Lieutenant-Governor are due to the President and Members of the Committee for the time devoted by them to the consideration of the very important questions which engaged their attention, and for the valuable proposals they have made.

11. As regards the views expressed by Nawab Mir Mahomed Ali, the Lieutenant-Governor observes that the adoption of his proposals, as regards the registration of kabins and of contracts for dower, would involve a recourse to legislation which he does not think desirable at present. In the event, however, of any change in the law being undertaken at any future time, the Nawab's proposals will receive full consideration.

ORDER.—Ordered that this Resolution, the Report of the Committee with its enclosures, and the revised Rules, be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

Ordered also that a copy of this Resolution, with a copy of the Committee's Report and of its enclosures, together with a copy of the revised Rules, be forwarded to the Inspector-General of Registration, and to the District Registrars of the districts named in paragraph 4 of the Resolution, for information and guidance.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

F. B. PEACOCK,
Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

No. 1333, dated Calcutta, the 18th January 1884.

From—F. F. HANDLEY, ESQ., President of the Committee appointed to revise the Rules and Procedure under Act I (B.C.) of 1876,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department.

WE, the undersigned members of the Committee appointed to revise the rules and procedure for the voluntary registration of Mahomedan marriages and divorces under Act I (B.C.) of 1876, have the honour to submit the following report.

2. The Act was passed on the 11th January 1876, and its provisions were gradually extended by Government notification to the following 14 districts :—

3. The rules at present in force were sanctioned by Government Notification dated 19th August 1876. The annual reports of the Registration

Department have shown that the Act and rules do not work at all well. Our colleague, Nawab Abdool Lutcef has, however, maintained that the rules and the present cumbrous procedure are susceptible of simplification, and the Committee have endeavoured to suggest such modifications as will further that result.

4. The first point to which the attention of the Committee has been directed is the reduction of expenditure to Mahomedan Registrars by lessening the number of forms in use. The present system of registration of marriages for all creeds is that the Registrar should pay the cost of all forms used for the purpose of such registration. The practice in the case of Registrars of Christian marriages is to issue the first set of forms gratis. Thereafter the Registrar pays the cost of all forms expended from time to time. The Mahomedan Registrars on the contrary are required, as a condition precedent to their appointment, to pay the cost of all forms, registers, and seals. The following list shows the number of such books and registers, and the cost :—

Price list of Mahomedan Registration Forms and Books, and Seals, &c.

Serial number.	Description of forms and books.	Rate.
		Rs. A. P.
1	Indent for forms	3 14 4	Per 100 copies.

	Total ...	52 11 6

It will be seen that upon appointment, a Mahomedan Registrar is required to pay Rs. 52-11-6 as a condition of such appointment. The Committee, moreover, consider that many of the forms and registers the Registrar is required to keep are unnecessary. They would recommend the abolition of the following forms :—1. Indent for forms ; 15. Register of appeals kept by the District Registrar, who should provide it himself ; 18. Applications. The following forms, the Committee consider, could be furnished by the Registrar on ordinary country paper (of course in the form prescribed by the Act or the rules) :—3, 4, 5, 7, 8, 9, 11, 12, 13, 14, 17, and 19. This would reduce the books to be purchased by the Mahomedan Registrar to Registers A, B, C, and the Index Book. If at the same time a smaller and less expensive seal were provided at a cost of about Rs 2, the amount required to be paid by a Mahomedan Registrar upon appointment would be reduced from Rs. 52-11-6 to Rs. 17-4-6. The Committee would, however, go a step further, and recommend that these forms be supplied gratis to the Mahomedan Registrars. It is believed that registers and forms are supplied to ministers of the established churches free, and in view of the acknowledged evils of the want of more extended registration of marriages among the lower classes of Mahomedans, the Committee think that this concession can be granted by Government.

5. The next point to consider is the distribution of Mahomedan Registrars over the 14 districts in which the Act and rules are in force (vide Table A annexed). This table shows that in no districts but Chittagong, Mymensingh, and Noakhally is there a Mahomedan Registrar for each thannah. Considering the large area of most police thannahs, and that a Mahomedan Registrar is required to attend marriages upon requisition, and to proceed upon tours for the purposes of registering marriages, the Committee think that the number of Mahomedan Registrars should be increased, so as to allow of at least one Mahomedan Registrar to each thannah. The Committee would encourage the extension of the system wherever practicable, to allow of one Mahomedan Registrar to each outpost. In each of the districts of Chittagong and Noakhally there are four outposts, forming the exclusive jurisdictions of Mahomedan Registrars, in Mymensingh two outposts, in Furreedpore one, and in Rungpore one. If the jurisdiction of an outpost in those districts is able to support a Mahomedan Registrar, it is possible that in other districts the unit of a Mahomedan Registrar's jurisdiction may be brought down to the limits of an outpost.

6. By thus limiting the jurisdiction to a more compact area it is thought probable that the Mahomedan Registrars may be induced to proceed more actively about their jurisdictions. At present a Mahomadan Registrar is apt to remain at his head-quarters and expect the public to resort to him for registration, as in the case of an office for the registration of deeds; but apart from the difference between the compulsory registration of the greater number of deeds as compared with the voluntary registration of marriages, from the circumstances of the case, it is difficult to procure the attendance of the parties to the marriage, one of them being always a purdahnashin woman.

7. The third point is to extend the registering agency, and this will be aided by the introduction of the Act for the appointment of Qazis (XII of 1880). The Committee would urge most strongly that no person be appointed a Qazi within the jurisdiction of a Mahomedan Registrar except the Registrar himself. The would strengthen his position. As the Qazi appointed by Government, it would lend the Mahomedan Registrar more prestige. He would be in more frequent request to attend at, and celebrate marriages and wherever he attended as Qazi he could register the marriage as Registrar. Further, under section 3 of the Act, as Qazi he would be entitled to appoint Naib Qazis, who would act as his agents in informing the Qazi of intended marriages, and in inducing parties to register the marriages performed by persons other than the Qazi or his naibs. By selecting the most active and intelligent of the village Mollahs and Khundkars, and appointing them Naib Qazis, the Mahomedan Registrar should be able, by their co-operation, to encourage registration of all marriages and divorces by his influence as the Qazi and Mahomedan Registrar appointed by Government. Under this head also falls the proposal of the Committee to extend the period of three months allowed for the appearance of parties for registration under Rule 23, to six months. It is generally considered the limit of three months is too short for the appearance of all parties.

8. Of course to secure the more efficient working of the Mahomedan Marriage Registration Act, it is desirable that the person actually officiating at the marriage should also be empowered to register the marriage. To this, however, there are practical difficulties. To meet the chief of these difficulties, it has been proposed that the register books should consist of loose sheets, numbered consecutively, which the Mahomedan Registrar as Qazi would distribute to his Naib Qazis for the registration of such marriages as they might perform. But under the Mahomedan Marriage Registration Act, only an officer appointed under that Act is empowered to register marriages. So that no Naib Qazi who was not also a Mahomedan Registrar licensed under that Act could register such marriages. The Committee propose that any Mahomedan Registrar may be allowed to nominate any of his Naib Qazis (subject to the Naib Qazi being found qualified under Rule 3) for appointment as a Mahomedan Registrar with concurrent jurisdiction over so much of the head Mahomedan Registrar's jurisdiction as he may determine. Thus, a Mahomedan Registrar of a thannah, who is also a Qazi, might nominate Naib Qazis with concurrent jurisdiction over one or more of the different outposts within his jurisdiction. The Naib Qazi would only require a separate set of registers, and the index could be drawn up by the Mahomedan Registrar of the thannah. By the above plan of leaving the initiative in the nomination of Naib Qazis for the appointment of Mahomedan Registrars with the Mahomedan Registrar and Qazi of the thannah, the latter would be likely to nominate only so many Registrars as there might be work for within his jurisdiction. Again, a Mahomedan Registrar might nominate a friend or relative to be Mahomedan

Registrar at his head-quarters, so that when the Mahomedan Registrar was absent on circuit there might be some one to register the ceremonies of such as attended the head-quarters during the Mahomedan Registrar's absence on circuit. As the law is at present, there is no provision by which Naib Qazis can be empowered to register marriages without a special license under section 3 of the Act; and whenever a Mahomedan Registrar who is a Qazi is unwilling to nominate any of his Naib Qazis as Mahomedan Registrars within his jurisdiction he must be content to look on his Naib Qazis as mere agents to inform him of the celebration of marriages, and to induce parties to register marriages. The Mahomedan Registrar as Qazi would be able to make such terms with his Naib Qazis as might be agreed upon by the parties.

9. Another proposition laid before the Committee is to place the registration of kabinnamas in the hands of Mahomedan Registrars. But to give effect to this proposal would require fresh legislation, empowering Mahomedan Marriage Registrars to register such deeds. The Committee venture to think that to withdraw the registration of kabinnamas from the ordinary registering officers and to place it in the hands of Mahomedan Registrars would be productive of beneficial results. It would improve the position of Mahomedan Registrars, attract better men to the appointment, and would probably lead to the more extended registration of both kaninnamas and marriages. Under the present procedure it is highly inconvenient that the parties are obliged to register the deed of dower and the fact of marriage before different officers and at different places.

10. The last points which the Committee would propose to remedy are Rules 18, 19, 20, 21, regarding the attendance of Mahomedan Registrars at marriages upon requisition by the parties. By Rule 18, any party requiring the attendance of a Mahomedan Registrar at a ceremony of marriage may make an application to the Mahomedan Registrar to that effect, but his attendance under the rule is discretionary with the Mahomedan Registrar himself. Under Rule 19 the Mahomedan Registrar may travel on circuit or not, but if the Mahomedan Registrar decides to proceed on circuit he is bound to issue notice specifying the dates and the places to be visited on such tour, and the Mahomedan Registrar is bound to attend onthe requisition of any resident of any place included in the said circuit, if notice has been served on the Mahomedan Registrar requiring his attendance a week before his arrival at that place. Under Rule 20, the Mahomedan Registrar is bound to give effect to priority of application if any question of precedence arises, and under Rule 21 the Mahomedan Registrar is prohibited from demanding more than a fixed scale of commission and 4 annas a mile travelling expenses under Rule 18, or of more than Rs. 2 without any travelling expenses under Rule 19.

The Committee consider these rules cumbrous and unnecessary. There is no control and supervision to enforce the observance of such rules. The Committtee would prefer to leave the matter to be settled between the Mahomedan Registrar and the public, fixing a lower limit of fees of Rs. 3, and 3 annas a mile, travelling allowance, more within the means of the classes who would chiefly resort to registration. The Committee think an active Mahomedan Registrar would proceed on circuit at times, and to places where ceremonies requiring registration would be most likely to occur, and would accept such fees as the parties might be willing to give. If his attendance, was required on any special occasion, the parties should pay one general fee analogous to the issue of a commission in the Registration Act, especially when it is considered that the Mahomedan Marriage Act provides for the acknowledgment of a marriage or khula on behalf of a pardanashin by the agency of a wakil.

11. In conclusion, the Committee regret that without fresh legislation they are unable to put forward any better suggestions than the above for the remedy of the acknowledged evils arising from the want of proper and more extended registration of marriages and divorces among the lower orders of Mahomedans in Eastern Bengal. But owing to the fact that such registration is voluntary, and owing to the apathy of those classes of the Mahomedan population for whose social regeneration the Mahomedan Marriage Registration Act was first passed, the Committee can only hope that in time the Mahomedans of Eastern Bengal may be brought to appreciate the advantages of registration of these ceremonies by experience and by the teaching and example of the local heads of their communities.

NOTES ON THE REVISED RULES.

Rule 3.—It is considered essential that the candidates selected for appointment as Mahomedan Registrars should possess some acquaintance with Arabic and the Mahomedan law of marriage and divorce. This is the cardinal point for which Nawab Abdool Latif contends that the Mahomedan Registrars selected have not been men of sufficient standing and learning to command the respect of the communities over whom they have been appointed. If the District Registrars are unable to find such men in their own districts, Nawab Abdool Latif thinks that candidates can be found from the different madrassahs who would be willing to accept such appointments as in the case of Rural Sub-Registrars, many of whom are residents of distant districts, who make their homes in the districts to which they are appointed. The concluding portion of the rule whereby Sub-Registrars of Assurances being Mahomedans may be nominated Mahomedan Registrars has been omitted. A Sub-Registrar of Assurance is an officer who cannot leave his registry office (except to execute commissions or on leave). He would be unable to proceed about his jurisdiction with the freedom a Mahomedan Registrar should, without detriment to his Registration duties.

Rule 2.—It is thought advisable to encourage men of learning and education to come forward for nomination as Mahomedan Registrars, by requiring a certificate of proficiency from a madrassah, or a certificate from three Mahomedan gentlemen of position, of acquaintance with Arabic and the Mahomedan law of marriage and divorce. The application may also be countersigned by the District Judge, as it is pointed out some applicants may not be acquainted with the District Magistrate.

Rule 5.—If the District Registrar's nomination is not accepted, the permanent Committee can either call for a fresh nomination, or select a candidate from the list of applicants, registered in the office of the Inspector-General of Registration as willing to serve anywhere.

Rule 13.—This enables a District Registrar to avail himself of the services of Mahomedan officers for inspection, in addition to the ordinary inspecting staff.

Rules 19-20.—Rule 19, while legalising the travelling on circuit by Mahomedan Registrar's abolishes the cumbrous procedure of publishing notices to that effect, and requiring written applications to be filed before the Mahomedan Registrars. An active Mahomedan Registrar will proceed on circuit about the time of religious festivals, or at times when marriage ceremonies are most frequent. Rule 20 reduces the limit of charge for attendance at a ceremony to Rs. 3, and Annas 3 a mile. It must be noted that registration of any marriage, divorce, or khula can be obtained without the attendance at the registration office of any pardanashin woman by the provision in the law for the acknowledgment of the ceremony on behalf of a woman by a wakil. Hence all ceremonies can be registered without the attendance of pardanashin women, and any parties who require the attendance of the Mahomedan Registrar should pay for that attendance at a reasonable rate, analogous to the system in the Registration Act of requiring all parties to attend before the registering officer and charging those who claim exemption from such attandance fees for the issue of a commission.

RULES FOR THE SUPERVISION OF QAZIS APPOINTED UNDER ACT XII OF 1880.

1. As soon as the Act has been extended to any district under section 1, or part of a district under section 2, the District Registrar shall nominate a sufficient number of persons to be appointed Qazis under section 2. He shall specify the limits within which each of the persons so nominated shall exercise the functions of Qazi.

2. The District Registrar's nomination shall be submitted to the permanent Committee, and shall be accompanied by the original application of each nominee in the form appended, and also by a certificate of good moral character, signed by at least three Mahomedan gentlemen of known respectability and position, and countersigned by the District Magistrate or District Judge.

Whether the applicant is acquainted with Mahomedan law or holds a certificate from a madrassah.	Remarks of District Officer.	Remarks of the Committee.

3. In the selection of Qazis absolute preference shall be given to Mahomedan Registrars licensed under Act I (B. C.) of 1876, if found duly qualified and if exercising jurisdiction as Mahomedan Registrars within the limits specified by the District Registrar under Rule 1 as the jurisdiction of a Qazi. In the absence of any Mahomedan Registrar, any duly qualified candidate may be nominated.

4. The limits within which a Qazi shall be appointed to act shall coincide as much as possible with the limits of jurisdiction of Mahomedan Registrars, a police thannah or outpost being taken as the unit of jurisdiction according to local circumstances as the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time direct.

5. The Committee shall consider the District Registrar's nomination with the other applications, and shall forward their nominations to Government with their remarks and recommendation.

6. A sanad (license) shall be granted to every person appointed as Qazi in the following form:—

Sanad (license) under section 2, Act XII of 1880.

Calcutta the 188 .

By virtue of the authority conferred upon His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal by Act XII of 1880 (an Act for the appointment of persons as Qazis), you are hereby appointed Qazi of thannah. for the celebration of marriages and the performance of other rites and ceremonies, when application is made to you to perform any such functions.

2. It will be your duty carefully to observe the provisions of the above mentioned Act.

3. This sanad (license) shall continue in force until it is revoked or suspended by the said Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

By order of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

7. When a Qazi desires to give up his license, or is about to leave permanently the local area for which he has been appointed Qazi, he shall report the fact, tender his resignation, and forward his license for cancelment and return to Government.

8. Every Qazi shall provide himself at his own expense with a seal bearing the following superscription in the Persian character:—"The seal of the Qazi of thannah ."

This seal shall remain in the personal custody of the Qazi, and shall be delivered up with his license upon the death, removal, or resignation of the Qazi.

9. Every Qazi shall be empowered to appoint any number of Naib Qazis within the local area for which he holds a license. He shall submit the names of the said Naibs for the consideration and approval of the District Registrar, and when approved by the District Registrar, the Qazi shall give each of his Naibs a letter of appointment, bearing his signature and seal and countersigned by the District Registrar.

10. When a Qazi suspends or removes any of his Naib Qazis, he shall record a proceeding in his diary or "rozenamchah," specifying the offence for which he suspends or removes the Naib Qazi, after allowing the Naib every opportunity of submitting an explanation and of making due submission. When a Qazi removes his Naib Qazi, he shall recall and revoke the letter of appointment granted to the said Naib.

11. The District Registrar shall keep a register of Qazis and of the Naib Qazis, appointed by the Qazis respectively. In the event of any Naib Qazi being removed by his Qazi, as provided for in Rule 10, the Qazi shall forward notice of the fact to the District Registrar, who shall make the necessary correction in the register.

12. Every Qazi shall keep a diary (rozenamchah) of his proceedings, the ceremonies he performs, the names of the parties, the dates on which, and the places where, he attends to perform such ceremonies. Such diary shall be liable to inspection, whenever necessary, by inspecting officers of the Registration Department, or any one specially deputed by the District Registrar for that purpose.

NOTES ON THE RULES FOR THE QAZIS.

Rule 3.—It is absolutely necessary for the working of the Mahomedan Marriage Act, that the only Qazis at first appointed should be the Mahomedan Registrars. At present, probably, Qazis exist in some form or other, and the appointment of Mahomedan Registrars as Qazis under the Act would only give them prestige, and strengthen their hands as regards the registration of marriages and divorces, which is the result to be attained. Hereafter the post of Qazi would be thrown open to all applicants.

Rule 6.—Under clause 2 of the license it will not be possible to require the Qazis to consent to bind themselves under rules issued by the Lieutenant-Governor, because the power of making rules is not reserved under the Act under which the license is issued.

Rule 10.—This does not provide for any appeal by a Naib Qazi against suspension or dismissal, because section 3 of the Act expressly gives the Qazi the power of suspending or removing his Naib. The only remedy, if any, would be for the Naib to sue in the civil court.

Rule 12.—It is considered advisable that every Qazi should keep some record of his Acts and deeds as Qazi, and that in cases of necessity this record or diary should be liable to inspection by inspecting officers. But the Committee would deprecate anything in the nature of inquisitorial investigations into the performance of their duties by Qazis.

F. F. HANDLEY.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86 formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

CALCUTTA,
The 2nd June 1884.

JOHN ELIOT,
Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of Bengal.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL DURING THE WEEK ENDING 3RD JUNE 1884.

THE weather during the past week has been that which usually occurs immediately before the setting in of the south-west monsoon. Heavy rain has fallen on the Burmah coast, and it is almost certain that the south-west monsoon has commenced on both the Burmah and Arracan coasts. In Northern India the temperature was excessive during the week. This gave rise to a steady fall of the barometer in the Gangetic plain and delta during the week, which was accompanied by a steady and continuous increase in the strength of the sea-winds blowing into Bengal from the head of the Bay. On the last three days of the week unusually strong winds blew over the greater part of the Province, which in some cases almost approached a gale. As usually happens with strong sea-winds in Bengal due to excessive temperature, little rain fell during the period of their greatest force; but, as will be seen in next week's reports, heavy rain fell over the greater part of the Province when they commenced to diminish in strength.

Pressure diminished steadily in every part of the Province until the 29th, when it was more than a tenth of an inch below the normal pressure of the day. It fell during the period from the 24th to the 29th on an average throughout the Province ·15″. The fall was greatest in South Behar and produced a small but well defined barometric depression in that district on the 28th, 29th, and 30th. Pressure increased slightly on the 30th. The mean pressure of the week was below the average at all stations except Chittagong. The deficiency ranged between ·02″ and ·04,″ and was greatest in the northern districts of South-West Bengal.

Temperature was, as during the previous week, excessive over the whole Province (excluding Chittagong). It increased considerably in Behar and Chutia Nagpur, and very high maximum temperatures were registered. The following were the highest:—

Gya	116·2°	on the 30th
Chyebassa	114·5°	„ 30th
Dehree	113·5°	„ 28th
Arrah	113·4°	„ 30th
Doomka	112·7°	„ 30th
Raneegunge	112·5°	„ 30th
Buxar	112·4°	„ 30th

The 30th was a very hot day, the hottest day during the present year up to date. The mean temperature of the week was 6° above the average in Chutia Nagpur, and between 2° and 3° above it in Behar, Orissa, and South-West Bengal. The excess was greatest in Chutia Nagpur, as hot westerly winds prevailed there during the whole week.

Winds, as already remarked, increased in strength generally during the week. They were somewhat variable in direction in South Behar, where westerly winds advanced and retreated with the variations of the strength of the winds in Upper India. They were normal in direction over the remainder of the Province.

Humidity and cloud.—The humidity of the air during the week was slightly greater than usual. In South Behar it varied very considerably with the changes of wind. Low humidities were observed in Chutia Nagpur and the more westerly districts of South Behar. The most remarkable were—

Hazaribagh	9	on the 29th.
Gya	11	„ 28th.
Dehree	11	„ 28th.
Buxar	11	„ 28th.
Ranchi	12	„ 29th.

The sky was clear during the week in the greater part of Behar and in Chutia Nagpur, and more or less clouded in Bengal and Orissa.

Rainfall.—The rainfall of the week was unusually small and below the average in every part of the Province except North Bengal. A few light showers fell on the 24th (i.e., the 24 hours preceding 6 P.M. of that day).

General and in many cases heavy rain was received in North Bengal, South-West Bengal, and the western districts of East Bengal on the 25th. The heaviest rainfalls were:—

Atia in the Mymensingh district	3·70 inches.
Julpigoree	2·86 „
Sherpore in the Bogra district	2·70 „
Raigunj in the Dinagepore district	2·55 „
Rungpore	2·35 „

Fairly general rain again fell on the 27th in the northern districts of East Bengal and in North Bengal, heaviest in the Cooch Behar, Julpigoree and Rungpore districts. The heaviest falls were—

Micklegunj in the Cooch Behar district	3·55	inches.
Matabhanga	2·32	„
Cooch Behar	2·23	„
Kurigram in the Rungpore district	2·31	„
Siliguri	2·25	„

These three districts in North Bengal received frequent moderate showers during the remainder of the week. Elsewhere little or no rain occurred. Hence the greater part of North Bengal received average rainfall during the week. South, West and East Bengal obtained from 10 to 60 per cent. of their normal amount. No rain fell in Orissa, Chutia Nagpur or Behar, except the Sonthal Pergunnahs.

The only districts which received rainfall in excess of the normal amount were the Julpigori, Rungpore, Dinagepore and Bogra and Pubna districts.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday the 30th of May 1884 :—

MEMORANDA.

During the week ending 17th May 1884, births and deaths were recorded in the first class Municipalities in Bengal at the rates, respectively, of 18 8 and 41 6 per 1,000 of population, against 18·2 and 40 1 per 1,000 during the preceding week ending 10th May, indicating a small improvement in the registration of deaths.

(2) The following Municipalities returned the highest proportions of births and deaths :—

Births	Ratio per mille.	Deaths.	Ratio per mille.
Krishnaghur	45·4	Bhagulpore	127·6
Durbhanga	34·6	Midnapore	114·7
Midnapore	31·0	Gya	52·6

		Burdwan	48·8
		Durbhanga	44·1
		Howrah	43·8
		Suburbs of Calcutta ...	40·9
		Serampore	31·4
		Jessore	30·6
		Dacca	30·5

(3) The mortality from the principal death-causes, specified in the table appended to this memoranda, proved fatal at the rates exhibited below :—

	Ratio per mille during the weeks ending—
	17th May 1884.	10th May 1884.
Cholera	11·4	10 1
Small-pox	5·4	6 6
Fever	11·7	13·0
Bowel-complaints	4·8	3·5
Injury	·6	·4
Other causes	7 5	6·4

showing that, in comparison with the preceding week, there was a noticeable increase of mortality from cholera, bowel-complaints, and the diseases classed under the head of "Other causes," with a sensible decline in that from small-pox and fever.

(4) Of the above-mentioned diseases, cholera, small-pox, fever, bowel-complaints, and "other causes" proved most fatal to life in the following Municipalities :—

Cholera.	Ratio per mille.	Small-pox.	Ratio per mille.	Fever.	Ratio per mille.	Bowel-complaints.	Ratio per mille	Other causes.	Ratio per mille.

It is noticeable that Midnapore, Bhagulpore, Howrah, and the Suburbs of Calcutta continue persistently to suffer from cholera; and Bhagulpore and Gya from small-pox.

(5) Distributed under the heads of Sex, Class and Age, the mortality of the week under review stands as follows :—

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken, as the census of this section of the community taken in February 1881 was not reliable, owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as before, as it is not necessary to re-census them. The ratios have consequently been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted, inasmuch as the census of the Europeans above alluded to was not taken under the authorized form of age classification.

Increase in the number of Junior and Middle Scholarships to be awarded at the Examinations of 1885.

THE University has altered the time of holding the Entrance Examination from December to April, and the sessions of colleges will henceforward begin in June instead of in January. The time of holding the middle scholarship examinations has also been altered from October to March, and high schools, in which those scholarships are tenable, will henceforward re-open in June. These changes make it probable that a much larger number of candidates than usual will present themselves at the Entrance and middle examinations of 1885, including many who would otherwise have waited for the examinations next following. The Government of Bengal has consequently sanctioned a proposal to increase the number of junior scholarships to be awarded at the Entrance examination of 1885 by one-third, and the number of middle scholarships by one-half. These scholarships, and all awarded in subsequent years, will, as hitherto, be tenable for 24 months; but the stipend will henceforward be payable from the beginning of the session, generally in June.

2. The present holders of junior scholarships will be allowed to read free of tuition fees for the time that will elapse between the expiration of their scholarships and the close of the extended session. The free-scholarships awarded to middle scholars after the expiry of their stipends will be similarly extended.

The 23rd May 1884. A. W. CROFT, Director of Public Instruction.

THE Calcutta Medical College Session 1884-85 will commence on the 16th June next.

2. Students who may be desirous of commencing their studies are requested to apply to the Principal between the hours of 11 A.M. and 4 P.M. on or before the 15th June next.

Ten (10) free presentations will then be awarded. These are given to students according to their relative position in the University B.A, B.L., and F.A. Examinations, preference being given to those who have passed the highest examination.

3. No person shall be enrolled on the list of regular students of the College who has not previously passed the First Arts Examination of the Calcutta University, or some one of the preliminary Arts Examination of the United Kingdom recognized by the British General Medical Council.

4. All regular students of the College are required to pay Rs. 15 on entrance, Rs. 30 for the summer session on the 15th June, and Rs. 30 for the winter session in November of each year.

5. Students who have failed to pass, and who, under the regulations of the University, are required to attend a further course of lectures and of hospital practice before being allowed to present themselves again for examination, will pay for such further course an annual fee of Rs. 45 in two instalments of Rs. 30 and Rs. 15, payable at the beginning of the summer and winter sessions respectively.

6. Any regular student of the College may, with the permission of the Principal and the Professors of the subject, attend courses of lectures or departments of hospital practice outside and in addition to the full curriculum for the year, and he shall be entitled to certificates of attendance at such extra lectures, if the Professor is satisfied that he has really studied the subject. The fees payable in advance for such additional courses are the following—

	Rs.
For a single course of lectures on each subject	40
For six months' attendance in each department of hospital practice ...	60

7. Any regular student who leaves the College before completing his University course with the object of continuing his studies at a Medical School in Europe may receive certificates of attendance at lectures on payment of fees at the rates fixed in the foregoing rule. But in calculating the sum to be so paid, the amount of the fees already paid by him as a regular student, or, in the case of a free student, the amount which would have been paid by him had he been a paying student, shall be deducted.

8. Any person not being a regular student of the College who may be desirous of attending any course of lectures or any department of hospital practice may do so with the permission of the Principal and the Professor of the subject, on payment, in advance, of fees at the rates fixed in rule 6.

If such student has passed the Entrance Examination of the University, he may receive certificates of attendance at lectures, provided the Professors are satisfied that he has attended the full course of lectures, and has mastered the subject taught.

A student who has not passed the Entrance Examination will be entitled to no certificates of any kind.

9. College scholarships, prizes, and certificates of honour are open for competition only to regular students of the College and Hospital apprentice class.

10. No fees are payable by the holders of the Calcutta Medical College scholarships.

The holders of the Doorga Charan Laha and all other scholarships will be required to pay fees as a regular student. These scholars may pay their fees in advance, or have their scholarship money deducted till the full amount is received.

11. Any student holding a Medical College scholarship will be permitted to draw the stipend of the said scholarship at any recognized Medical School in the United Kingdom, provided he furnishes from the head of such school a certificate of good conduct and diligent prosecution of his studies.

12. The offices of Class Assistant, Clinical Clerk, Dressers, &c., can be held only by students whose names are on the rolls of the college.

ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE METEOROLOGICAL REPORTER TO THE GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL FOR THE YEAR 1883-84.

THE Bengal Meteorological Department was under my control during the whole of the past official year, except .the months of August, September and October, when I was absent on privilege leave. Mr. Alexander Pedler, who had acted previously for me on four occasions was again appointed to officiate as Meteorological Reporter during my absence.

During the past year the extensions of the Bengal Meteorological Department, which were proposed and sanctioned during the preceding year, and the character, extent, and scope of which were stated in my Administration Report for the year 1882-83, were completely and successfully effected. The past year has hence been one of considerable importance in the working of this department, and it seems desirable to place on record a statement of the manner in which the proposed extensions were carried into effect during the year

The proposals which were finally sanctioned in March 1883 by the Government of India, at the request of the Government of Bengal, authorized and provided for a number of changes, of which the following were the most important:—

1st.—The establishment of a large number of additional stations recording observations at 10 A.M. only, to be distributed throughout the province in such a way as to give a fairly complete view of all the more important meteorological changes in the province.

2nd.—Provision for additional inspection of the observatories at all seasons of the year, so that the source of any error in the observations detected by the examination of the returns sent to the office might be immediately traced, if necessary, by a visit of an inspecting officer to the observatory. By this means errors, whether due to instrumental changes, or to carelessness, or ignorance, or other defects on the part of the observer, might be speedily rectified, and the accumulation of inaccurate observations prevented.

3rd.—Special arrangements for the speedy and continuous transmission of the meteorological and rainfall observations taken throughout the province, day by day, to the Bengal Meteorological Office where they may be at once reduced and tabulated, and the various meteorological returns be prepared for publication without any unnecessary delay.

4th.—The publication of daily weather reports for the province of Bengal during the south-west monsoon, or from May 15th to November 15th, and of weekly and monthly meteorological and rainfall returns in the Calcutta Gazette with short summaries giving the more important features of the weather and rainfall for the period in question, and their distribution to district officers and certain officers in the Irrigation, Public Works, and other departments.

5th.—An increase in the number of clerks in the Bengal Meteorological Office in order to enable the additional work to be performed fully, accurately, and rapidly. A considerable increase was necessary, in order not merely to deal with the larger number of observations transmitted to this office in consequence of the increased number of observatories, but also to bring up and to maintain the whole of the office work up to date, and to go through the whole of the observations taken at the older established stations and obtain daily and weekly means of the elements of meteorological observation in order to enable the peculiarities of the weather for any period in discussion to be stated quantitatively as deviations from the normal or average conditions for that period.

The scheme in its final and complete form was submitted by the Government of Bengal to the Government of India on the 29th January 1883, and sanction was granted by the Government of India on terms which were accepted by the Government of Bengal. These terms were in effect that the Bengal Government should contribute a sum from its provincial funds equal to the estimated cost of the extensions to the Imperial Meteorological grant, and that the money should be expended in carrying out the proposals of the Government of Bengal, but that the control and supervision of the additional observatories should be exercised by the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India. The effect of this is that the whole of the observatories now established in Bengal are, as before, subject to the control and orders of the Imperial Reporter, and the working of every part of the system is under his supervision. This arrangement has been perfectly satisfactory during the past year. It has secured on the one hand the extension of the department, which was considered essential by the Government of Bengal, whilst it has maintained uniformity of system and control by a single head—most important features in a scientific department, such as a Meteorological Department is or ought to be.

Establishment of additional observatories.—The stations at which it was finally decided to establish observatories were as follows:—

Orissa	Balasore.
South-West Bengal	Midnapore. Ranigunge.
East Bengal	Noakholly. Burrisaul. Serajgunge. Commillah. Furreedpore. Mymensingh.
North Bengal	Rampore Beauleah. Dinagepore. Rungpore. Julpigoree.
Behar	Bhagulpore. Chupra. Motihari. Buxar. Arrah. Dehree.
Sonthal Pergunnahs and Chutia Nagpur ...	Nya Doomka. Ranchi. Chyebassa

It was originally intended to establish and work these observatories entirely through the agency of the Public Works Department, but this was found to be in a few cases (viz. Serajgunge, Chyebassa, Ranigunge and Nya Doomka) impracticable.

As soon as the letter of the Government of India sanctioning the proposals was received (March 15th, 1883) instructions were issued by the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department, to the Executive Engineers in whose divisions the stations selected for observatories were situated, requesting them to choose sites and arrange for the early construction of sheds and the selection of suitable officers in the establishment of the Public Works to take the observations. Copies of plans of the pattern thermometer shed approved and adopted by the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India were sent, and a few rules for guidance in the selection of a suitable site. It was originally intended to commence the work of observation under the new system from the 1st of April, but this was of course not possible in consequence of the sanction of the scheme by the Government of India not being received until nearly the end of March. As early erection of the sheds and the establishment of the observatories was an imperative necessity, in order to commence the publication of the Bengal Daily Weather Reports on the 15th May, it was necessary to leave the selections of sites entirely to the judgment of the Executive Engineers or their subordinates. In the great majority of cases very suitable sites were chosen, and the sheds erected as rapidly as could be expected under the circumstances. In one or two cases unexpected difficulties arose in obtaining well exposed sites, the local authorities opposing the erection of the shed. In one case the Executive Engineer, after the shed had been built on a suitable site, was ordered by the Commissioner of the Division to take it down and re-erect it on a distant and much more objectionable site.

The following table gives the dates on which observations were first taken and transmitted to the Bengal Meteorological Office at the newly established observatories:—

Inspection of observatories.—This is, as I have frequently pointed out, of the utmost importance in order to secure continuous accuracy of observation. It is the one part of my duties as Provincial Reporter which I can only perform during the cold weather vacation. In consequence of the changes in the college vacations recently introduced I shall have less opportunity than previously of inspecting observatories. I proposed last year that an inspecting officer should be sanctioned, who should perform the combined duties of draughtsman and inspecting officer. A passed student was obtained from the Thomason Engineering College, Roorkee. It was, however, found that his time was so fully occupied with the preparation of the ordinary and the additional rainfall charts (which I submitted to the Government during the course of the south-west monsoon) that it became necessary to propose another arrangement. Advantage was taken of his transfer to the office of the Executive Engineer, Cawnpore, to appoint a draughtsman on a slightly lower salary, and I applied to Government to sanction the transferrence of the amount saved to increase the pay of the head clerk, on condition that he assisted me in the work of inspection. This arrangement was approved by Government. As it is inconvenient for both the head clerk and myself to be absent at the same time, I was only able to take him with me on inspection to a single observatory. After the termination of my cold weather vacation I sent him to inspect the observatories in Eastern Bengal. He did this in so efficient a manner as to fully satisfy me of his ability and capacity to perform the duties of inspecting officer. He will thus in future be of valuable assistance and enable me to secure the inspection of any observatory at any time that it may seem necessary or desirable.

The work of inspection during the past year was almost entirely confined to the cold-weather period—November to March. The amount of inspection done will shew the value of this new arrangement. The following stations were inspected by myself:—

Dhubri ...	December, 14th and 15th.	Bhagalpore ...	November, 17th and 18th.

Arrangements for transmission of the observations to the Central Office.—The methods I proposed to employ for the regular transmission of the meteorological and rainfall observations were given in the last Administration Report.

The 10. A.M. observations taken at the various meteorological stations are forwarded daily to the office in various ways according to the position of the observatory with respect to telegraphic and postal communication and the purposes for which the observations are utilized.

Urgent telegrams are sent daily throughout the whole year by the following stations. These are required for the Bay of Bengal Weather Report—

Saugor Island.	Dacca.	Cuttack.
Balasore.	Chittagong.	False Point.

Similar telegrams are also sent by the following stations which are not in Bengal:—

Diamond Island.	Vizagapatam.	Madras.
Akyab	Coconada.	Negapatam.
Gopalpore.	Masulipatam.	Trincomalee.
	Galle

The following stations send urgent or ordinary telegrams during the period, 15th May to 15th November, when the 10 A.M. observations are required for the compilation of the Bengal Weather Report:—

Mymensingh.	Purneah.	Rampore Beaulcah.
Commillah.	Durbhunga.	Bhagulpore.
Serajgunge.	Motihari.	Patna.
Rungpore.	Chupra.	Arrah
Dinagepore.	Midnapore.	Buxar.
Julpigoree.	Burdwan.	Dehree.
Darjeeling.	Ranigunge.	Gya.
	Jessore.	Hazaribagh.

The remaining observatories are at stations to which telegraphic communication has not yet been extended; hence they can only transmit their observations by post. These are—

Ranchi.	Burrisaul.	Furreedpore.
Chyebassa.	Noakholly.	Berhampore.
	Nya Doomka.

Those stations which forward weather telegrams also transmit by post copies of the observations sent by telegraph, so that errors, due to transmission, are eliminated before the determination of the weekly and monthly averages for publication in the Gazette, and the entry of the reduced observations in the volumes of records in which they are filed. In the case of the Imperial observatories this is done by means of Form B supplied by the India Meteorological Office, and at the provincial or newly established observatories by means of postal cards. These are despatched daily by the first post after the time of observation.

The non-telegraphing provincial third class observatories forward their observations daily by means of post cards. During the past year they have almost without exception transmitted the observations regularly, and have thus enabled me to publish the weekly meteorological returns in a complete form.

The only station, the name of which appears in the weekly meteorological forms, but which fails to send in its observations in time, is Demagiri. This, however, is not an observatory maintained by Government, but a voluntary observatory started in 1881 by the medical officer.

The rainfall observations at the 166 rainfall-recording stations are forwarded mainly by postal cards daily or weekly.

If rain falls during any day, the amount is entered in a postal card, Form C, and sent off by the first dâk leaving the station after the hour of observation (6 P.M.) for Calcutta. The returns of actual rainfall are by this means forwarded immediately after occurrence. As returns are occasionally lost, all stations are also required to send a weekly return on a postal card giving the amounts (nil or otherwise) of the rain on each day of the preceding week. This is useful as a check on the daily returns as received, and also as confirming the non-occurrence of rainfall during any week, which otherwise would be indicated only by the non arrival of daily post cards.

The number of postal card forms supplied to the observatories during the year was—

		Number.
Form	G for meteorological observations ...	... 9,450
„	C for daily rainfall	... 50,662
„	D for weekly rainfall	... 12,994

A few stations are so situated that postal communication is very slow, and the returns for the last day of the week and the weekly return itself would invariably be received too late for inclusion in the weekly rainfall report. In these cases special arrangements were made for the transmission of the weekly returns by dâk to the nearest telegraphic offices, from which they are telegraphed to Calcutta

The rainfall stations which report weekly in this manner are—

Jamalpore.	Ruma.	Pooree.
False Point.	Sorah.	Cox's Bazar.
Saugor Island.	Jellasore.	Bhola.
Rangamati.	Jagatsingpore.	Palamow.
	Barripada.

The arrangements are thus somewhat complex and required some time to effect. However, the great majority of the officers co-operated most heartily, and the changes were made on the whole with less trouble and much greater readiness than I expected.

Publication of Returns.—The frequent publication of meteorological statements giving the latest possible information was one of the most important features of the sanctioned extensions. This was carried out during the past year by the publication of—

1*st.* The Bengal Weather Report from the 15th of May until the 6th November. When the extended system was fully established, telegrams giving the 10 A. M. observations were received daily from 31 stations in the province. These were reduced and tabulated as they arrived. The whole of each day's telegrams were received and the observations tabulated ready for the press by 3-30 P.M. daily. A brief summary was then written describing in words the salient features and peculiarities of the weather of the previous 24 hours, and the whole sent off at 4 P. M. to the Bengal Secretariat Press, where it was printed in time for distribution to district officers by the mail of that evening. The work of distributing the report was done entirely by the Bengal Secretariat Press.

2*nd.* A weekly meteorological and rainfall statement. The first part of this gives the average and extreme values of the elements of meteorological observations at all the observatories of the province for the week, and of the average district rainfall for the week, and its variation from the normal rainfall for the week. The second part gives the amount of the rainfall day by day for the preceding week at each of the 166 sub-divisional and rainfall recording stations, the total rainfall of the week, of the month up to date, and of the total rainfall from 15th May up to date, with corresponding normal or average amounts for comparison. A summary is added directing attention to the more important features of the meteorology for the week, more especially the distribution of rainfall. This return is published in the Calcutta Gazette every Wednesday morning, and gives the meteorological and rainfall observations for the week preceding the previous Friday evening.

3*rd.* A monthly meteorological and rainfall statement published usually during the second week of each month, and giving averages of the observations taken at the 44 observatories during the preceding month, a complete statement of the daily rainfall during the month at the 166 rainfall-recording or sub-divisional stations, and a summary giving the characteristics of the meteorology of the province during the previous month, and its more important points of difference from the normal weather of the period, and a brief analysis of the distribution of rainfall over the province during the month.

Preparation of daily averages.—The only other point which it appears necessary to describe was the method adopted to obtain the daily and weekly averages of the barometric height, maximum and minimum temperature, and rainfall required for the comparative statements and columns in the daily and weekly weather reports. The only averages hitherto obtained and used in the office were monthly averages. The reduced observations were recorded on large forms, each form containing the observations at a single station for a month, and the averages of these observations. This was a sufficient and satisfactory mode of preserving the observations, so long as all that was required was the preparation of monthly averages for the India Meteorological Office and for publication in the Calcutta Gazette.

The record of the observations in monthly sheets was on the other hand extremely inconvenient for the calculation of daily and weekly averages. It was hence found necessary to copy them into books specially prepared, so that the observations for the same day of the year might be found in the same column. These books thus contain a systematic record of the elements of observation to which they refer, and enable the average values of those element of observation at any of the meteorological stations to be immediately determined for a day, week, or any other short period. The tabulation of the results in this way has also the further advantage of enabling the highest and lowest values of the elements of observation at any meteorological station recorded since the establishment of the observatory at that station for any period of the year to be immediately ascertained.

Last year the 10 A.M. barometric readings, the maximum and minimum in shade temperatures, and the rainfall observations taken at the eighteen observatories that have been established for some years in the province, were copied from the monthly sheets into four large folio volumes, which will form the permanent record of these observations in future. If the strength of my office enable me to do it, I hope during the present year to have the humidity, cloud and wind amount tabulated in the same manner, when it will be possible to compare all the elements of observation (except wind direction) at 10 A.M. on any day of the year with the corresponding mean values for that day.

The rainfall observations at all the sub-divisional stations (160 in number) preserved in the office were also collected together and tabulated in the same manner, and the daily and weekly means obtained. These are the actual means and are employed for comparison in the weekly reports. The rainfall returns for each station will continue to be added, so that the twenty-four folio volumes which contain these observations will form the permanent record of the rainfall of the province.

Five of these observatories, viz. Dhubri, Hazaribagh, Cuttack, Chittagong, and Saugor Island have self-registering anemographs. At the three first named stations the anemographs are of the Casella pattern, which record the wind direction and amount at intervals of one hour. The remaining stations—Saugor Island and Chittagong—are provided with Beckley's anemographs, which register wind direction and amount continuously. There were several breaks exceeding 24 hours in the working of those instruments, the dates of which are given in the following table :—

Stations	Date of commencement of work.	Periods during which instrument was out of order during 1883-84.
Dhubri	18th March 1882	From Oct. 26th 8 A.M. to 27th 5 P.M.
Hazaribagh	15th April 1880	Nil.
Cuttack ...	11th April 1879	Sept. 18th to 19th and Dec 16th to 18th.
Chittagong	20th June 1879	May 21st to 23rd, June 9th to 10th, July 11th to 13th.
Saugor Island	9th February 1880 ...	May 21st to 23rd, Oct. 25th to 27th.

Three of these observatories were visited during the cold weather, viz. Dhubri, Sibsagor, and Bankipore.

Dhubri Observatory—Was inspected on the 14th and 15th of December 1883. No change of importance has been made in the position of the shed or the arrangement of the instruments since my last inspection in March 1882. The anemograph tower was erected shortly after that visit, and is situated on a fairly open site near to the thermometer shed. The tower is well built and in good repair. The barometer is kept in the lower room. The recording part of the anemograph is placed on a table in the upper room of the floor, which is by no means so steady and rigid as it ought to be for such an instrument. The observer is, however, very careful in looking after it, and has made one or two slight additions which not only shew his interest in it, but which improve, to some extent, the working of the instrument. The anemograph and barometer were both found to be in very good order. The barometer was also cleaned in order to free it from the large amount of oxidized mercury which had formed in the cistern.

The thermometer shed was in good order. The instruments were clean and in very satisfactory condition. The observatory continues to maintain its high character, and is thoroughly satisfactory in character and accurate and valuable in its observations.

Sibsagor Observatory—Was inspected on 20th to 22nd December 1883 for the first time since its establishment in 1874. The station is situated at a distance of about nine miles to the south of the Brahmaputra in a flat open district. Much of the country between the station and the river is covered with cane jungle. To the south of the station, at a distance of over 20 miles, the Naga Hills rise up to a height of 2,000 to 6,500 feet and form a very marked feature. The Himalayas, the nearest snow peaks of which are at a distance of 70 miles, are also very distinctly visible in clean weather. The station itself is built on the banks of a very large square tank, about two miles in perimeter, the level of the water of which is about 20 feet above that of the adjacent country. The banks, supporting and containing this water, are very wide and large. The observatory is situated on ground formerly occupied by the civil jail on the eastern bank of the tank. The shed is unfortunately placed on the edge of the bank where it begins to slope down to a large shallow excavation, from which the earth was removed to form part of the bank, and is now filled with water. It is also shut in between two buildings (detached portions of the old jail), one of which is used by the observer as his residence, and the other as an office. This second or northern building contains the barometer. This instrument was placed in good light and was in good order, except that the surface of the mercury was oxidized. This was removed. The thermometers were tested and were all in good order. The shed was in fair condition. It was surrounded by a bamboo fence. The observer was requested to cut down several shrubs and high grass which interfered to some slight extent with the free circulation of the air in the shed. The anemometer and wind-vane are placed on the roof of the building containing the barometer, to which access is given by a strong iron ladder. They were in good order. The only defect was that the anemometer was screwed to the top of a long iron rod fixed on the roof, and hence oscillated to some extent with the motion of the air. The observer was instructed to have a small brick pillar built and the anemometer fastened to a shorter rod, the lower end of which is to be buried in the brick pillar. The observer is very neat, careful, and accurate in his work, and the observatory in thoroughly good order. The observer deserves much credit for this, more especially as the station has hitherto been beyond the range of inspection by the Bengal Meteorological Office.

Bankipore—Was inspected on the 23rd of November 1883. No change has been made in the observatory since my last visit. It was found to be in the same satisfactory condition as last year.

Imperial third class observatories.—These are 15 in number. Ten are situated in Bengal, one (Akyab) in Burmah, two (Silchar and in connection Tura) in Assam, and two (Gopalpore and Coconada) in Madras. The two last are maintained in connection with the Bay of Bengal Weather Service.

I was unable to inspect the majority of these observatories during the cold weather college vacation which was fully occupied in visiting the Assam stations and the new or provincial third class observatories. Durbhunga, Gya, Darjeeling, and Jessore were visited by myself; Silchar by Mr Blanford, Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India; and Dacca by my head clerk. The majority of these observatories are satisfactory in character, and the observations accurate and reliable. Two of them, I regret to state, although slightly improved, do not yet furnish observations upon which I am able to place implicit confidence. The observations sent in do not harmonize with those of the neighbouring stations, and the only possible inference I can form is that the discrepancies are due to carelessness or ignorance on the part of the observers. The observatories in question are those situated at Gya and Durbhunga. The only other explanation is that these stations possess very peculiar meteorological conditions, and that the discordance the observations at these stations present, when compared with those of neighbouring stations, is due to a want of uniformity in nature, and not to defects in the observer or in his instruments. This solution of the discrepancy has been suggested in correspondence on the subject, but I am unable to accept it as the true solution, or to recommend it to Government as an explanation of the peculiarities in the observations at these stations.

Durbhunga Observatory—Was visited on the 25th of November 1883. The observer was absent from the station and had left his duties to be performed by a friend, without giving any intimation to the Meteorological Office. As specific orders had been given to the observer on a similar occasion (in November 1882) not to absent himself from his duties without giving the usual intimation to this office and obtaining the necessary sanction, the observer was called upon for an explanation. This was not satisfactory. The state of the observatory last year was disgraceful, and it was mainly in consequence of the observer's promise to be very careful in future, and to carry out the various regulations and orders with respect to the taking of observations diligently and exactly, that he was not deprived of his special allowance of Rs. 5 per mensem. As he has failed to comply with the clear and precise orders necessary to secure the continuity of accurate observation, I had no alternative but to recommend the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India to withdraw his special allowance for a period of six months when he will be again permitted to draw it, if in the interim his observations are found to be satisfactory in character by comparison with those at neighbouring stations.

The shed was in good order and the thermometers fairly clean. The barometer was also satisfactory. The clock which was sent a few months previously was out of order, apparently due to carelessness on the part of some one, as there were signs of its having been dropped, or of its having fallen down. The wind-vane was excessively stiff, and had evidently not been oiled for months. I turned it round through an angle of 120°, and a small puff of wind which caused the anemometer to make 30 revolutions in a minute had no effect in moving it. The wind directions at Durbhunga for months past are hence, I fear, of little value. The anemometer was clean and in fair order. The observatory has improved since last year, but is by no means satisfactory; and I am unable from my continued experience of the observer's carelessness and neglect of orders to place confidence in his observations. If considerable improvement does not occur during the next year, I shall be compelled to call the attention of the Government of Bengal to the unsatisfactory character of the Durbhunga observatory.

Dacca Observatory—My head clerk, who visited Dacca on his way to the new third class observatories in Eastern Bengal, reports as follows on the observatory at that station:—

The Dacca observatory was inspected on 13th February 1884. The barometer was in the same position as on the last inspection. The room has, however, been converted into a sitting room for the use of the Superintendent of Telegraphs of the Dacca Division, and he suggested that the barometer should be placed in another room. It was therefore decided to remove it to one of the office rooms where a suitable exposure will be provided for it. (This has since been done).

The thermometers were in good order, but very dirty. The bulbs of the wet bulb thermometers were thickly covered with encrustation. The observer was instructed how to keep them clean for the future. The receiving bottle in the raingauge was found to be full of dust. There was a depth of a least a quarter of an inch of earthy matter collected at the bottom.

The anemometer and wind-vane worked well. They were clean and properly oiled.

The observer takes his readings accurately. The want of cleanliness in the thermometer shed is a fault which should be remedied. An observer who is interested in his work will always be careful to keep every instrument he uses as clean as possible compatible with the conditions of observation; and want of cleanliness is an almost unfailing evidence of carelessness and inaccuracy of observations.

Provincial third class observatories —These are the additional observatories established in accordance with the extended system sanctioned last year, and maintained from the Provincial Meteorological grant. They are 22 in number. The names of the Superintendents and observers at these stations is given in the following table:—

As the orders of the Government of India sanctioning the proposals of the Government of Bengal for the extension of meteorological work in Bengal were not received until the middle of March (Revenue and Agricultural Department No. 17 Meteo., dated 13th March 1883) it was not possible to arrange that the sheds should be built and the work of observation commenced by the date originally proposed, viz. 1st April 1883.

My college duties prevented my visiting the various stations to select the sites for the observatories, it was therefore necessary to leave this to the judgment of the Public Works officers. Instructions were communicated to them, and in the great majority of cases excellent sites were chosen. In some few instances difficulties of various kinds prevented the utilization of the most suitable site selected by the Public Works officer. In these cases sites more or less inconveniently situated and badly exposed were necessarily chosen. The observatories erected on these sites will, as the value of the extended meteorological system is recognized, I feel confident, be permitted to be removed to more suitable positions than they at present occupy.

I deemed it advisable to spend a considerable part of the college vacation in visiting these observatories to ascertain the condition of exposure of the instruments and to remedy any defects that might have arisen in the construction of the sheds, arrangement of the instruments, and the methods of observation. The sites, it should be remembered, were selected by Public Works officers in accordance with instructions issued from this office, and the work of observation carried on by Overseers or Sub-overseers of the Public Works Department who had received no previous training, and merely carrying out as they best could (frequently with the assistance of the Assistant Engineers or Executive Engineers) the methods and instructions as described in the Vade Mecum. The results, as will be seen from the following reports on the stations visited, were very much more satisfactory than I expected. A few defects were observed, but in the great majority of cases the work of observation was performed quite as satisfactorily and accurately as at the third class stations. The reports are given in the order of place and not in the order of time of inspection.

Ranigunge Observatory—Was inspected twice during the year. The observatory is attached to the subsidiary jail, the hospital assistant who is in charge of the jail taking the observations. The shed is erected in a large open space enclosed by the jail walls, and is constructed in accordance with the standard plan. The walls enclosing this compound are from 6 to 10 feet high, and are at distances varying from 20 to 60 yards from the shed. The instruments were in good order. The raingauge is placed in the open near the observatory shed, at a distance of about 10 yards.

The barometer is kept in the office-room, and is in good light.

The wind-vane and anemometer are placed on the roof of the office room, and are well exposed, as they are on the highest part of the jail buildings, which are on the highest ground in the station, and at a considerable distance from large trees.

The observer had some difficulty in learning to read the barometer and anemometer correctly. He was not able to procure any assistance in Ranigunge, nor was he able to leave his post to come to Calcutta for a course of instruction at the Alipore observatory. Hence my two visits were chiefly spent in teaching him to read these instruments correctly.

The observer appears to be careful in his work and willing to do his best. The observations have been during the latter part of the year fairly satisfactory and trustworthy.

Noakholly Observatory—The Noakholly observatory was inspected by my Head Clerk on the 6th February 1884. The shed is in the Circuit House compound, and is generally built in accordance with the standard plan. The eaves were found to be 2½ feet higher than they ought to have been. The instruments were in good order. The anemometer worked very heavily. On examination it was found to be defective. The teeth of the cog-wheels were worn away. The instrument was returned to Calcutta and replaced by another.

The observations at Noakholly have hitherto been taken by the Overseer, who is frequently obliged to leave the station on duty; there have hence been frequent breaks in the observations. The Magistrate suggests certain changes, which will, if carried out, secure continuous observations. He proposes that the shed be removed to the jail compound (in which there is a very large open space where it would be conveniently placed) and that the anemometer and wind-vane be placed on the roof of the collectorate and the barometer in one of the rooms of the Collector's cutcherry (viz. the Collector's waiting-room). If this were done, the civil hospital assistant, who is in charge of the jail dispensary, would be able to take the observations, and as he is very intelligent and lives in quarters in the jail, his appointment as observer would secure regular and continuous, and in the opinion of the Magistrate, accurate and trustworthy observation. The changes suggested by the Magistrate will therefore, if possible, be carried out.

Burrisaul Observatory—Was inspected by my Head Clerk on the 31st January and 1st February 1884. The observatory is situated at a distance of about one and a half miles from the circuit-house bungalow and close to the Burrisaul river. To the south of the observatory shed, at a distance of about 250 feet, is the depôt for the night-soil of the district jail prisoners (numbering 500). The site is objectionable on this and other accounts. The ground is low. The site is near the river, and during the rains, when it is full, the water overflows and reaches within 50 or 60 feet from the shed. There is also a large topo of mango and other trees at a short distance to the south-west. The site is open in other directions. The barometer is, however, kept in the Public Works Department inspection bungalow, at a distance of one and a half miles from the shed, and a single set of observations hence requires two observers, one to read the barometer and the second the remaining instruments. The shed was originally erected in the circuit-house compound, but was removed by the orders of the Commissioner according to information received by the Inspector.

The Magistrate suggested its retransfer to its previous site, where it would be near to the room in which the barometer is kept, and also to the Public Works offices in which the observer is employed.

The instruments were found clean and in good order. The wind-vane and anemometer are placed on posts about 10 feet high. The barometer is kept in the Public Works Department inspection bungalow, and was found to be in good condition. The Public Works Department Overseer, who has taken the observations since the establishment of the observatory, takes much interest in his work and reads the instruments carefully and correctly.

Serajgunge Observatory—Was inspected by my Head Clerk on the 20th, 21st, and 22nd of February 1884. It is situated in the grounds of the Telegraph office close to the circuit-house bungalow. The district is low and flat. The soil is sandy and very porous, and dries rapidly after rain. In the rainy season the whole district is flooded.

The observing shed is wellbuilt, and is of the standard pattern, but of dimensions slightly different from those in the Vade Mecum. The whole structure stands on masonry work two feet eight inches from the ground. This was necessary as the ground is covered with water during the rains to a depth occasionally exceeding one foot and a half. The eaves of the shed being so high from the ground, the sun and rain strike inside the shed. The cage was found to be shaky. This has since been made right. The barometer is kept in the signal room of the Telegraph office, which is a thatched shed. There is no pucca Government building near the Telegraph office where the barometer can be placed. The instrument is in good order.

The cage instruments are in good order, excepting the wet thermometer, the bulb of which was partially covered with encrustation. This was owing to the use of well water for the reservoir. The observer was cautioned against the use of any water except rain and distilled water, and in their absence well boiled water.

The raingauge requires to be embedded in masonry work at least one foot high to protect it from being flooded over during the rains. The observer did not know that he had to use the receiving bottle for the gauge. It was kept aside in a godown. His attention was drawn to the chapter in the Vade Mecum on "Raingauge."

The wind-vane and anemometer are placed on the roof of the sub-collectorate, a one-storied building about 15 feet high. The instruments are reached by a strong ladder, and are at present fixed on two small blocks of wood on the parapet of the roof; but they are likely to be blown down. The observer has therefore been asked to submit an estimate of the cost of erecting masonry pillars on which to place the instruments as directed in the Vade Mecum. It is proposed to erect a block of two-storied buildings for the collectorate, and when they are completed, the wind-vane and anemometer might be removed to the top of the new building, which will give a good exposure for the instruments.

The level of the barometer has not yet been determined for want of a datum level, the nearest bench-mark being several miles off from the station.

The observer takes much interest in his work, and records his observations very accurately.

Commillah Observatory.—Was inspected by my Head Clerk on the 9th February 1884. The station is situated on level ground. Throughout the district are scattered numerous large tanks. To the north-east rise the Tipperah Hills, which are visible from Commillah in clear weather, and form a prominent feature in the landscape. The river Goomtee passes to the east of the station of Commillah at a distance of about half a mile, and to the west the Megna, a deep and very broad stream.

The barometer is kept in a room of the road cess buildings and is in good order. The thermometer shed is erected on the western edge of a large tank, at a distance of about 10 feet from the edge of the water. It is well built and in good order. Except on the side towards the tank, it is surrounded by a fence at a distance of about 30 feet from the shed. The maximum thermometer was found to be out of order, and another was called for by telegram. The wind-vane and anemometer were originally placed on the roof of the collectorate, at a distance of about 150 feet from the room containing the barometer and 300 feet from the thermometer shed. The anemometer was returned to Calcutta as defective in August 1883. The roof of the collectorate is, however, not a very suitable place for the wind-vane, as it is a low one-storied building surrounded by tall trees, many double the height of the building. Hence the wind observations are not taken under satisfactory conditions, and it may be desirable to erect the wind-vane and anemometer on posts or pillars in the open ground near the thermometer shed.

The observations are taken by the supervisor and two sub-overseers of the Public Works Department, and have been accurate and satisfactory in character from the commencement. The shed is neatly constructed and the instruments very clean and in capital order. The condition of the observatory generally reflects very great credit on the supervisor.

Mymensingh Observatory—Was inspected by my Head Clerk on the 25th, 26th, and 27th of February 1884. The town is situated on the west bank of the Brahmaputra river, which runs as a shallow broad stream (during winter) with high banks. The whole of the district is level and open, with the exception of the Muddapore jungle, which lies to the southwest, comprising an area of about 45 miles in length by 6 to 16 miles in breadth. This part is slightly elevated, averaging in height some 50 to 60 feet above the general level. The district is also intersected by many small rivers.

The observatory is situated in an open field close to the zillah and vernacular schools, the collectorate, and the Public Works Department offices. The shed is of the standard pattern and well built. The ventilating hole required to be replaced by a section of a bamboo as directed in the Vade Mecum. The site is open, but being near the play-grounds of the two schools, the instruments are subject to interference from the boys. There is a bamboo fencing round the shed, but it does not appear to be strong enough to keep off mischievous boys. It is desirable therefore to have a strong wooden fence round the shed with a small gate for entrance, which should remain closed against outsiders.

The barometer is kept in an office room of the Public Works Department, and well placed. The instrument is in good order. The height of the mercury in the cistern of the barometer above sea level has not been determined for want of a datum level. The observatory was without the hygrometers. They were reported to have been broken by some of the boys of the neighbouring schools. The maximum and minimum thermometers were properly exposed and were in good order. From a local investigation of the circumstances attending the breakage of the thermometers, the Head Clerk ascertained that the mischief was due to one Rajendro Kissore Roy of the 4th class of the Hardinge School, who was willing to pay for new instruments. The head master was asked to recover from the boy Rs. 20—the cost of the thermometers—and pay it into the treasury.

The wind-vane and anemometer are placed on two pillars on the top of the turret clock-tower in the collectorate, 52 feet high. The position is quite open and equal to that of the Alipore observatory. The rod of the wind-vane (Adie) was found to be slightly bent; this was (as reported) owing to the injury it had received during transit to Mymensingh. The instruments worked well and were found to be well oiled. The raingauge is well placed. The fence was a little too near. It has been removed further off.

The observer reads his instruments correctly. The Assistant Engineer takes great interest in the proper working of the observatory, and has trained the observer (a sub-overseer) well. The Public Works Department is providing a ladder to reach the top of the clock-tower.

Furreedpore Observatory—Was inspected by my head clerk on the 16th of February 1884. The shed is situated in the centre of a fairly large open maidan near the police lines, and at a short distance from the circuit-house.

It is well and strongly built, but, through some oversight, not exactly in accordance with the Bengal pattern. The chief defects were that there was no ventilating hole in the roof to permit the escape of heated air, and that the eaves were somewhat too high. These defects have since been remedied.

The thermometers were generally in very fair condition. The wet bulb was covered with a thickish encrustation in consequence of the use of tank water instead of rain water. The barometer is kept in a room in the jail building, and was found to be in good order. The raingauge is placed near the observer's home at a distance about half a mile from the shed, and was in good order. The wind-vane and anemometer were erected on a platform supported by posts with a bamboo ladder to reach them. The latter instrument was somewhat dirty. It was hence taken down and cleaned, and the observer instructed in the method of cleaning and oiling it.

The observer read the instruments correctly and takes much interest in his observations, which have been on the whole very satisfactory during the year.

The only defect in the observatory is that the instruments (barometer and rainguage) are situated at considerable distances from one another and the shed, and also from the house and office of the observer. My head clerk suggested the removal of the shed to a position in a field belonging to the municipality. I have, however, not thought it advisable to make any change at present, as the observations under the present system seem to be quite trustworthy and taken at the proper hour daily, and the removal of the observatory from one part of a station to another, to suit the convenience of the observer, would speedily do away with uniformity in the conditions of observation and registration.

Rampore Beauleah Observatory—Was inspected by my Head Clerk on the 10th and 11th January 1884. The observatory is situated near the Executive Engineer's office at about a mile and a half from the city. The river Ganges (Padma) flows as a deep wide stream to the south of the observatory at a distance of about 500 feet from the shed.

The barometer is kept in a room in the Executive Engineer's office. It was in a bad position as the light came directly from the front. The instrument has since been removed to a better and more secure position in the same room. The sea level height has not been affected thereby.

The thermometer shed is of the standard pattern, but the air hole on the top of the shed instead of being a ventilating pipe was found to be of the form of an elliptical hole (about 2 feet by 1½ feet) permitting the sun's rays to enter at certain hours of the day, and affecting the thermometric readings. This has been remedied.

The thermometer cage instead of being set upon the southern pole in the shed had been fixed by means of two additional posts in the middle of the north and the south poles supporting the ridge. The observer was asked to set it in the proper place.

The thermometers were in good order with the exception of the wet bulb hygrometer. The bulb of this instrument was found to be completely coated with a thick deposit, and the muslin had evidently not been changed for some time, as it was very dirty. The muslin was removed. Instructions for keeping the instrument in order were also given to the observer.

The anemometer and wind-vane are placed on the terrace roof of the Executive Engineer's office, and appear to be in a satisfactory position. There are several high trees to the north and north-east of the building at a distance of about 100 or 150 feet from it, but they probably do not influence the wind direction to any appreciable extent. The anemometer was full of dirt and appeared to work with much friction. It was taken down, cleaned and oiled and reset in position, and the observer instructed to keep it clean in future.

The raingauge is in the garden compound of the Executive Engineer. The mouth of the funnel was not level. The funnel hole was completely choked up by dirt and earth. The rain receptacle was also far from being clean.

The observer read the instruments well.

Dinagepore Observatory—Inspected by my Head Clerk on the 8th January 1884. It is situated near the circuit-house in a fairly open space, but on low ground. The river Poonarvava flows to the west and north-west of the observatory at a distance of about one-fourth of a mile.

The barometer is placed in a brick-built store-room of the Public Works Department, and is in good light. The instrument was clean and in good working order The shed is entirely of bamboo work, but strong and well thatched, and laid out according to the standard plan.

The thermometers are all properly exposed and in very good order. The anemometer and wind-vane are placed on the terrace of the Judge's court-house at a distance of about 725 feet from the thermometer shed To the north and north-west of the building, at a distance of 100 to 140 feet, there are several large trees which overtop the instruments on the terrace The instruments were in good order.

The raingauge is well placed, but the fencing was too near the instrument. The observer was instructed to remove it to a further distance, and this has since been done.

The observer is a subordinate of the Public Works Department. He appears to take great interest in his work, and reads the instruments correctly.

Rungpore Observatory—The station of Rungpore is in the plains of Northern Bengal on low flat land between the rivers Teesta and Cosi. The observatory is erected on a large open maidan near the Collector's cutchery. The ground is somewhat low and apt to be flooded during heavy rains. The barometer is kept in an out-room of the Collector's court, and is conveniently situated in a good light.

The thermometer shed is situated about 100 feet to the north-west of the northern extremity of the Collector's cutchery. The post office is situated in about the same distance to the west; with the exception of these two buildings, the ground in the neighbourhood is very open and quite free from trees. The shed is very well built and was clean, and the instruments in satisfactory working order.

The anemometer and wind-vane are erected on the school-house—a building about one-fourth of a mile to the south of the observatory. The building is a lofty one, and the instruments are placed on small brick pillars, and are thoroughly well exposed. They are approached by substantial ladders

The observatory is well built and the observations trustworthy. It reflects much credit on the Assistant Engineer who selected the site and superintended the erection of the observatory and the commencement of the work of observation.

Julpigoree Observatory—Inspected on the 6th January 1884. The observatory is situated on a large open maidan near the Executive Engineer's office and within a few minutes' walk from the railway station. The site is open, as the nearest trees and buildings are at a considerable distance. The river Teesta flows past the station at a distance of about half a mile to the east and northeast of the observatory. The banks of the river are low, and the district is alluvial.

In the absence of any brick building near the observatory, the barometer is kept in a thatched godown belonging to the Public Works Department walled by thick durma mats all round. It is in fair light and in good working order.

The shed is constructed of bamboo on the pattern laid down in the Vade Mecum. It is neatly and strongly built. The thermometers are in good order. The raingauge is well placed and free from any obstruction in all directions.

The anemometer and wind-vane are placed on a wooden platform 18 feet high, supported by poles with ladders to reach them. The vane is correctly set. The anemometer worked somewhat heavily and had evidently not been cleaned or oiled since its erection. It was taken down, cleaned, oiled, and reset in position, and the observer instructed how to keep it clean and in good working order. The head clerk of the Executive Engineer's office is the observer. He reads the thermometers correctly, but was doubtful and slow about the barometric and anemometric readings. Fortunately the Executive Engineer is much interested in the observatory, and frequently takes the barometric readings, so that the barometric observations hitherto taken have generally been satisfactory.

The observer was drilled for some time in reading the two instruments with fairly satisfactory results.

Bhagulpore Observatory—Inspected on the 17th and 18th November 1883. The observatory is situated in the compound containing the dispensary and the Assistant Surgeon's quarters. It is on fairly open ground and well situated. The barometer is kept in a room of the dispensary, and is placed in a satisfactory light. The anemometer and wind-vane are both erected on the roof of the dispensary, and are reached by strong ladders. There are numerous trees in the neighbourhood, but they are at some distance away, and do not influence the readings of the wind-gauging instruments. The observatory is fairly good as to situation: the instruments well placed and in good order. The observer is also head clerk to the Executive Engineer, and is apparently both accurate and careful in his work.

Chupra Observatory—Was inspected on the 5th and 6th of December 1883. The station is situated on the northern bank of the Ganges, and is in the midst of a flat, well cultivated alluvial district. The observatory shed (well fenced in) is erected in the compound of the circuit-house bungalow in one of the rooms of which the barometer is kept. The shed is neatly and strongly built in accordance with the Bengal pattern, and was found in very good order. The thermometers were all in good order, except the wet bulb, which, on examination, was found to be wrongly graduated. This defective instrument had apparently been issued without due examination by some oversight in both the Bengal and India offices. The readings of the wet bulb for the preceding months are hence entirely wrong, and the deduced humidity values of this station published in the Bengal daily weather reports during last year incorrect and misleading. A new wet bulb was sent very shortly afterwards to replace this defective instrument.

The wind-vane and anemometer are erected on the roof of the road cess offices. They are about 30 feet from the ground, and the neighbourhood is fairly open and free from large trees, so that the exposure is satisfactory.

The raingauge is kept in the compound of the same buildings. The distance between the circuit-house bungalow and the road cess offices is between one-fourth and half of a mile. This separation of the wind-recording instruments is not very satisfactory, but I was unable to propose any other arrangement, as it is very difficult to obtain a good exposure for wind-vane and anemometer in a mofussil station.

The instruments were all in good order, and the observer was accurate in his readings.

Motihari Observatory—Inspected on the 21st and 22nd November 1883. The station is in the Chumparun district, and is situated in a level alluvial district about 20 miles to the east of the river Gundack. The observatory is placed on a large maidan or open space between the new collectorate offices and the railway. There are no trees in the neighbourhood, as the new collectorate buildings have been erected at some little distance from the old station, and hence its exposure is much more open than in the case of the majority of our stations, and represents more closely the atmospheric conditions of the surrounding district than is usually the case. The shed is very substantially and neatly erected. It is enclosed at some distance by an open latticework which allows complete circulation of the air, but prevents admission to the cattle which pasture on the maidan. The thermometers were all clean and in good working order, except the maximum in shade, which had apparently reached the observatory in a defective condition (It was replaced by a correct instrument.) The barometer is kept in the Collector's waiting-room. The light is good, and the instrument in efficient working order. The anemometer is placed on one of the highest points of the collectorate building in a capital position. The wind-vane has been for the present placed on the top of the central pole of the shed, and is reached by means of a ladder reclining on the roof of the shed. This is the only instrument that is not satisfactorily placed, and it would be very desirable to have the wind-vane placed on the top of the collectorate building in the position which I pointed out to the sub-overseer and observer. Strong ladders should be provided to enable the observer to mount to the roof of the collectorate with comfort and rapidity.

The observatory is in a very satisfactory state, and reflects much credit on the observer.

Buxar Observatory—Inspected on the 7th December 1883. The observatory at this station is in the fort. The interior of the fort is considerably elevated above the surrounding ground. At a short distance to the north of the fort the Ganges flows past. The river here has the same character as at Benares. It flows as a deep stream between highish banks. The southern bank appears to be the higher at Buxar. There is no wide stretch of sand through which the river flows, as is the case in the lower reaches of the river. The only building in the fort is the office and residence of the Executive Engineer of the Buxar Canal. The barometer is kept in a room of the office and is in a very good light. The shed is erected in a small depression in the mud wall enclosing the fort, and is well exposed. The instruments were very clean and in good order. The wind-vane and anemometer are erected in one of the corner bastions, and are thoroughly well exposed and in perfect order. The observer read the instruments carefully and correctly. This observatory is in very satisfactory order, and the observations of high value for accuracy.

Arrah Observatory—Was inspected on the 4th and 5th December 1883. The observatory is in the compound of the office of the Superintending Engineer of the Sone Canals at a short distance from the railway station. The site is fairly open. The shed is strongly built, and is in very good order. The barometer is placed in a large office room and is in a capital light. The thermometers were all in good order, except the minimum in shade, the column of which had given some little trouble from its tendency to break. The observer was taught how to remedy this effect. The raingauge is in open ground near to the observatory. The wind-vane and anemometer are on the roof of the building, and are well exposed. The observatory is very satisfactory, and the observer accurate and careful in his work.

Dehree Observatory—Was inspected by my Head Clerk on the 22nd March 1883. It is situated in the Dehree Workshop dispensary compound. The shed is very old and shaky, and t e thatching is thin and worn-out. The instruments in the cage were not set according to the approved standard regulations. They were correctly placed. There should be a fence round the shed. The barometer is placed in a room in the dispensary building, and was found in good order.

The thermometers were clean and in good order. The minimum thermometer was found to have some cotton stuffing inside the hole on the wooden board near the bulb. This has since been removed. The presence of the cotton stuffing quite close to the bulb may have slightly affected the minimum thermometer readings of the past months.

The anemometer and wind-vane are set up on the top of the dispensary bungalow. They are reached by a strong ladder and a flight of steps on the sloped roofing. The instrument is fixed to the upper end of a gas pipe five feet high, and is hence shaken by the slightest wind The wind-vane (Adie) is placed close to and on a level with the cups of the anemometer, and is kept in continual motion by the rotation of the anemometer As an effect of the shaking the pivot screw nut on the back of the dail wheels of the instrument had been thrown off from the worm of the screw and lost The observer was asked to have the nut replaced from the workshops Other instruments were found to be quite satisfactory.

Baboo Peary Lall Sen, Assistant Surgeon, is the observer. He reads the instruments fairly, and takes much interest ir his meteorological duties.

Nya Doomka—Is situated in the Sonthal Pergunnahs at an elevation of about 500 feet in the midst of the broken country between the plains of Southern Behar and the Gangetic Delta. The station itself is situated on fairly level and open ground, but in its neighbourhood there are many low hills more or less wooded.

The observatory shed is in the compound of the dispensary. The shed was erected according to the pattern plan under the supervision of the Civil Surgeon, and is well built and in good order. The instruments were properly exposed and in satisfactory condition. The barometer is well placed in the office room of the Civil Surgeon.

The raingauge is placed at a short distance from the shed. The wind-vane was erected on the top of a pole about 16 feet high, and was read from below. The anemometer was not in position, as there is no proper building near the dispensary with a flat roof on which to erect the wind-vane and anemometer. I have since my visit sanctioned the erection of a brick pillar with a brick staircase for the accommodation of these instruments.

The observatory is in very satisfactory order, and the observer careful and accurate in his record of observations. The observatory is the only one as yet in operation in the large district known as the Sonthal Pergunnahs, and will, I trust, give observations of very considerable value. Its establishment was due to a suggestion from the Civil Surgeon, who has taken much interest in it, and made it one of the most efficient of those started last year under the new system.

Rainfall-recording stations.—There has been a slight increase in the number of rain-recording stations during the past year. In 1882-83 the number was 162, and in the official year 1883 84 it was 167. This increase is due to the establishment of the following rainfall stations:—

	Date of first sending in returns.
Naraingunge	June 1883.
Nowgong	July „
Silligoree	do. „
Dehree	do. „
Lohardugga	January 1884.

The returns from the great majority of these stations were received punctually and regularly. Delays occurred in the submission of the returns occasionally. The only stations which gave frequent trouble in this respect were Bagirhat (in Khoolna district) and Jagatsingpore (in the district of Cuttack). It was necessary on several occasions to call the attention of the sub-divisional officer in charge of the former station to the delay and inaccuracy in his rainfall reports.

Some of the rain-registering gauges for revenue purposes (viz. at Commillah, Mymensingh, Rampore Beauleah, Burrisaul, Serajgunge) were examined by my Head Clerk on his visit from district to district during his inspection of the local observatories. He found in the case of every raingauge that he examined a large accumulation of dirt in the gauge and glass receiver; hence it appears to me probable that the raingauge and appendages are generally not kept as clean as they ought to be. Experience shews me that carelessness in not keeping instruments clean is frequently accompanied with carelessness of observation. I am of course not able to assert that such is the case in the rainfall registration of Bengal. So far as I can judge from the examination of the rainfall returns, the registration of rainfall is effected with approximate accuracy, and the returns give generally consistent and continuous variations from district to district, which are the strongest proof of their correctness. In a few cases during the year they were evidently inconsistent, and probably wrong, due either to careless reading or neglect to measure the rainfall at the proper hour.

Instruments.—The following tables shew the number of instruments that have been broken, or lost, or rendered unserviceable during the year 1883, at the Imperial and Provincial observatories, and of the instruments supplied to them during the year. The additional Provincial observatories, 22 in number, were furnished with complete sets of instruments shortly after the commencement of the official year. These instruments were received almost without exception in good order, due mainly to the careful way in which they were packed by the Mathematical Instrument Department.

(a) To replace a defective instrument.
(c) One out of order in transit.

The number of instruments destroyed by accident during the year was unusually small. The Chittagong, Purneah, Durbhunga, and Sibsagor observers each broke a thermometer during the course of the year whilst handling them at the time of taking the observations. No breakages have occurred during the year at the new stations. This is partly due to the fact that they are not provided with radiation thermometers which are the most liable to damage on account of the conditions of their exposure. It, however, indicates that the new observers have been very careful of their instruments, and it is exceedingly creditable to them.

A grass radiation thermometer was stolen at Dhubri. Efforts were made to discover the thief, but without success. Two thermometers, the wet and dry bulb thermometers, were broken at Mymensingh in the month of January. Suspicion fell on one of the boys of the vernacular school, and when my Head Clerk was in the station inspecting the observatory, he enquired carefully into the matter. The result was that the cost of the instrument was recovered from the guardians of the boy who broke the instruments and paid into the treasury.

A fifth table is added giving the instruments that have been returned by the observatories and made over to the store of the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India.

Central Office.—The office establishment on the 31st March 1884 consisted of the following clerks:—

Baboo Chandi Charan Chatterjee, Head clerk.
" Purna Chundra Mukerjee, 2nd "
" Bireswar Mukerjee, 3rd "
" Kamini Mohun Bose, Tabulator.
" Jaggeswar Roy "
" Debendra Nath Banerjee "
" Rakhal Das Chukerbutty "
" Ashutosh Roy Chowdhuri "
" Nibarun Chandra Chatterjee "
" Joti Lal De "
" Nogendra Nath Paul, Draughtsman.

The amount of work which had to be done in connection with the extension of the system was much larger than I anticipated, and it was therefore necessary to employ temporary clerks for some months. Four were employed from 16th May to 15th July, and three from 16th July to 15th November.

The clerks generally have assisted zealously and intelligently in carrying out the extensions, and have worked very laboriously during the past year. Baboo Chandi Charan Chatterjee has, as last year, been a most efficient Head Clerk. I desire also to place on record my recognition of the hard and useful work done by Baboos Kamini Mohun Bose and Debendra Nath Banerjee, the former of whom was in charge of the rainfall registration and tabulation, and the latter of the preparation of the Bay of Bengal and Bengal Daily Weather Reports.

The following gives a brief summary of the work done by the office during the year:—

1. The correspondence which included 1,750 letters received and 2,440 letters issued, or 4,190 letters in all docketted and filed for reference. The following table will show the very large increase that has taken place in the office correspondence consequent on the extension and the rapid rate at which the correspondence has increased during the past two years:—

Year.	Letters received.	Letters issued.	Total number.
1879	621	579	1,200
1880	672	629	1,301
1881	601	635	1,236
1882	917	1,112	2,029
1883	1,750	2,440	4,190

2. The reduction and tabulation of the 10 A.M. and 4 P.M. observations taken at seven second class stations, and fifteen Imperial third class stations, and of the 10 A.M. observations taken at twenty-two Provincial third class stations, and also of the hourly observation taken on four days of each month at the following second class stations:—

Dhubri.	Patna.
Sibsagar.	Cuttack.
Hazaribagh.	Chittagong.

3. The entry of all the observations taken previous to the year 1883 at 18 stations in Bengal in books for reference, and in such a manner that the mean pressure, maximum or minimum temperature, and rainfall for any day of the year at any of these stations can be at once obtained. These are filed in four thick folio volumes, and the observations which continue to be taken are added, so that they form a continuous record of all the observations taken at each station, arranged in the simplest way for reference.

4. The entry of all the rainfall observations taken at the revenue stations filed in the office records into twenty-four large folio volumes in a similar manner to the preceding, so that the average rainfall for any day, or any week or month, or any other portion of a year, may be determined with the least possible labour.

5. The preparation of the Bengal daily weather report, from 15th May to the 6th of November, and of the Bay of Bengal weather report during the year.

6. The preparation of the weekly and monthly meteorological and rainfall reports for the province published in the Calcutta Gazette.

7. The preparation of four sets of three rainfall charts monthly during the south-west monsoon period 1883 (i.e. from May to November), showing by colours—

(1) the average distribution of rainfall over the province for the month;
(2) the actual distribution of rainfall for the same month;
(3) The variation of the actual from the average rainfall, indicating whether it was in excess or defect, and the amount.

The four sets were all drawn and coloured by hand. One set was forwarded about the 8th of the succeeding month (to that to which it referred) to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor; a second set to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal in the Revenue Department; a third to the Sanitary Commissioner; and the fourth was kept for office reference.

8. Preparation of special returns and a special set of charts, illustrating the distribution and partial failure of the rains in Bengal during the south-west monsoon period of 1883 (i.e. from May 15th to November 15th). These were submitted to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal in the Revenue Department, and were referred to in the Resolution of the Government of Bengal in the Revenue Department, dated 18th December 1883, in the following terms:—"These results are shewn upon charts which have been prepared by the Meteorological Reporter to this Government. The Lieutenant-Governor would have been glad had time permitted of these charts being lithographed and published with this Resolution; for an inspection of them, and a perusal of the correspondence published herewith, would have shewn in a striking manner the intimate relation which exists between deficient rainfall and crop failure. In fact, it may be said that the information supplied to Government by the Meteorological Reporter suggests practically the same conclusions which an examination of the local reports dictates."

9. The preparation of tables giving the average and actual rainfall, and the difference between the actual and average rainfall (or variation) for each month of the year 1883 and for the whole year at 166 rainfall-recording stations. These returns were published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 30th January 1884.

Storm-signals.—No very severe cyclone was generated in the Bay of Bengal during the year 1883. A number of smaller cyclonic storms occurred during the prevalence of the south-west monsoon over the Bay They gave rise to strong winds and stormy weather, and in one or two cases to winds of hurricane force over a small part of the Bay, more or less dangerous to any ships involved in them near the centre. The following is a list of all those which are known to have occasioned wind and sea, trying, if not dangerous, to shipping:—

1. Storm of June 13th to 16th at the commencement of the south-west monsoon, and which gave the first heavy burst of rainfall to Behar. It formed near the Balasore Coast on the 13th, and advanced into Behar where it broke up on the 20th

2 Storm of June 26th to July 4th. This was generated slowly near the Sandheads on the 26th and 27th, and was of considerable intensity, and remained nearly stationary until the 29th. It crossed the Balasore coast early on the morning of the 30th.

3. Storm of July 6th to 8th. This was formed at or near the Sandheads under similar conditions to the preceding, but was of small intensity. It crossed the Balasore coast on the afternoon of the 7th.

4. Storm of the 12th to 14th of July. This began to form on the morning of the 12th off the south Orissa coast, across which (between False Point and Gopalpore) the centre advanced on the evening of the 13th, or early on the morning of the 14th into the Central Provinces. It was of slight intensity.

5. Storm of the 16th to 18th of August. This was formed in the north-west angle of the Bay, and crossed the north Orissa coast near Balasore. This storm was very small, and of very slight intensity, and of no importance.

6. Storm of the 23rd to the 26th of August. This was generated further to the south than the preceding storm, and crossed the Ganjam coast between Gopalpore and Vizagapatam on the evening of the 25th. It was of slight intensity.

7. Storm of the 30th August to the 3rd of September. This depression crossed the coast near Balasore on the afternoon of the 2nd of September, and was of moderate intensity.

8. Storm of the 6th and 7th of September. This was formed immediately after the preceding, and followed along nearly the same track, crossing the Orissa coast to the south of Balasore on the morning of the 7th. It was of small intensity.

9. Storm of the 11th to the 15th of November. This was apparently generated in the Martaban Gulf, and advanced first in a north-westerly direction to latitude 16 N and longitude 93° 45E in the neighbourhood at Diamond Island, and then recurved slightly and moved northwards parallel to the coast and broke up in the neighbourhood of Akyab during the afternoon of the 14th. This was the most severe and intense storm of the year in the Bay, but was of very limited extent, and hence did not apparently affect the weather in the north-west angle of the Bay.

10. Storm of the 2nd to the 4th of December.

The above list of storms for the year 1883 presents two important peculiarities, which are both illustrations of generalizations and deductions, to which attention has been called in my cyclone reports. The first is the unusually large number of small cyclonic storms during the period when the south-west monsoon was in force at the head of the Bay and in Bengal. The south-west monsoon of last year was unusually weak, and terminated abruptly in the latter part of September. A weak monsoon is usually accompanied with heavier rainfall than usual near the head of the Bay, and with the consequent formation of a larger number of cyclonic storms or atmospheric whirls. The past south-west monsoon has apparently been a well marked illustration of this principle. The other important feature was the absence of storms during the period extending from the 15th of September to the 10th of November After the abrupt termination of the south-west monsoon in Northern India, north-easterly winds set in almost immediately on the Coromandel Coast and gave heavy rain for several weeks, so that the commencement of the north-east monsoon in Madras last year was one of the most favourable for agricultural operations which that presidency has experienced for some years. Heavy continuous rain on the Madras coast during the October transitive period is, as indicated by the condensation theory of cyclones, unfavourable to the formation of cyclonic whirls on the Bay at that time. Experience confirms this, and indicates that a strong north-east monsoon on the Madras coast, with heavy and more or less continuous rain over the land, is associated with an absence of cyclones in the Bay. The past year was a remarkable example of this principle. The October transition period was characterized by unusually fine weather in the Bay, and by the non-occurrence of a single storm until the 11th of November, when rainfall ceased for some time in the Madras Presidency.

Nine of these storms, viz Nos. 1, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, and 10, although giving strong winds and a high sea at Saugor Island, did not appear to be of sufficient intensity to warrant the hoisting of storm signals. Warning signals were hoisted for storm No 2 only.

On the approach of this storm, bad weather signal No. 6 was hoisted at 11-30 A.M. on the 28th June, intimating that a small cyclonic storm was formed near the head of the Bay. This was changed on the receipt of further telegraphic weather reports to signal No. 8, at 1 P.M of the same day, intimating that the storm was advancing from the Bay to the coast on the west of the Hooghly, or between Saugor Island and False Point. The storm signals were taken down at 2 P.M. on the 30th.

Daily Weather Reports.—As stated in my last report, the form of the Bay of Bengal daily weather report was altered at the commencement of the official year. The size of the sheet was reduced, a better quality of paper was used, and a chart and form lithographed for it at the Lithographic Department of the Government Trigonometrical Survey The new form of report was first issued on the 15th May. The character of the report was not altered, but advantage was taken of the establishment of an observatory at Balasore to increase slightly the number of the stations sending observations for this report. The report now furnishes observations taken at 17 stations on or near the coast of the Bay, together with a summary of the more important features of the weather as indicated by the observations, and a chart giving the distribution of pressure, air motion, and rainfall. This report was supplied to 29 subscribers and 30 Government officials at the commencement of the year, and to 29 subscribers and 32 Government officials at the end of the year. The receipts from subscription during the year covered the cost of printing and distributing the reports There was a small balance of Rs. 160-5-6 at the end of the year 1883-84, which was kept in hand in order to meet any repairs to the lithographic presses.

The Bengal daily weather report was first issued on the 15th of May The first reports gave observations taken at 14 stations, with a short summary. The number of stations was gradually increased by the establishment of the additional observatories, and from the beginning of August daily weather telegrams were received from 31 observatories, including four in Orissa, six in South-West Bengal, four in East Bengal, six in North Bengal, four in North Behar, six in South Behar, and one in Chutia Nagpur.

These reports were published and issued by the Bengal Secretariat Press, and were supplied to 94 Government officials and to three subscribers.

Copies of the weekly and monthly meteorological and rainfall returns (as published in the Gazette) were struck off for the convenience of the public, and were supplied at a charge just sufficient to cover the actual expense of printing and distribution.

Marine Meteorology.—A fair amount of work has again been done in this Department. In consequence of the unusually heavy work thrown upon me during the past year in carrying out the extensions required for the Bengal Government, and of my absence for three months on privilege leave, I was not able to do as much as I desired Mr. Dallas has continued to work steadily at the charting of the barometer and wind data of the Bay, and has finished this work up to the month of June Two hundred and fifty-three sets of returns, giving meteorological extracts from logs, were sent in to me by the Captains of vessels arriving in the Port. The officers of several steamers belonging to lines trading between Calcutta and England take special observations in the Bay and Arabian Sea on their way home and back again. Log-books have been sent to me on several occasions with permission to make any extracts that were required.

The results of the working of the past two years has shown, it seems to me, conclusively that a large amount of valuable meteorological information can be easily obtained from the Captains of vessels navigating the Bay, and that the majority of Captains and officers of vessels, from the interest they take in the weather, are ready even at considerable trouble to themselves to fill in the returns in the hope they may be of some use in the investigations of the Meteorological Department.

Although the number of returns sent in is smaller than were received last year, they have been of higher quality. A fair proportion of the observations have been as accurate and carefully taken, judging from internal evidence and from a comparison with the land observations on the coasts of the Bay, as at our best land observatories.

I have utilized the information they have supplied in preparing an account of the two most severe storms in the Bay during the year 1883. viz. that at the head of the Bay in the last week of June, and that off the Burma and Aracan coast in the second week of November. It is intended to publish this and the cyclone reports which were nearly finished last year, during the present year.

In addition to the information derived from the meteorological extracts from the logs of vessels, meteorological observations were taken at 10 A.M. and 4 P.M. on board the light vessels near the mouth of the Hooghly.

The following gives the names of the vessels at which observations were taken, and the period during which they were recorded :—

	Station	Period

" "Meteor"	Intermediate Station	April to 8th October 1883.

Financial Statement.—The following gives the expenditure on account of the Bengal Meteorological Department during the year 1883-84, and the total grants sanctioned by Government under each of the various heads:—

Heads of Expenditure.	Rs.	Actual expenses incurred during 1883-84. Rs. A. P.	Budget grant for 1883-84. Rs. A. P.

The amount is Rs. 11,898-15-4 in excess of the actual expenditure of last year, but Rs. 12,205-2-9 less than the sanctioned grant. The savings have been mainly under the head of telegraphic messages, postage, and payments to provincial observers. The amount of the Bengal Provincial grant was calculated on the supposition that the new observatories would be in working order on the 1st April. Hence as the majority of them were not established until the middle of June or beginning of July, there was a considerable saving in the amount of payments to observers, and also under the head of telegraphic messages or weather telegrams. The transmission of observations by telegram and post under the extended system has also, in consequence of the ready co-operation of the various officials and the almost exclusive use of postal cards in place of the meteorological forms such as have hitherto been employed, been less expensive than I anticipated, and I have therefore proposed to Government that a portion of the Bengal Provincial grant, which would otherwise lapse yearly, be utilized to provide for certain additional observatories which are much needed to give additional information, and for a further increase of my office establishment.

There is apparently a large saving under the head "Building and repairs;" but this is, so far as I can ascertain, not real, but due to the fact that the cost of several of the new observatories has not been debited yet against the Meteorological Department by book transfer between it and the Public Works Department.

The figures in the statement give the total expenditure so far as can be at present ascertained by my office.

The statement does not include the cost of instruments supplied to the observatories by the Indian Meteorological Department, nor of the cost of stationery supplied to the Central Office, nor of the cost of printing the meteorological returns given in the Gazette or otherwise, or the forms required in the Meteorological office, by the Bengal Secretariat Press.

RESOLUTION ON THE ANNUAL REPORT OF THE HEALTH OFFICER OF THE PORT OF CALCUTTA FOR 1883.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT.—MARINE.

Darjeeling, the 7th June 1884.

READ—

A letter No 1328, dated the 8th March 1884, from the Sanitary Commissioner for Bengal, forwarding the Report of the Health Officer of the Port of Calcutta for 1883.

The Sanitary Commissioner forwards the Report of the Health Officer of the Port of Calcutta with no further remark than that he will comment upon it in his Annual Departmental Report. As the review of the Health Officer's proceedings cannot be postponed until the submission of the Sanitary Commissioner's Report for the entire Province, the Lieutenant-Governor desires that Dr. Lidderdale will in future, in his covering letter, make such remarks on the Health Officer's Report as the circumstances may require.

2. Dr. Lynch, by whom the report is submitted, was Health Officer of the Port throughout the year, and inspected all European vessels The inspection of the native population afloat was in the hands of the native Inspector, who is stated to have sought out causes of sickness, and to have endeavoured to get the sufferers removed to hospital He appears to have shown activity and zeal in his work, but in future the Lieutenant-Governor would be glad to be furnished with further details regarding this officer's work, particularly in respect of the influence exercised by him upon the native population of the Port

3. The number of vessels inspected by the Health Officer rose from 1,467 in 1882 to 1,464 in 1883, and the number of steamers from 235 to 300. The average number of European seamen in the Port was 1,860 against 1,350 in the previous year, the total number of arrivals being 21,005 against 19,764 The increase in the number of European seamen was therefore proportionately much less than the increase in the number of vessels arriving in the Port On the other hand, there was a remarkable increase in the strength of lascar crews, the total of such seamen on board the vessels inspected rising from 4,364 in 1882 to 8,606 in 1883

4. In spite of a high mortality from cholera, the death-rate (43·5) among European seamen was lower than any of the four previous years, except in 1880, when cholera mortality was exceptionally low. Bowel-complaints and fever caused fewer deaths than in 1882; and though there were five cases of small-pox, no deaths occurred from this cause. Five deaths from sunstroke are reported; but these are not ascribed to exposure on board-ship, and the masters of vessels appear to have complied with the instructions issued by the Port Commissioners for the proper care of their crews during the hot season. In dealing with the general question of the mortality among European seamen in Calcutta, Dr. Lynch draws an instructive comparison between their death-rate and the death-rate of the troops quartered in Fort William. Although both bodies of men belong socially to much the same classes, are exposed to the same climatic influences, and drink the same water, the death-rate of the soldiers never rises beyond ten per thousand, while that of the sailors ranges from 35 to 61 per thousand. It can hardly be doubted that the chief reason for this remarkable difference is that the former body of men live under strict discipline and supervision, and are guarded in all possible ways against most of the temptations which beset the latter. Soldiers, moreover, are much less exposed to the sun than sailors. Parades are held in the early morning; sentries mount guard under cover; and a helmet is a far more efficient protection from the sun than the small caps and hats in which sailors go about.

5. The quarantine for cholera imposed in July 1882, at the instance of the Turkish Sanitary Board, on arrivals from Batavia and Sumatra, was with drawn in May 1883. No vessels arriving from those ports were found to have cholera on board. Weekly death returns of the Port were sent regularly to Egypt and Turkey, in the hope that a knowledge of the facts would induce the Governments of these countries to remove their restrictions upon traffic. In May 1883, however, the Turkish Government imposed quarantine upon all arrivals from Calcutta, some deaths from cholera having occurred in that city, although not in such numbers as to satisfy the Medical Board that the malady had assumed an epidemic form. Dr. Lynch notices at some length the epidemic of cholera in Egypt in June last, and the belief of French sanitary authorities that the disease was introduced into Egypt by native firemen and traders landed at Port Said from English steamers. It seems to be alleged that Arab firemen come and go in British steamers between Port Said and Bombay without any control or supervision. As regards the shipping of such persons at Port Said, Dr. Lynch rightly points out that, under section 160 of the English Merchant Shipping Act of 1854, they could only be engaged through the British Consul, while in the matter of the landing either of them or of ordinary passengers at Port Said, the quarantine regulations are assumed to afford sufficient protection. Looking at the question as a whole in the light of what is known of the recent enquiries of the German Cholera Commission, it seems to the Lieutenant-Governor that until scientific experts have arrived at some definite conclusion regarding the causation of cholera in general, all popular speculations as to the origin of any particular outbreak must be premature and misleading.

6. One steamer, carrying 584 returned pilgrims from Jeddah, arrived in Calcutta during the year with three cases of small-pox on board. The sick were sent to hospital and the vessel detained at Garden Reach until she had been cleansed and disinfected.

7. Out of 4,783 Indian seamen employed on foreign voyages, only 15 deaths occurred, giving a death-rate of 3·13 per thousand. Complaints were made in seven vessels of the quality of the rations issued. In two cases only were the complaints substantiated Dr. Lynch remarks that native seamen are apt to make complaints to the Health Officer on arrival, which they afterwards withdraw when called upon to prove them before the Shipping Master, and suggests that arrangements should be made for the presence of the Health Officer at the enquiry held at the Shipping Office. This proposal will be separately considered Several cases of scurvy were found among the lascars on board a vessel arriving with returned coolies from Demerara The lime-juice on board was analysed and was found to be good, and the men did not complain of their rations.

8. The sanitary condition of both banks of the river seems to have been satisfactory, with the exception of a khal in Garden Reach, which discharged filthy drainage into the river. This,. however, has been improved since a reference was made to the Vice-Chairman of the Suburban Municipality, which appears to be responsible for the nuisance. It is satisfactory to find that the Port Commissioners have provided a new latrine at the entrance of Tolly's Nullah, and propose to increase the latrine accommodation above the Hooghly Bridge. The attention of the Calcutta Municipality will be drawn to the necessity of providing more latrine accommodation on the town side of the Strand Road

9 No complaints were made by the shipping of the quality of the filtered water supplied to them. An application from the crew of certain native passenger boats, for the provision of a hydrant at Prinsep's Ghat, will, it is stated, be considered by the Calcutta Municipality after the extension of the water-supply.

10. Dr Lynch brings to notice the want of legal authority to enforce measures of disinfection on board vessels where disease has prevailed, and particularly to compel the destruction of infected property. Such powers are given in England by an Order in Council, dated the 5th August 1871, and in Bombay by section 11 of Act VI of 1867, which empowers Government to make rules for the destruction of the personal property of persons suffering, or who have recently suffered, from an infectious disease dangerous to life, and for the disinfection or cleansing of vessels on board of which such persons have recently been. This question also will be separately considered

11. The principal diseases from which the seamen suffered, and the mortality from each in the past four years, are shown in the following statement:—

	1883.		1882.		1881.		1880.

The average daily population of the Port during this period having been 1,400 in 1880, 1,350 in 1881, 1,792 in 1882, and 1,860, in 1883, the death-rate per 1,000 was 35 in 1880, 48 in 1881, 51·8 in 1882, and 43·5 in the past year. In respect of general health, then, the year 1883 compares favourably with the other years of the series except the year 1880, which was exceptionally healthy. The same remark applies to all diseases except malarious fever, the death-rate from which was slightly in excess of that recorded in 1881 and 1882. There were no cases of enteric fever, which has in all former years caused heavy mortality.

12. The total mortality among natives living afloat gave a death-rate of 6·9 per thousand as compared with 7·2 in 1882. Out of the 175 deaths among natives, 116 were caused by cholera, being one more than in 1882. On the whole, the year was a healthy one for the native population living on the river. Useful work was done among these people by the native Sanitary Inspector appointed in the end of 1882. This officer visited no less than 12,830 boats, of which 542 were found to be dirty. He also inspected the latrines, the police water-boats, and the conservancy arrangements on both banks of the river. For these purposes the river has been divided by the Health Officer into six sections, each of which is visited by the Inspector once a week.

13 The duties of Port Health Officer have been efficiently carried on by Dr. Lynch during the past year.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No 86 formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

o overcast, g gloomy, p passing temporary showers, d drizzling rain, t thunder, ≤ lightning, strong wind.

METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL SUMMARY OF THE PROVINCE OF BENGAL FOR THE MONTH OF MAY 1884.

The meteorological conditions of the Province of Bengal during the month of May are similar to those of April. The area of maximum temperature in India during the month includes the western districts of South Behar, the North-Western Provinces, Rajputana and Central India. Very dry and hot westerly winds blow down the Gangetic valley into Behar and Chutia Nagpur, chiefly during the daytime. These winds, probably by their action in elevating the sea winds blowing across the Bengal coast into West Bengal and Behar, give rise to the formation of nor'-westers in Western Bengal. Strong winds from the south-west prevail at the head of the Bay. Usually the winds at Saugor Island and False Point are stronger in May than they are during the height of the south-west monsoon. These winds carry large amounts of aqueous vapour into East and North Bengal. Ascensional motion takes place chiefly in the neighbourhood of the hills. Hence arise the frequent thunder-storms of the month, and the large rainfall in Bengal generally, but more especially in the northern districts of North Bengal (Cooch Behar and Julpigoree) and the north-eastern and eastern districts of East Bengal (Mymensingh and Commillah and the Chittagong Hill Tracts). The average rainfall of the month is less than 2 inches over the southern parts of the Sarun and Mozufferpore districts, the Gya and Shahabad districts and Chutia Nagpur. It increases from 2 to 5 inches from a line limiting the preceding districts to a line running through Arrareah (in the Purneah district), Raigunj (in Dinagepore), Meherpore (in Nuddea), Burdwan, Ghattal and Saugor Island. Between this line and a line passing through Rungpore, Jamalpore, Mymensingh, Brahmunberiah, Comillah and Cox's Bazar, the average rainfall increases eastwards from 5 to 10 inches. To the east of that line it exceeds 10 inches, and increases rapidly in amount in the neighbourhood of the Garo and Khasia hills and the hills of the Western Duars, and up the southern sides of these hills to an elevation of perhaps 3,000 or 4,000 feet. The largest average rainfall of the month in the plains of Bengal is that of Dinhatta in the Cooch Behar district, which is 15·1 inches. Buxa in the hills of the Western Duars has the largest known average rainfall in the Province, viz. 21·58 inches.

The weather during the past month has been fairly normal in character over the Province of Bengal. The unusual heat and dryness of the months of March and April in Behar, Chutia Nagpur and the adjacent districts of the Central Provinces and the North-West Provinces, gave rise in the latter month to stronger sea winds at the head of the Bay than usual. This was shown most markedly by the extension of easterly winds over nearly the whole of Behar at the end of April. These conditions initiated a series of disturbances over the Province during the first fortnight of May. Frequent storms occurred and rain fell more or less abundantly over the whole of the Province, except Orissa, Chutia Nagpur and a few districts in South and West Behar. They cooled the air very considerably, and the sea winds consequently diminished in strength. Dry hot weather again set in over Behar, Orissa, Chutia Nagpur and the western districts of South, West and North Bengal, and lasted during the remainder of the month. Storms continued to occur at frequent intervals over the greater part of East and North Bengal, but gave less rain generally than during the first fortnight of the month. They also occurred at longer intervals in South-West Bengal, and gave occasional rain.

The rapid increase of temperature during this period accompanied a fairly steady and continuous fall of the barometer until the end of the month which preceded and initiated the first burst of the south west monsoon over the Province during the first week of June.

The first heavy rainfall and stormy weather in Ceylon, due to the south-west monsoon of the present year, appears to have occurred early in the second week of the month. Strong south-west winds were then blowing over the south of the Bay and advancing northwards over the eastern half of the Bay. They appear to have given rise to heavy rainfall and a large atmospheric whirl to the north-west of the Andamans about the 12th or 13th. This advanced first northwards and then curved slightly to the east and crossed the coast near Akyab on the evening of the 17th, very shortly after which it was broken up. The storm was a small one, but unusually violent near the centre, where winds of hurrican force were experienced by vessels involved in it.

Probable character of the South-West Monsoon of 1884.—An examination of the 10 A.M. observations, published by the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India, indicate that the following are the characteristic features of the pressure variations during the months of March, April and May :—

1*st*.—Pressure was generally below the average in March over the whole of India, above it in April by an equal amount (·020″), and below it in May by a smaller amount (·006″).

2*nd*.—During the same period pressure was relatively low over Assam, Bengal, Behar, Orissa, Chutia Nagpur, and the North-Western Provinces The deficiency was least marked in March, and increased in amount and extended westwards during the months of April and May. This deficiency of pressure is most marked in Behar, Chutia Nagpur, Orissa, and the northern districts of the North-Western Provinces (i.e., Rohilcund and adjacent districts).

3*rd*.—Pressure is relatively high over the whole of the Madras and Bombay Presidencies, the Central Provinces, Burmah and Arracan. The excess of pressure is greatest in Ceylon and the extreme south of the Peninsula, and in the districts represented by the stations of Bombay, Poona, and Khandwa.

Assuming that the observations and results are correct, the following appear to be the inferences—

1*st*.—That so far as can be judged by the land observations, the south-west monsoon of the present year will be of ordinary strength.

2*nd*.—That the Bombay branch of the monsoon current will probably be later than usual in establishing itself over the west coast, and that it will be weak and give deficient rainfall which will be most marked in Ceylon and Southern India, including the south of Mysore, and, to a less extent probably, in the Bombay and Poona and adjacent districts of the Bombay Presidency.

3*rd*.—The Bengal branch of the monsoon current will be of average strength at least, and give average or abundant rainfall over Bengal and Behar, and probably over the greater part of the North-West Provinces.

4*th*.—The weakness of the Bombay branch of the monsoon current, and the slight excess of pressure in the Punjab and Rajputana, indicate a probable deficiency of rainfall in these areas and perhaps in the adjacent districts of the North-West Provinces.

These conclusions are more likely to be true for the first half of the monsoon (i.e. till August) than for the whole monsoon.

Atmospheric Pressure.—Pressure was above the average at the commencement of the month. It fell rapidly over the whole Province from the 6th to the 9th by amounts which slightly exceeded a quarter of an inch at the western stations. The barometer then rose, and its movements were small and irregular until the 15th. A considerable fall occurred on the 16th and 17th, due mainly to a cyclonic disturbance which advanced northwards over the east of the Bay and struck the Arracan coast near Akyab. This was followed by small oscillations for some days until the 23rd, when a steady fall commenced which continued until the 29th, when pressure was slightly more than a tenth of an inch below the normal pressure of the period.

The mean pressure of the month varied by small amounts from the normal means. It was in defect at all stations except Dacca. The deficiency was greatest in the case of the Orissa, Chutia Nagpur and South Behar stations, for which it averaged ·02″

Temperature.—The past month has been marked by a wide range of temperature. During the first fortnight the atmosphere was in a slightly disturbed state and frequent showers occurred. Temperature was hence considerably below the average.

The mean temperature of the first week of the month was 6° below the normal for South-West Bengal, 4½° for Behar and Chutia Nagpur, 3½° for East Bengal and 1° for Orissa. The deficiency during the second week was equally marked. It was greatest in East and North Bengal and the central and eastern districts of South-West Bengal. It varied over this area from 6° at Berhampore and 5° at Jessore, to 3° at Chittagong and 2° at Dacca. The deficiency was least in Behar, for which it averaged 1°. The rainfall of the second half of the month was limited and below the average. Hot westerly winds prevailed over a large portion of Behar and Chutia Nagpur. Temperature consequently increased steadily and rapidly over the western and central districts of the Province, and slowly over the eastern districts. The mean temperature of the third week of the month was from 1° to 3° above the normal in Behar, Chutia Nagpur, and Orissa, and was below it generally in Bengal by smallest amounts. The mean temperature of the fourth week of the month was 6° above the average in Chutia Nagpur, and between 2° and 3° in Behar, Orissa, and South-West Bengal. The 30th was a very hot day, the hottest day of the month and probably of the present year in Behar and Chutia Nagpur. The following table gives the maximum temperature of that day at several stations, and the highest May temperature observed in certain cases :—

Winds were normal in direction and slightly above their average strength in Bengal. They alternated over the greater part of Behar between west and east according to the relative strengths of the land winds of Upper India and the sea winds. Easterly winds chiefly prevailed during the first half of the month, and westerly winds during the latter half. In Chutia Nagpur winds from the west blew during the whole month.

Rain.—The rainfall of the month was brought up by local sea winds from the head of the Bay. It occurred mainly during thunder-storms and nor'-westers which, as is usually the case, were most frequent and severe in the neighbourhood of the hills of East and North Bengal. The first twelve days of the month was a period of general disturbance. Showers fell in every part of the Province, occasionally in the western districts and frequently in the northern and eastern districts. During the remainder of the month little or no rain was received in Orissa, Behar (except the Purneah district), and Chutia Nagpur. It was also a dry period, with the exception of the 25th and 31st, in South-West Bengal. East and North Bengal received frequent showers with short intervals of clear weather. The 25th and 31st were the only days of fairly general and heavy rain during this period over the whole of Bengal.

The rainfall of the month was in excess in Midnapore, the 24-Pergunnahs, Howrah, Bankoora districts of South-West Bengal, the whole of East Bengal, excepting part of the Furreedpore district, and the whole of North Bengal, excepting the southern portion of the Rungpore district and the Darjeeling hills. It was also above the average in the Sonthal Pergunnahs. The excess did not exceed two inches over the greater part of the area of increased rainfall, and was locally large in three districts. The first was the Chittagong and Noakholly districts. The excess was mainly due to the rainfall which accompanied the Akyab cyclone of the 16th and 17th. Cox's Bazar received 7·18 inches more than its average amount during the month. The second area of excess rainfall included Mymensing, Pubna, and Bogra near the Garo and Khasia Hills. The excess was greatest at the station of Mymensing, where it was 9·16 inches. The third area of unusually heavy rainfall included the Cooch Behar and Julpigori districts at the foot of the Darjeeling Hills; Cooch Behar received an excess rainfall of 11·77 inches.

The rainfall was in defect over the whole of Orissa (excluding Pooree,) the Hooghly, Burdwan, Nuddea, Jessore and Moorshedabad districts of South-West Bengal, and the whole of Behar (excluding the Sonthal Pergunnahs a portion of the Rungpore and Dinagepore districts and the northern part of the Durbhanga and Purneah districts) and Chutia Nagpore. Over a large part of this area, including nearly the whole of Behar, the deficiency was small and did not exceed one inch. The deficiency was largest over a large portion of Orissa, and the Nuddea and Jessore districts of South-West Bengal, where it varied between two and three inches. It was absolutely greatest in the Darjeeling Hill Tracts, where the rainfall was unusually small and contrasts strikingly with the heavy rainfall in the neighbouring plain districts of Cooch Behar and Julpigoree.

The relative general distribution of the rainfall was thus similar to what it was in April. It also resembles in its more important features the distribution of rainfall during the corresponding month of last year. In both cases the rainfall was in excess over East and North Bengal, and deficient in Behar and Chutia Nagpur. The chief feature in which they differ is in the small rainfall of Orissa in May 1884 as compared with May 1883.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the month of May 1884:—

The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of past years (at the Park-street Observatory). The barometer is about 3 feet higher at Alipore, and, other things being equal, reads therefore ·003 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 0·5° greater; and finally, the thermometer, which has furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor-General's Office during the last 20 years and upwards, is found to read 0·6 higher than the Kew standard thermometer, which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory

N B.—In the monthly abstract for April 1884 read 30 instead of 29 as the number of hours under the direction West.

Explanation of Summary.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical averages or means of the readings during The humidity of the atmosphere is expressed as a percentage, saturated air being represented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an ov vations, rainfall," the normal means are the numerical means or averages of the rainfall in that district determined from the returns sent in by th from the District, (i.e.) the total rainfall at the sub-divisional stations in the district sending in returns, divided by the number of stations.

CALCUTTA,
The 9th June 1884.

JOHN ELIOT,
Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of Bengal.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL DURING THE WEEK ENDING 6TH JUNE 1884.

THE south-west monsoon may fairly be considered to have commenced over the Province during the past week. The directions of the winds which have prevailed during the week are those which obtain during the monsoon. Heavy rain has fallen almost continuously during the week in North and East Bengal, and moderate rain over the remainder of the Province, except in one or two districts bordering on the North-Western Provinces and in Orissa. The monsoon has established itself very quietly, and is as yet somewhat feeble; but this is probably due to the fact that it has begun slightly earlier than usual in Bengal, and that the main body of the monsoon current, as shown by the weakness of the winds in the south of the Bay, and the non-commencement of the monsoon on the Bombay coast, has evidently not yet set in. The logs of vessels arriving in the Port of Calcutta prove that south-west winds of moderate strength have been established for some days over the whole of the Bay.

Pressure.—The barometer was low and below the average over the Province, except in East Bengal on the morning of the 31st. It thence increased steadily until the morning of the 3rd, when it was above the normal pressure by amounts which varied between ·04″ (in Orissa) and ·17″ (at Calcutta). The changes were irregular during the next 24 hours, after which the barometer again began to fall steadily and continuously, and was falling at the end of the week. The effect of the continued rise during the first four or five days of the week has been to give a mean pressure for the week considerably above the normal over the whole Province. The excess averages ·07″ for East Bengal, 05″ for Behar, ·04″ for South-West Bengal, ·01″ for Chutia Nagpur, and ·005 for Orissa. Chutia Nagpur and Orissa form, as they have so frequently done for several months past, an area of low pressure relative to the remainder of the Province.

Temperature.—In consequence of the occurrence of general and heavy rainfall over nearly the whole Province, temperature has been unusually low during the past week. The only districts where the mean temperature of the week was above the average are Chutia Nagpur and Orissa, where the rainfall has been markedly deficient. The mean temperature of the week was 3° above the normal at Hazaribagh and 2½° at Cuttack The reduction of temperature, due to rainfall, was greatest in East and Central Bengal and in East and Central Behar. The mean temperature of the week at Chittagong was 6½° below the normal, at Berhampore 6⅓°, and at Dacca, Jessore and Patna 5.° It was about 1½° below it in the western districts of South-West Bengal.

Moderately high maximum temperatures were registered in the western districts of Behar during the earlier part of the week. The highest were—

Gya	...	...	...	...	114·2°	on the 31st
Chupra	...	...	...	...	111·5°	,, 31st
Dehree	...	...	...	...	111·5°	,, 31st

Winds—Have blown from their ordinary south-west monsoon directions over nearly the whole Province. They were from directions between south and south east in South and East Bengal, and from east in North Behar and Behar. They were variable at Hazaribagh alternating between west and east dependent on the relative strength of the land winds of Upper India and the sea winds in Bengal. Winds were slightly stronger than usual over the north-west angle of the Bay, as shown by the following:—

	Average number of miles of wind per diem during week.	Average daily air motion, June.
Sauger Island	... 391	... 342
False Point	 387	... 278

Humidity.—In consequence of the prevalence of sea winds, and the early establishment of the south-west monsoon, the humidity of the air has been above the average by small amounts, the success being greatest in the case of the Behar stations.

Rainfall.—The southerly winds have brought up much aqueous vapour during the week, and deposited it as rain chiefly during thunder-storms which occurred at frequent intervals in every part of the Province. Orissa is the only division which has received little rain during the week. The 31st, 1st, 3rd, and 5th were days of more or less heavy general rain in South-West Bengal. Rain occurred abundantly in North and East Bengal on every day except the 4th and 6th. In Behar and Chutia Nagpur the 3rd and 5th were the only days of general rain, but the amounts received were considerable, and gave a rainfall in excess of the normal amount of the week.

The rainfall of the week was below the average over the whole of Orissa (more especially the Pooree and Cuttack districts), Chutia Nagpur, the Bankoora and Beerbhoom districts of South-West Bengal, the Purneah and Shahabad districts of Behar, and the Dinagepore, Rungpore and Julpigori districts of North Bengal. The deficiency is small except in Orissa and Chutia Nagpur. The former has received ·8 inch or ·48 inch less than the normal amount, and the latter received an average fall of ·7 inch or ·36 inch less than the normal.

Rainfall was above the average over the remainder of the Province, that is over nearly the whole of Bengal and Behar.

It was most abundant in East Bengal, which received 2 inches in excess of its normal amount, and South-West Bengal, which received one inch in excess. South Behar received an average of 1·3 inches as compared with ·7 inch, its normal fall. The Chittagong district received very heavy rain. The average fall of the district for the week was 11·12 inches, the normal average being 4·27 inches. The districts of Noakholly, Commillah, Furreedpore, and Mymensingh also received amounts considerably in excess. In South-West Bengal, the Moorshedabad, Nuddea and Burdwan districts and the 24-Pergunnahs received the largest amounts.

The average fall for the week was more than an inch in excess in each of these districts. The Bogra, Pubna and Rajshahye were the only districts in North Bengal where the rainfall was considerably in excess. The increased rainfall of South Behar was mainly due to heavy falls in the Bhagulpore and Patna districts.

The past week has thus given satisfactory rain to several districts, more especially South Behar and the Nuddea district in Bengal where it was hitherto deficient.

The only part of the Province where rainfall continues conspicuously below the average is the area including the Cuttack and Pooree districts of Orissa.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday, the 6th of June 1884 :—

MEMORANDA.

The first class Municipalities in Bengal presented during the week ending 24th May 1884, the mean birth and death-rates of 19·5 and 34·9 per 1,000 of population, against 18·8 and 41 6 per 1,000, respectively, during the preceding week ending 17th May, showing a small increase in the registration of births against a large decrease in that of deaths.

(2) The Municipalities which returned the highest proportions of births and deaths are :—

Births	Ratio per mille.	Deaths.	Ratio per mille.
Bhagulpore	38·9	Bhagulpore	105·9
Purneah	34·6	Burdwan	53·4
Midnapore	34·1	Patna	45·8

		Chittagong	35·2
		Dacca	35·0
		Midnapore	34·1
		Durbhanga	31·5
		Serampore	31·4

(3) The principal diseases, columned in the table appended to this memoranda, furnished the death-rates indicated below :—

	Ratio per mille during the weeks ending—
	24th May 1884.	17th May 1884.
Cholera	7·6	11·4
Small-pox	3·1	5·4
Fever	12·3	11·7
Bowel-complaints	4·2	4·8
Injury	·4	·6
Other causes	7·3	7·5

indicating, chiefly, that, in comparison with the preceding week, the severity of cholera and small-pox had, on the whole, declined considerably, but that the mortality from fever had increased somewhat.

(4) Excluding injury, the mortality from which was nowhere high, the rest of the death-causes proved most fatal to life in the Municipalities named below :—

Cholera	Ratio per mille.	Small-pox.	Ratio per mille	Fever.	Ratio per mille.	Bowel-complaints.	Ratio per mille	Other causes.	Ratio per mille.

showing that Bhagulpore continued to suffer with marked severity from cholera and small-pox, and Gya and Patna from the latter disease; that conspicuously high mortality from cholera also occurred in Beauleah, Midnapore and Durbhanga, and that the casualties from fever were noticeably large in Burdwan.

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken, as the census of this section of the community taken in February 1881 was not reliable, owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as before, as it was not necessary to re-census them. The ratios have consequently been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted, inas much as the census of the Europeans alone cannot be employed as a basis of calculation owing to the results of the census under this head not having been recorded under the authorized form of age classification.

General remarks on the fluctuation of principal staples carried over East Indian Railway during four weeks ended 26th April 1884.

INCREASES.

Coal.—There was an increase in the upward and a decrease in the downward coal. The improvement in the upward despatches was due to heavy demand from the Oudh and Rohilkund, Sinde, Punjab and Dehli, and Rajputana-Malwa Railways. The falling off in the downward coal is attributable to want of demand in Calcutta.

Salt.—An increase in this staple is accounted for by ordinary fluctuation of trade.

Railway Materials, Foreign.—Due to the extension of the railway system on the north bank of the Ganges being in active progress.

Linseed and other oilseeds (excluding Mustard seed).—The increase in these seeds is accounted for by business having been very brisk in the Calcutta market and the prices good in the early part of the month.

DECREASES.

Wheat.—The serious falling off in this staple is attributable to an almost total want of demand in the English and Continental markets owing to large stocks being held and the American harvest having been good.

Mustard seed.—A heavy decrease is due to want of demand for export.

Sugar.—Partial failure of the sugarcane crop in consequence of scanty rainfall last season occasioned the decrease in this article.

Cotton.—The decrease in this commodity is accounted for by the supplies in the Calcutta market being very scanty.

Piece-goods.—Limited demand, depressed market, and failures of local firms are alleged to be the reasons for the decrease in imported piece-goods

Government Stores.—The ordinary fluctuation of supply and demand accounts for the decrease in these stores.

Ghee.—Want of demand and the Calcutta market being dull led to the decrease in this staple.

Tobacco.—Decrease due to ordinary fluctuation of trade.

Minerals.—There has been an increase in weight carried attended with a decrease in the earnings, and this is accounted for by the traffic having been for shorter distances.

Lac.—Absence of demand is said to be the reason for the decrease in this article.

It then turns west on the road to the south of Puddopookur tank, from the south-west corner of which tank it joins Bissessur Mookerjee's lane by a line running due south. The boundary line then follows Bissessur Mookerjee's lane to its junction with Nullooaparra lane, along which it runs as far as the Circular Garden Reach road. From the end of Nulloaparra lane it follows the Circular Garden Reach road or a distance of more or less 150 feet, and then again turns south skirting the western boundary of Bhookylas till it meets the Hurrobass road. The boundary line then runs east on the Hurrobass road as far as Bhookylas road, which it follows to the junction of that road with the Budge Budge road. From this point the boundary is a straight line to a point on the west side of Diamond Harbour road 700 feet to the north of its junction with the Doorgapore road. The line then runs straight from this point to the junction of the Moyerpore road with the Moyerpore lane, and then follows the south side of Moyerpore lane to Tolly's Nullah. The boundary line then follows the west bank of Tolly's Nullah for a length of 1,000 feet when it turns west in a straight line to the junction of the Tollyrunge and Shapore roads. The boundary then follows the Shapore road. Goragatchee road, Taratollah road, and Sonai third lane, to the junction of the latter with the Garden Reach Circular road. At the Circular Garden Reach road the boundary line again turns to the east and follows this road as far as Meethapookur road, where it turns north along the Meethapookur road to the north-west corner of Meethapookur tank. From this point to Garden Reach road the boundary is the west bank of Moteejheel tank.

HIGH COURT NOTICE.

Circular order issued by authority of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

CIVIL.

No. 4, dated the 22nd May 1884.

THE practice which apparently obtains in some districts of showing poundage fees* as civil deposits in the accounts is incorrect. Money realized in cash in cases in which the decree-holder purchases and sets off the amount of his decree against his purchase-money in whole or in part, under the arrangement contemplated in Chapter I, Rule 8, Clauses (a), (b), (c), (d), page 13, Civil Rules and Orders, should be held, not as poundage fees, but as earnest money paid in by the purchasing decree-holder, out of which the poundage fees can be realized on confirmation of sale.

* Vide Note (f), Article 6, Parts II, III, and IV of Rule 8, Chapter IV, pages 22-, &c., Civil Rules and Orders.

General Letter No. 7, dated Calcutta, the 8th May 1884.

From—C. S. BAYLEY, Esq., Officiating Registrar,
To—All District Judges in Bengal and Assam.

As the Order Sheet now contains every original order made in a suit or case from its first institution to its final determination (see clause (n), Rule 1, No. 49, Chapter V, page 304 of the General Rules and Circular Orders, Civil Side), the Court consider it unnecessary that such orders should be entered at length a second time in the Diary. This double record creates additional work without any adequate advantage; while (regard being had to the strength of the establishments of the Civil Courts and the indispensable duties which they have to perform) it is very desirable that no unnecessary labour should be imposed upon them.

2. The Judges are at the same time strongly impressed with the belief that some waste of judicial power and avoidable inconvenience to suitors and their witnesses are caused in many Courts by want of system and foresight in fixing the dates for the hearing of cases. They are satisfied that, if Judicial Officers of all grades would give some personal attention to the arrangement of their files, their own work would be facilitated by the economy of system; suitors would be saved the inconvenience and expense of constant adjournments; and witnesses, being examined and discharged in the majority of instances on the dates for which they were summoned, would respect the process of the Civil Courts without necessity for the adoption of punitive measures. The Court are accordingly pleased to cancel clauses (b), (c), (d), (e), and (f) of Rule 43, page 295 of the General Rules and Circular Orders (Civil), and to issue the following instructions in lieu thereof:—

(b) The Diary shall be kept in the form hereunto annexed, or as nearly thereto as may be convenient. It shall show the name of the Judge or Judicial Officer; the hour at which he took his seat; the number of petitions filed before him in Court; the manner in which the cases fixed for the day have been disposed of; and the hour at which the Court rose. It shall be signed at the end by the Judge before he leaves Court.

(c) The cases fixed for the day shall be entered in advance under the heads shown in the form immediately upon a date or adjourned date being fixed (1) for their final disposal at the first hearing; or (2) for settlement of issues; or (3) for trial upon adjournment after settlement of issues. This portion of the Diary will therefore be filled in many days before the date, the actual proceedings of which the Diary is intended to show. Upon that date it will only remain to note the number of petitions received, and to make the brief entries in column 2. These entries should be made by the Judge himself as each case is disposed of. The entry of the cases in advance can be made by the clerk who attends the Bench; and one leaf or two pages should be appropriated to each working day, holidays being excluded. All entries should be neatly made without erasures. The Diary will thus serve as a Cause List. It should lie upon the table in Court during Court hours, and the Vakeels should be allowed access to it in order to ascertain the dates fixed for the hearing of their cases.

(d) The Court are further pleased to direct that a Register of Petitions be maintained in the accompanying form. This Register may be kept in the vernacular, and it requires no explanation. The serial number of each petition should be written on the face of it at the top, in order to facilitate reference to the Register.

(e) The majority of petitions can be disposed of by an order passed in Court as soon as they are filed. Where a reference to the record or to other papers is necessary before an order can be made, they should be brought up with such record or papers on the following open day, and orders should then be passed in Court. All orders when entered in the Order Sheet must be signed by the parties or their Pleaders.

(f) It shall be the duty of the District Judge or Judicial Commissioner upon every inspection of a Subordinate Court to satisfy himself and report to the High Court whether the Diary and Register of Petitions have been properly maintained in accordance with these instructions. A glance at column 4 of the Register of Petitions will show at once whether applications in suits have been promptly dealt with. Similarly, a glance at column 2 of the Diary will show whether cases have been adjourned too frequently or to too distant dates. The same column will enable the course of any suit to be traced from its first institution to its final disposal. The Diary itself will show whether the Subordinate Judge or Munsif has exercised proper care and judgment in arranging the work of each day.

General Letter No. 8, dated Calcutta, the 8th May 1884.

From—C S. BAYLEY, ESQ., Officiating Registrar,
To—All District Judges in Bengal and Assam.

THE Judges have frequently observed that applications for summonses to witnesses are dealt with by a special order of the Subordinate Judge or Munsif, and that such summonses are occasionally refused on the ground that they have not been applied for in sufficient time to enable the witnesses to be present at the hearing. The Court are of opinion that no Judicial Officer should take upon himself to refuse a summons on this ground, but that summonses should be issued by the Nazir without any special order of the Judge with all convenient despatch upon payment of the requisite fees. If witnesses are absent upon the day of trial, the Judge must then determine whether there has been want of due diligence fairly chargeable to the parties concerned.

General Letter No. 9, dated Calcutta, the 13th May 1884.

To—All District and Sessions Judges and Magistrates in Bengal and Assam.

WITH a view to the detection of delays in the issue of copies of documents in which folios are filed subsequently to the original application, I am directed to request that the heading of column 5 of the Register* of applications for copies may be altered by hand from "Filed afterwards" to "Number of folios filed afterwards with date of filing."

* Chapter V, Rule 40, pages 290, 291, Civil Rules and Orders.
Chapter VI, Rule 38, page 135, Criminal Rules and Orders.

2. The Superintendent of Stationery has been directed to make the necessary alteration in the next issue of the form.

To be substituted for—

General Letter No. 3, dated Calcutta, the 23rd April 1884.

From—C. S. BAYLEY, ESQ., Officiating Registrar,
To—All Sessions Judges and Magistrates in Bengal and Assam.

As considerable inconvenience in reading the records of criminal cases has been found to result from the practice of recording evidence on both sides of the paper, I am directed to request that in future all depositions may be taken down on one side of the paper only. A margin of one-fourth of the sheet should be kept blank. The Superintendent of Stationery will be directed, when next supplying paper for depositions to Session, Judges and Magistrates, to furnish a certain proportion of blank half-sheets uniform is size and quality with the printed form of deposition, the margin of which should be folded down. These half-sheets should be used to finish any deposition the whole of which cannot be written upon the paper with a printed heading on which it has been commenced.

Sheriff's Office, the 11th June 1884.

NOTICE is hereby given that the fourth Criminal Sessions of the year 1884 of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, for the Town of Calcutta and Factory of Fort William, and the places subordinate thereto, will be holden at the Court House, in the Town of Calcutta, on Monday, the Fourteenth day of July next, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, and so on from day to day until the said Sessions be over. And it is hereby proclaimed that all persons who will prosecute any of the prisoners to be brought up for trial at the said Sessions be present then and there to prosecute.

2. Students who may be desirous of commencing their studies are requested to apply to the Principal between the hours of 11 A.M. and 4 P.M. on or before the 15th June next.

Ten (10) free presentations will then be awarded. These are given to students according to their relative position in the University B.A, B.L., and F.A. Examinations, preference being given to those who have passed the highest examination.

3. No person shall be enrolled on the list of regular students of the College who has not previously passed the First Arts Examination of the Calcutta University, or some one of the preliminary Arts Examination of the United Kingdom recognized by the British General Medical Council.

4. All regular students of the College are required to pay Rs. 15 on entrance, Rs. 30 for the summer session on the 15th June, and Rs. 30 for the winter session in November of each year.

5. Students who have failed to pass, and who, under the regulations of the University, are required to attend a further course of lectures and of hospital practice before being allowed to present themselves again for examination, will pay for such further course an annual fee of Rs. 45 in two instalments of Rs. 30 and Rs. 15, payable at the beginning of the summer and winter sessions respectively.

6. Any regular student of the College may, with the permission of the Principal and the Professors of the subject, attend courses of lectures or departments of hospital practice outside and in addition to the full curriculum for the year, and he shall be entitled to certificates of attendance at such extra lectures, if the Professor is satisfied that he has really studied the subject. The fees payable in advance for such additional courses are the following—

	Rs.

For six months' attendance in each department of hospital practice ...	60

7. Any regular student who leaves the College before completing his University course with the object of continuing his studies at a Medical School in Europe may receive certificates of attendance at lectures on payment of fees at the rates fixed in the foregoing rule. 8. Any person not being a regular student of the College who may be desirous of attending any course of lectures or any department of hospital practice may do so with the permission of the Principal and the Professor of the subject, on payment, in advance, of fees at the rates fixed in rule 6.

CALCUTTA,
The 16th June 1884.

JOHN ELIOT,
Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of Bengal.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL DURING THE WEEK ENDING 13TH JUNE 1884.

THE south-west monsoon continues to prevail somewhat feebly over the Province. It has given rise during the past week to moderate humid sea winds over nearly the whole Province, and to rainfall which reaches or exceeds the average for the week over the greater part of the Province. The Bombay branch of the monsoon current has not yet been established over the west coast. There are, however, indications that this may occur during the ensuing week. Strong winds are blowing at present at Galle and over the south of the Bay, which may extend northwards to Bengal during the next five or six days. The south-west monsoon rainfall in Chutia Nagpur, and in Orissa to a less extent, is largely due to the influence of the Bombay branch of the monsoon current. Its non-establishment therefore explains the very small rainfall up to the present date of the southern districts of Chutia Nagpur.

Pressure—Was slightly below the normal at the commencement of the week. It then increased until the 10th or, in one or two cases in East Bengal, the 11th, during which period the rise of the barometer averaged nearly ·1″. It decreased during the remainder of the week. This change was less regular than the preceding. There was a local increase of pressure in the southern districts of South Behar, Chutia Nagpur, Orissa, and the western districts of South-West Bengal on the 12th. The local variations of pressure are usually larger during the rains than at any other time of the year. This is mainly due to the fact that the cessation of heavy rainfall is usually accompanied by a considerable increase of pressure over and near the area of rainfall. The fall of the barometer during the last three days of the week was smaller than the preceding rise; hence the mean pressure of the week was considerably above the normal for the whole Province. The excess averaged ·06″ for Behar, ·05″ for the greater part of South-West Bengal, ·04″ for Chutia Nagpur, ·03″ for East Bengal, and ·01″ for Orissa. The relatively low pressure which distinguishes Orissa extends eastwards as far as Saugor Island, and is, as it has been for some time, the most marked feature in the distribution of pressure over the Province.

Temperature.—In consequence of the prevalence of south-west monsoon winds over the whole of the Province excepting Chutia Nagpur, and the frequent occurrence of rain showers, temperature was unusually low during the week Maximum temperatures exceeding 100° were registered in Chutia Nagpur, the western and southern districts of South Behar, and at Raneegunj and Cuttack. The following are the highest maxima temperatures observed during the week:—

Gya	...	...	...	...	106·7°	on the	8th
Chyebassa	...	...	...	...	106·1°	„	8th
Cuttack	...	...	...	...	105·9°	„	8th

The mean temperature of the week was between 4½° and 6½° below the normal in the case of the Behar stations, and between 2½° and 5½° below it in the case of the Bengal stations. The temperature was slightly above the average in the Orissa low pressure area, due to a remarkable deficiency in the amount of rainfall up to the present date in that area. The mean temperature of Cuttack for the week was 1° above the normal.

Winds—Ordinary south-west monsoon winds, slightly weaker than the normal, have prevailed during the week, excepting in Chutia Nagpur, where dry westerly winds alternated with easterly winds, and on two occasions also extended to the Gya and Shahabad districts. The high temperature of the 8th at Gya was due to westerly winds.

Rainfall.—The rainfall of the week has been fairly abundant, and in some cases excessive over the greater part of the Province. The Jessore, Burrisal, Noakholly and Commillah districts have formed an area of excessive precipitation during the past week. Rainfall continues to be deficient and considerably below the average over the Pooree district of Orissa, Chutia Nagpur (more especially the southern districts), the western districts of Behar, and the Bankoora and Beerbhoom districts of South-West Bengal.

In Orissa the 9th was the only day on which general rainfall occurred. Moderately heavy rain was received in the western districts of South-West Bengal on the 7th and 8th; a few local showers were received during the remainder of the week, but they were of little importance. The eastern and northern districts of South-West Bengal, comprising Nuddea, Khoolna, Jessore, and Moorshedabad, received general rain on the 7th, 8th, 10th, and 11th. The rainfall registered was especially heavy in the Khoolna and Jessore districts on the 11th. The Khoolna district received an average of 2·6 inches, and the Jessore district of 2·2 inches on that day.

East Bengal obtained fairly general rain on every day of the week except the 9th and 13th. The rainfall was, however, somewhat irregularly distributed, and it occurred rather as heavy local showers than as widely spread rain due to general actions. Two very heavy local rainfalls occurred on the 13th. Fenny in the Noakholly district received 9·2 inches and Brahmunbariah in the Commillah district 8·72 inches on that day.

The character of the rainfall in the southern and western districts of North Bengal was similar to that of East Bengal. Fairly general rain occurred in these districts on the 7th, 8th, 10th and 11th. On the other hand the northern districts in the neighbourhood of the hills received moderate to heavy showers on every day of the week.

The rainfall in Behar was much less general than in any other part of the Province excepting Chutia Nagpur. The 8th, 9th and 11th were days of fairly general rain, moderate in amount. Several districts, more especially the Shahabad and Gya, obtained very little rain. It was heaviest in the Monghyr and Bhagulpore districts, and adjacent portions of the Sonthal Pergunnahs, where heavy showers fell, more especially on the 11th.

It should be carefully remembered in these statements that the day counts from and to 6 P.M., thus the rainfall of the 11th means the rainfall during the 24 hours preceding 6 P.M. of the 11th.

The rainfall of the week was most abundant in the Commillah, Jessore, Burrisal, Noakholly, Moorshedabad, Dinagepore and Nuddea districts, for which the excess varied from 50 to 150 per cent. Over a considerable portion of Bengal and Behar a mounts either normal or slightly in excess were received. The Pooree district of Orissa, the southern districts of Chutia Nagpur, and the Gya district received barely 3· per cent. of their average amount. The Midnapore, Beerbhoom, and Bankoora districts in South-West Bengal, the Hazaribagh and Shahabad districts obtained between 40 and 50 per cent. of their normal amount. There was also a local deficiency in the rainfall of the Julpigoree and Cooch Behar districts and the Darjeeling Hill tracts, but the amount was proportionately much smaller than in the previous cases.

The only meteorological area over the whole of which the rainfall was markedly below the average was Chutia Nagpur, as is shewn by the accompanying table.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday, the 18th of June 1884 :—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h, 10h, 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86 formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction of the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

o overcast, g gloomy, t thunder, d drizzling rain, p passing temporary showers, ≤ lightning, strong wind.

N.B.—In the weekly reports from 25th to 31st May and from 1st to 7th June, the figures 93·4 and 93·8 indicating, respectively, the total number of hours of sun above horizon in those two weeks should have been printed above the sign ⊖ indicating temperature.

Calcutta, the 16th June 1884. For Meteorological Reporter to the Govt. of India.

MEMORANDA.

The returns of the first class Municipalities in Bengal, for the week ending 31st May 1884, disclose the undermentioned results:—

1. That births and deaths were recorded in these Municipalities at the rates, respectively, of 16·7 and 33 per thousand of population as opposed to 19·5 and 34·9 per thousand, respectively, during the preceding week ending 24th May, indicating a diminution in the registration of both events.

2. That the following Municipalities returned the highest proportions of deaths:—

	Ratio per mille.		Ratio per mille.
Bhagulpore	98·7	Durbhanga	40·9
Burdwan	48·8	Beauleah	36·8
Purneah	48·4	Commillah	34·7
Utterpara	47·2	Suburbs of Calcutta ...	33·5
Gya	47·1	Serampore	33·4
Chupra	43·0	Patna	31·8
Midnapore	41·8

3. That the mortality from the different death-causes specified in the table appended to this memoranda stood as follows:—

	Ratio per mille during the weeks ending—

Small-pox	3·1	3·1
Fever	12·4	12·3
Bowel-complaints	4·1	4·2
Injury	·7	·4
Other causes	7·2	7·3

indicating that, in comparison with the outcome of the preceding week, there was a sensible abatement in the mortality from cholera, and that the fatal results from the other diseases varied only slightly, excepting small-pox, the death-rate from which remained stationary.

4. That the above-mentioned death-causes carried off the largest number of the population of the following Municipalities:—

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darjiling Municipality was recently taken, as the census of this section of the community taken in February 1881 was not reliable, owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as before, as it was not necessary to re-census them. The ratios have consequently been calculated on the revised population under all heads in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted, inasmuch as the census of the Europeans above alluded to cannot be employed as a basis of calculation owing to the results of the census under this head not having been recorded under the authorized form of age classification.

NOTIFICATION.

June 1884.—The following amended rules for the medical inspection of vessels are issued for the guidance of Port Officers, Pilots and Medical Officers of Ports by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, and they will take effect from the 1st July 1884 in the Port of Chittagong:—

I.—The master of every vessel on board of which there is, either among the passengers or crew, any case of cholera, small-pox, or other epidemic disease common in India, shall report such case or cases to the pilot or other boarding officer at the earliest opportunity; or in the absence of a pilot or other boarding officer, shall hoist a signal, which shall be, during the day, flag R of the Commercial Code at the main, and during the night two lighted lanterns one over the other, at the fore.

II.—The Port Officer, having received information from the pilot or other boarding officer or by signal, that any case of such disease is on board, shall communicate the information to the Health Officer of the Port.

III.—The Health Officer, as early as possible after receipt of this information, shall inspect the vessel, and more especially its sanitary condition; shall inquire into the circumstances attending the case or cases of the said disease; and shall arrange for the conveyance of all persons suffering from such disease to a hospital, unless the sick person or his friends can make adequate provision elsewhere.

IV.—The latter part of Rule No. III is, however, not to be enforced in the case of passengers bound for an onward port, unless under the clearest necessity; and of every such case a special report, explaining the reasons for the action taken, must be submitted to the Government.

V.—Where the disease or diseases in question are limited to one or two cases, the vessel shall not be prohibited from taking up the usual place of anchorage in the harbour, nor shall the passengers be detained on board pending the inspection of the Health Officer; but the master of the vessel shall be held responsible that no passenger suspected of having such disease is allowed to depart before this inspection.

NOTIFICATION.

June 1884.—In exercise of the power conferred by Act I of 1870, the following rules for quarantine in the Port of Chittagong have been made by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council. They will, however, be brought into operation under the special orders of Government only when there is any danger of the importation of plague or yellow-fever, or some fatal epidemic not ordinarily prevalent in India:—

I.—The commander of every vessel, including buggalows or other native craft, arriving from a port where plague, yellow-fever, or some fatal epidemic not ordinarily prevalent among Indian populations prevails, shall, before entering the harbour, indicate by signal the port from which such vessel has come.

II.—Such commander shall not, without having first obtained permission as hereinafter provided, allow any communication either with the pilot boat, except orally, or with the shore, or with any other vessel or boat in the harbour.

III.—Immediately on the signal of such arrival being made, the Health Officer of the port shall go alongside the vessel and ascertain by enquiry from the Commander whether any person on board is then suffering, or has during the voyage suffered, from plague, yellow-fever, or any fatal epidemic not ordinarily prevalent among Indian populations; and if such officer is satisfied by such enquiry that no such case has occurred, he shall by writing under his hand, to be delivered to the commander, permit free communication between such vessel and the shore, and with other vessels and boats in the harbour.

IV.—If the Health Officer shall have reason to believe that any such case has occurred, he shall direct the commander to take the vessel to the quarantine anchorage (at Jooldia) duly appointed and notified by Government, there to remain for the space of fifteen days from the day of arrival in the harbour, or from the date of the occurrence of the latest case of illness, and shall further direct the commander to prohibit during the said fifteen days all communication, except such as is hereinafter provided for, between such vessel and the shore, or other vessels or boats in the harbour. The Health Officer may further direct the removal of so many of the passengers and crew as may not be suffering from sickness, and whose services may not be required on board the ship, to such particular spots as may from time to time be fixed upon by the local Government as places of quarantine, there to remain for a space of fifteen days; or in the event of the occurrence of a case of sickness, for a space of fifteen days from the date of the occurrence of the last case.

V.—Any mails or cargo which may be brought by any vessel so arriving shall be landed under such precautions as may be deemed necessary by the Health Officer to prevent the spread of the disease.

VI.—It will be the duty of the Port Officer to facilitate the conveyance to the vessel in quarantine of all supplies of provisions, stores, and other articles required by those on board. These supplies should be placed on the boats of the vessel, to be subsequently removed by members of her crew.

The centre of the reef, near which the Neera grounded, lies with the following bearings:—

THE Calcutta Medical College Session 1884-85 will commence on the 23rd June next, (and not 16th June as advertized in the Calcutta Gazette of the 11th instant.)

2. Students who may be desirous of commencing their studies are requested to apply to the Principal between the hours of 11 A.M. and 4 P.M. on or before the 15th June next.

Ten (10) free presentations will then be awarded. These are given to students according to their relative position in the University B.A, B.L., and F.A. Examinations, preference being given to those who have passed the highest examination.

3. No person shall be enrolled on the list of regular students of the College who has not previously passed the First Arts Examination of the Calcutta University, or some one of the preliminary Arts Examination of the United Kingdom recognized by the British General Medical Council.

4. All regular students of the College are required to pay Rs. 15 on entrance, Rs. 30 for the summer session on the 15th June, and Rs. 30 for the winter session in November of each year.

5. Students who have failed to pass, and who, under the regulations of the University, are required to attend a further course of lectures and of hospital practice before being allowed to present themselves again for examination, will pay for such further course an annual fee of Rs. 45 in two instalments of Rs. 30 and Rs. 15, payable at the beginning of the summer and winter sessions respectively.

6. Any regular student of the College may, with the permission of the Principal and the Professors of the subject, attend courses of lectures or departments of hospital practice outside and in addition to the full curriculum for the year, and he shall be entitled to certificates of attendance at such extra lectures, if the Professor is satisfied that he has really studied the subject. The fees payable in advance for such additional courses are the following—

	Rs.
For a single course of lectures on each subject	40
For six months' attendance in each department of hospital practice ...	60

7. Any regular student who leaves the College before completing his University course with the object of continuing his studies at a Medical School in Europe may receive certificates of attendance at lectures on payment of fees at the rates fixed in the foregoing rule. But in calculating the sum to be so paid, the amount of the fees already paid by him as a regular student, or, in the case of a free student, the amount which would have been paid by him had he been a paying student, shall be deducted.

8. Any person not being a regular student of the College who may be desirous of attending any course of lectures or any department of hospital practice may do so with the permission of the Principal and the Professor of the subject, on payment, in advance, of fees at the rates fixed in rule 6.

If such student has passed the Entrance Examination of the University, he may receive certificates of attendance at lectures, provided the Professors are satisfied that he has attended the full course of lectures, and has mastered the subject taught.

A student who has not passed the Entrance Examination will be entitled to no certificates of any kind.

9. College scholarships, prizes, and certificates of honour are open for competition only to regular students of the College and Hospital apprentice class.

10. No fees are payable by the holders of the Calcutta Medical College scholarships.

The holders of the Doorga Charan Laha and all other scholarships will be required to pay fees as regular student. These scholars may pay their fees in advance, or have their scholarship money deducted till the full amount is received.

11. Any student holding a Medical College scholarship will be permitted to draw the stipend of the said scholarship at any recognized Medical School in the United Kingdom, provided he furnishes from the head of such school a certificate of good conduct and diligent prosecution of his studies.

12. The offices of Class Assistant, Clinical Clerk, Dressers, &c., can be held only by students whose names are on the rolls of the college.

No. 1661.—RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Department of Finance and Commerce.

Read again the following Resolution in the Department of Finance and Commerce:—

No. 1959, dated 31st July 1873.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Financial Department.

The Governor-General in Council observes that, of late, sanction has been frequently asked for immediate expenditure for which no provision has been made in the estimates of the current year.

His Excellency in Council desires to remind Local Governments and Heads of Departments that, save for exceptional reasons, such expenditure should not be proposed, and cannot be sanctioned.

Whenever, therefore, a proposition of this kind is made, the fact that provision has not been made for the desired expenditure in the estimates should be prominently set forth, as well as the particular reasons why it is, nevertheless, considered indispensably necessary that the outlay should be immediately incurred, and should not be postponed to the next financial year. Explanations should also be invariably given why the need for the expenditure was not foreseen in time to obtain sanction for its inclusion in the estimates.

In the absence of such special arguments, the Governor-General in Council will, in future, assume that it is intended that any expenditure proposed should have effect from the beginning of the following financial year and not earlier.

Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be communicated to the several Departments of the Government of India, to the several Local Governments, to the Heads of Departments under the Financial Department, to the Comptroller General, and to the several Accountants General and Deputy Accountants General in independent charge.

RESOLUTION.—The Governor-General in Council observes that at present applications for sanction to fresh expenditure are not unfrequently submitted during the course of the year in which the provisions of the foregoing resolution are neglected. His Excellency in Council accordingly directs that the attention of the several Local Governments and Heads of Departments be called to the provisions of the Resolution of 31st July 1873, and they be requested to state distinctly in all future applications for sanction to expenditure whether provision for the proposed charge has or has not been made in the Budget Estimate of the year, and if not, whether it can be met from savings in the existing grants.

ORDERED that the foregoing Resolution be communicated to the several Departments of the Government of India, to the several Local Governments and Administrations, to the Heads of Departments under the Department of Finance and Commerce, to the Comptroller and Auditor General, and to the Accountants General and Comptrollers for information and guidance.

Ordered also that a copy of the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

The 20th June 1884.
